Half a Day in Mexico
Half in San Diego
1000 Eyes Too Few
Lindbergh's New Glider

—By Arthur Brisbane—

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, March 26—In this part of the world, and just north across the border in San Diego, U. S. A., they show and tell you more interesting things than 1000 eyes and 1000 ears could see and hear, adequately.

On this new and amazingly successful resort, created almost over night, just south of the United States border, many millions have been spent to create conditions that will compete with anything in Europe.

Whatever your ideas of horse racing and other amusements, with betting attached, you find comfort in the fact that this place will keep American money in America. Wide roads, bus and air lines enable the American who feels cramped by prohibition and other restrictions, to cast them off, here.

It is not necessary to go to Europe, spending all his income there.

Sixteen miles from San Diego, one of America's most beautiful cities, the American finds here everything that he would find at Deauville, Monte Carlo, Nice or any resort in Europe. The place is well managed, well policed, well patronized. Ask Foxhall Keene, who has just gone by, looking younger than ever.

This place is extraordinarily beautiful, with a perfect hotel; golf, all sports, hot sulphur and mud baths, famous in Aztec days, and the visitor is in old Mexico, a land as foreign to him and as fascinating as though he were in Spain, yet near to his own land, no ocean to cross.

Below this place, the peninsula of Southern California, property of Mexico, stretches for 1000 miles. The wealth of that peninsula cannot be exaggerated. Its beauty cannot be described.

High rock walls, going straight down to the ocean, innumerable sheltered coves, with white sand beaches, great flocks of sheep on the round, green hills, herds of seals, ploughing through the water close to shore, quail innumerable, a wonderful empire.

Spend six hours driving along that Mexican-Pacific shore, and in comparison the Mediterranean Riviera, with which I have been familiar all your life, is like an indoor golf course compared with the real game.

One hundred and twenty miles, by air, southeast of this spot, is one of the finest bootlegging grounds in the world.

In less than two hours a plane lands you on the level of a desert, called the Valle Trinidad. From that desert floor the Saint Peter Martyr Mountain rises 11,000 feet. Dewey was first to measure its height, as a young ensign.

On that mountain you find one of the world's few remaining natural game preserves. mountain sheep, mule deer, other kinds of deer, wild birds of all kinds, streams full of trout.

If your mind craves romance, Mexico will supply it. This is a picturesque people, wondering at our Nordic foolishness, our drinking and our gadding, but courteous, obliging, willing to let us be as foolish as we choose.

Looking at the blue water of the Bay of Saint Quentin, your imaginations call back the old British ships and captains, pirates, free plain English, lurking there in wait for Spanish treasure vessels, on their way from the Philippines around the horn.

England no longer licenses pirates in the name of Queen Elizabeth. But Britons still reach out for treasure.

On this peninsula is a gigantic iron ore deposit, that could supply steel to duplicate every one of our skyscrapers, many times over.

Sir Allen Spence Thomas, who lives at Cardiff, in Wales, is head of a British company that owns that. You ask Sir Allen's son when they mean to develop that wealth. "Oh, no hurry. We get very cheap ore now from Norway. We shall need this Mexican iron later, in 50, or perhaps 100 years."

The second great iron deposit in Mexico is said to be owned by United States Steel. A great iron mountain near Mexico City has not yet been acquired by Nordic energy. Opportunity there.

It is said that President Storey of the Santa Fe, due in San Diego tomorrow, plans to extend his railroad down this peninsula.

If American money and industrial efficiency could cooperate with Mexico in developing this territory, wealth beyond any dream would result, and the Mexican nation would be enriched by many billions.

A short motor drive and the scene changes to San Diego. On

KERMAN TO CUBS

Clearwater, Fla., March 26 (INS)—Babe Herman, holiest outfielder of the Robins, will join the flock here tomorrow morning. In a wire from New Orleans, the West Coast slugger advised Robbie of his imminent arrival.

The Babe's decision to report at this time would indicate that he has decided to capitulate and accept the $15,000 salary proffered by the club.

TRAFTON SUSPENDED

Kansas City, March 27 (INS)—The Missouri State Boxing Commission has suspended George Trafton, Chicago professional football player, indefinitely as a result of his 54 seconds knockout at the hands of Primo Carnera here last night.

The commission ruled that Trafton did not put forth his best efforts in the match. But he collected $2000.

WOOD AFTER RECORD

Miami Beach, Fla., March 26 (INS)—Hoping to establish a speed boat record of 100 miles or more an hour on a straightaway course, Gar Wood today planned to make his assault upon his own record in Miss America X here tomorrow morning.

Wood now holds the record with 93.123 miles an hour.

Raided Back Bay Resort and Its Reputed Owners

Charles Stoppy, said to be partner with Dan Carroll of Cotton Club, raided by U.S. dry agents.

Back Bay resort, known as the Cotton Club, raided by federal prohibition agents, occupies top floor of this building in Lansdowne st. Arrow points to door through which raiders entered to climb the stairs and swoop in upon the club "members." There was a battle with Boston policemen and five arrests were made. (Staff photos.)

Dan Carroll, fight promoter and reputed part owner of the Cotton Club, left for the west last night. His alleged partner, Solomon, is reported to be in Arkansas.

$167,478 HID IN BAY HOLSTEAD U. S. CHARGES

Hidden bank accounts showing deposits of $167,478.72 in Greater Boston banks in the name of Daniel "Frankie" Duris of Belmont, were revealed today after he had been indicted by the federal grand jury for evasion of income taxes.

The Belmont man, brother of the Thomas Duris who was shot at Hotel Brewster several years ago in a quarrel, was charged with having evaded taxes over a period of three years.

The bank deposits, according to the indictment, indicated a regular income of many thousand dollars.

In 1926 Duris is alleged to have deposited $30,405.79 in banks and failed to make a return of $1937.88.

In 1927, the indictment charged, Duris had an income of $67,361.53 and evaded a tax of $6884.59.

In 1928, the income is alleged to have been $69,710.38 and the tax evasion, $8848.54.

REPEAL URGED

In a minority report filed today with the Legislature supporting the initiative petition of the Constitutional Liberty League for repeal of the "Baby" Volstead law, the statement is made that to admit that the Eighteenth Amendment cannot be repealed is to confess that American form of government is a failure.

The report was filed by the legislatives committee on legal affairs as the adverse majority report came up for debate in the House.

"Chief among the rights of a free people is that to change the law," the report states. "This is the essence of the republican form of government. It is the sole safeguard against the fanaticism of the minority.

THE STATE'S MANDATE

"This Commonwealth has issued a mandate to its representatives assembled in the General Court. It now devolves upon them to carry out the expressed will of a majority of all the people of the State.

"In 1926, by a vote of 707,352 to 422,655, the men and women of this State by a majority of 284,697 expressed their common repugnance to the 18th amendment and the Volstead law. The will of the people is sovereign.

"Our nation is an indestructible union composed of indestructible

Four Boys Held in Theft of Automobile

Four boys, three from Roxbury and one from East Boston, all who have police records, were in Quincy court today on charges of having stolen an automobile. The result:

David Salet, 19, of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, out on parole from the Concord Reformatory, held in $2000; Fred R. Dally, 21, Saratoga st., East Boston, whose parole from Concord recently expired, held in $2000; Alfred Covelle, 22, of West st., Roxbury, two months' suspended sentence; Louis Thompson, 20, of Fenwick st., Roxbury, two months' suspended sentence.

American Has Names, Mr. Warner

The name of every person referred to in this story is in the possession of the Boston American. Goldstein is willing to tell the story again to any recognized court of inquiry.

The American suggests to Atty.-Gen. Warner that Goldstein be brought in to testify and that every person, whether he be lawyer or policeman or politician fixer, be brought in and made to tell his part in the graft and corruption bared by Goldstein.

BOOTLEGGER 'BLED TO DEATH BY GRAFTING POLICE'

Boston bootleggers have been financially squeezed and bled to death to enrich certain police.

Liquor racketeers who have made as high as $10,000 a week are broke today.

Once able to lavish their women-folk with diamonds, furs and finery, they have nothing to show today for their illegal activities but debts and mortgages.

All this due to "the vultures and blood suckers armed with police power," as one broken bootlegger expressed it.

These and other amazing revelations were made today in an exclusive statement to the Boston Evening American by David Goldstein, erstwhile bootlegger, of Deering rd., Dorchester.

"My heart is aching," said Goldstein. "I want to see justice done. Am I afraid of what will happen to me as a result of this statement? Why should I be? All they can take from me is my life, and that isn't worth anything when one is left penniless.

In relating his experiences as a bootlegger after he quit his trade of shoe and leather worker in 1920, Goldstein gave details of his frequent conflicts with police, which began with his arrest the day following his first purchase of $800 worth of liquor to start him in business.

Highlights of his statement recount that:

1—He was stopped once by ——— who searched his car for liquor and allowed him to go after nothing was found.

2—Tells of paying various lawyers for "fixing" charges after he was arrested.

3—Paid weekly graft money to various police officers.

4—Declares police are for the moment afraid to take "hush" money while attorney-general's investigation is going on.

Goldstein's story follows:

The final instalment of Albert K. Sidlinger's own story of graft and vice appears on page 4. Sidlinger was convicted in the notorious Hotel Ritz case and lays his downfall to the ring which has reaped fortunes through corrup' practices.

By DAVID GOLDSTEIN

"Prior to the war I was employed as a shoe and leather worker. When the war ended and was followed by the coming of prohibition, I went into the bootlegging business at the suggestion of a relative ——— of ——— st., Roxbury.

COCKINOS TALKS IN GARRETT CASE

Dan Carroll Thought to Be Backer of Cotton Club

The attorney-general's investigation of Oliver B. Garrett was extended today by the following major developments:

1—Summoning of Nicholas J. Cockinos from Deer Island as a witness under writ of habeas corpus for questioning by Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner.

2—Federal Grand Jury indictment of Daniel "Frankie" Duris, well-known character in the sporting world, and disclosure that he banked $167,478 in 1927 and 1928.

3—Discovery that a number of prospective witnesses, including Dan Carroll and Charles Solomon, are outside the state.

4—Probe of Carroll's and Solomon's connection with the Cotton Club and the charge that Boston police interfered with and beat prohibition agents who raided it yesterday.

5—A move to padlock the Boston Lodge of Elks in the Elks Hotel as part of a federal drive to "mop up" Boston resulting from the Garrett inquiry.

6—Announcement that four women would be called to give "sensational testimony" at the public hearing tomorrow.

7—Identification of the "mystery witness"—questioned by Warner again today—as Leo Turner, chauffeur for John F. Mullen, "boy broker" in the Hotel Ritz case.

Cockinos arrived at the State House for questioning in the custody of Robert F. Mackie, Deer Island deputy master.

The former Welch and Ward agent sentenced for conspiracy in the Hotel Ritz case will be one of the investigation's most important witnesses. His own story of graft conditions in Boston will appear in tomorrow's Boston American.

In order to command his presence, Warner sought and received a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Crosby in Superior Court. The writ commelled Penal Institutions Commissioner William G. Otis to produce him for interrogation in connection with the Garret investigation.

Cockinos, who claims to have been railroaded to jail in a police frame up, was not handcuffed to Mackie. He appeared somewhat nervous and was in need of a shave.

The federal grand jury indict-

WEST SPRINGFIELD FEELS TWO SLIGHT EARTH TREMORS TODAY

Springfield, March 27 (AP)—Reports of a distinct, but apparently very local, earth tremor was made to the newspapers here today from West Springfield points separated by a distance of about two miles. All reports described the tremor as severe enough to shake buildings and utensils. The trembling was preceded by a rumbling sound such as is made by the passing of a heavy truck. It occurred about 2:30.

$30,000,000 HIGHWAY AID BILL O. K.'D

Washington, March 27 (AP) — The Colton bill, authorizing $30,000,000 for Federal highway aid in the fiscal years 1931, 1932 and 1933, was approved by the House Public Roads Committee. Under the measure $5,000,000 would be added to the sum provided for 1931.

FIRST LETTERS ON DRY LAW

Today the Boston Evening American publishes the first batch of letters in the prohibition $500 weekly competition.

They will be found on Page 8, but so overwhelming has been the enthusiasm that only a few, comparatively, can be printed at one time.

Winners of the first of the weekly awards which will total $500 will be announced in this newspaper next Monday, and the decisions will be final.

The letters will be judged by a committee made up of Attorney Julian Codman, general counsel for

AMERICAN FINDS ANOTHER VICTIM OF THE GRAFTING BOSTON POLICEMEN

Boulevard, the exact location of which I do not know. I took the consignment of liquor from —— 's place in my car after paying $800 for it. I understand that —— has since gone out of business, due to the efforts of Mayor Curley.

I was living on Lawrence ave, Roxbury, at this time and put the liquor in my house overnight. Next morning I went to a school in which I was interested. When I returned my wife told me that I had been cleaned out by Sergt. —— (since dead) and the uniform men of station ——. I later got a summons to appear in court for keeping and exposing.

I went to see —— (since dead) at —— st., Dorchester, a politician, —— told me not to worry and that he would fix everything with the Sergeant.

Some time later —— telephoned me and said that Sergt. —— had agreed to give me the privilege of saying in court that someone else owned the liquor and had left it at my house. I was to get someone to take the "rap." I found a man whom I knew only by the name of Morris, and whose present whereabouts I do not know.

Morris appeared in Dorchester court, was found guilty and fined. I paid his fine and paid him for his services. I retained Atty. —— at the suggestion of ——. I paid $75 for his services. I do not know whether or not —— knew of the "take-the-rap" arrangement.

After the disposition of this case I continued in business, but first paid $100 to Sergt. —— through —— for protection. I did not keep any liquor in my house, storing it in a garage I rented in Dorchester.

One day I was backing out of the garage with a consignment of liquor for the janitor of the —— school. Officers —— and —— of the Station 9 liquor squad, were waiting for me in a parked car. I drove away and arriving at the school gave part of the liquor to the janitor, whose name I do not recall. Before I got rid of the balance of the consignment Officers —— and —— arrived.

I wanted to fix it up with them, but they told me to get the janitor and the rest of the liquor before they would talk business. I did this and we were both arrested and taken to the station where I was held in $500 bail for possession and transportation. Meanwhile Officer —— went to my home and ransacked it, taking two gallons of alcohol which happened to be there and arresting Mrs. Goldstein.

When I got home from Station 9 I received a telephone call from a man who said he was ——, a lawyer, with offices on Tremont st. He said he knew all about the case and could fix it.

He wanted $500 from me, stating that he had to give half to the cops. I retained him after I had raised the necessary money. However I was fined $75 on each of the two counts of possession and transporting.

"The case of my wife then came up. —— at first refused to handle the case, but later did so. On the day of the trial I found him with Officers —— and —— on the steps of the Dorchester court. Atty. —— asked me for $50 more for the officers, who said they would send my wife to jail unless I paid it. At the trial my wife was placed on probation. The janitor was charged with accepting and fined $50 and placed on probation for six months.

"On the night of the day I was arrested I decided that I would not use the garage for storage purposes any more. I had two gallons of alcohol stored there and at midnight went to remove it. As I was leaving the garage with the two gallons of alcohol I was stopped by an officer of Station 9.

He wanted to know what I had in the package. I told him I had been arrested that day and was in plenty of trouble and asked him to give me a break. He said, "Give me $25." I said I could not do it, as I didn't have that much money, and offered to give him the two gallons of liquor.

We finally compromised on $10, which he agreed to accept if I would show him that I had no more booze in the garage. I took him to the garage and he looked it over and saw that I was telling the truth.

When he left me, Officer —— enjoined me not to say anything to anyone about our transaction. When I later met Officers —— and —— one of them twitted me about Officer —— getting so far two gallons.

"So he told you," I said, "you boys seem to hang together on this thing."

Warner Receives Pen Allen Used to Sign Probe Resolve

The quill with which Governor Allen signed the resolve giving Atty.-Gen. Warner greater powers and an additional $10,000 to conduct the Garrett investigation was presented to Warner at his request by the Governor.

Asked if he had read the newspaper reports of the investigation to date, the Governor replied he had not, owing to the press of business.

"However, I shall be interested to read the findings of the attorney-general when he makes them," he said.

Protection by Police Cost Him $50 Monthly

After this experience my relative, and not me, to protect himself —— and —— $50 a month and I would be able to get away with my business. For a year or more up to late 1927, I gave the relative $50 each month to be paid to —— and ——.

The officers would not take the money personally from me, but if I was a day late with the payments to ——, one or the other of them would call me on the phone and threaten a raid. Several times they met me on the street and demanded to know if I had made the payments to ——.

About two years ago I had a customer named ——, who did business under the name of —— in Roxbury. I made a delivery there at one time as a raid was being made by the headquarters liquor squad. I was arrested and got —— again and he took the rap and was fined $100. I retained Atty. —— to defend this case for me at the suggestion of Lieut. ——, and —— got $200 from me.

My last experience in the business happened just before Tom Kippur in 1928, when I was caught by the liquor squad as I was making a delivery to —— on Chelsea st., Charlestown. —— suggested to me that I retain —— son of —— and said his fee would be $500 and guaranteed acquittal. We compromised on $300.

Hovey. I was found guilty and fined $300 and given six months probation.

—— of Dorchester was in the business and kept his stock in an apartment downstairs occupied by a relative. Officer —— raided this place about two years ago and arrested Mrs. —— She paid a fine of $100 and costs.

Another tribute I was compelled to pay was to Officer —— of Station ——. From time to time he intimidated me by searching my car. Although he never found anything, I figured that he could get me sooner or later, so one day I approached him and said we ought to be friends, and asked him how much it was going to cost me.

We agreed on $10 a week, which I paid him for some time. When things got bad with my business I had to cut it down to $5 a week and finally stopped it altogether, when I got out of the business unable to stand the pressure.

As a result of my experiences in the bootlegging business I have not one dollar left today. I have been in Boston 36 years. If I had saved a dollar a year I would now have $36, but I haven't even got that.

The only direct contact I had with Officer —— occurred two years ago. I was driving my open car along Tremont st., near Castle sq., when a big yellow truck drove alongside and edged me to the sidewalk. I thought it was a hold up. Two men jumped off the truck, one of them Officer ——. I asked them what they wanted. "We're looking for booze," said ——.

They searched my car and, finding no booze, drove off.

The bootleggers of this town have been squeezed and bled to death to enrich certain policemen. I have a son going through college and sometimes I think he is wasting his time. If he wants to attain financial independence he ought to get on the police force.

I know hundreds of men in the racket who, like myself, have been bled white. Just think of it, this morning I had to borrow money to pay a $3.28 light bill.

I know men who made as high as $10,000 a week in the racket who are broke today. Men who decorated their wives with diamonds now are decorated with mortgages.

A relative of mine, by marriage, made a lot of money, all of which he paid out for protection. Today he owns a little property and is tickled to death that he can now use his rentals toward paying off his mortgages, money he formerly would have been compelled to give up.

Take the brothers. They used to have a place on Massachusetts ave., and some extent.

Paid Grafters a Fortune

David Goldstein, former bootlegger, who tells his own story in today's Boston Evening American. He alleges he was "bled to death" by police and lawyer grafters. He is shown reading a copy of the American containing exclusive revelations of the local graft ring now under investigation. (Staff photo.)

20 INJURED IN PRISON RIOT

Jefferson City, Mo., March 27 (AP)—Gas bombs and clubs were used to rout 750 convicts from the dining hall of the Missouri Penitentiary today and quell a second mutinous outbreak in as many days.

About 20 prisoners were injured in the clash with prison guards and a company of Missouri National guardsmen.

Witnesses Flee City as Garrett Case Probe Is Widened in Scope

ment of "Frankie" Duris, whose name is in Brookline, came out of a clear sky as the activities of the Government authorities increased under pressure developed at the Garrett probe.

He is charged with evasion of federal income tax. His home is in Brookline, where he lives with his wife and three children. "No known occupation" was listed on the indictments.

HIS BROTHER SHOT

"Frankie" is a brother of Tommy Duris, who was shot about three years ago during a meeting of sporting characters in the old Brewster hotel.

Solomon and Carroll are en route to California. Rumors whose names have entered Warner's price of the pensioned liquor raider have left the city or are making plans to leave immediately.

Meanwhile, investigation of Carroll's and Solomon's reported financial interests, the raided Cotton Club and charges that Boston police balked the sortie and beat a prohibition agent at that Back Bay night resort yesterday morning overshadowed all other developments of the Garrett investigation.

Under way is a searching inquiry of charges that police present in the Cotton Club first claimed the federal raiders admission and then blackjacked one of their number when they finally entered, seizing liquor and arresting five men.

SEEK CLUB OWNERS

The investigation directed at ownership of the club was handicapped considerably by the absence of Carroll and Solomon.

Carroll left Boston for the West last night. It is said he will go through to California to book fights for Jimmy Maloney, the South Boston heavyweight in his boxing stable.

Solomon, a prominent figure in Boston's sporting life and once a prisoner at Atlanta penitentiary in connection with a drug case, is reported to be in Hot Springs, Ark., also en route to California.

Mrs. Anna Leary, manager of Anna's Spa, City Hall ave., another establishment reported owned by Carroll, is reported at the Spa to be absent "for a few days." It has been reported that she was on an extended vacation.

Her name, as well as that of one of her waitresses, has entered the Garrett investigation in information given to Warner.

Joe Lyons, another prospective witness and said to be a close friend of Garrett, is also reported absent from the city.

The important "mystery witness," identified today as Leo Turner, former chauffeur for John F. Mullen, "boy broker" who pleaded guilty to several charges in the Hotel Ritz conspiracy case, was again today a visitor at the attorney-general's office.

It was his third appearance on successive days in the company of State Detective John Stokes. Today he carried a bundle of papers which he left with the attorney-general.

POLICE AT CLUB

His identification as Mullen's chauffeur was an indication that the "boy broker" now in state prison will "come clean" with inside information of police graft in the Ritz case. Turner is understood to be one of the most important of the attorney-general's witnesses.

Announcement that tomorrow four women would be called to give "sensational testimony" was made today by Asst. Atty.-Gen. George Gurlin. They, too, may be called in connection with the Hotel Ritz case, which is scheduled to be the first "opened up" with resumption of the hearings.

New details of the Cotton Club raid, of charges and counter-charges following the disturbance which resulted when a squad of prohibition agents forced entrance, were revealed today.

The club, formerly the Lambs Club, is ostensibly owned by Louis Badaracco, operator of the Faneuil Hall Club, in Friend st., an all-night resort, and Eddie Betts, ex-scholastic football tackle and son of a former steward of Young's Hotel.

Carroll and Solomon are said to have supplied the financial backing for it, however.

All was orderly and peaceable at the club when Police Sergts. Harold Watkins and Frank McNabb and Special Officer Douglass of the Back Bay station, in plain clothes, dropped in for a periodic inspection, early yesterday.

While the police sergeants were in the club telephone at police headquarters rang and the speaker said he was Maj. M. E. Goodenough, deputy prohibition director for New England.

Maj. Goodenough demanded that he be allowed to talk with Police Commissioner Wilson. (This was at 2 a. m.) The man on the switchboard said that could not be done, as the commissioner's number is unlisted and cannot be given out without his permission.

Then Maj. Goodenough demanded that he be allowed to talk with Supt. Crowley, but the same answer was given. Finally the federal officer consented to talk with Capt. John S. Ridlon, stationed at headquarters and in charge of all precincts during the night.

To Capt. Ridlon, the major asserted that he had attempted to get into the Cotton Club, but had been prevented by Sergts. Watkins and McNabb.

Maj. Goodenough later denied to a police reporter that he had made such a telephone call, but this denial was before Capt. Ridlon had made his report).

NEW BANKBOOKS

Maj. Goodenough also told Capt. Ridlon that he believed one of the officers was drinking.

Capt. Ridlon telephoned Lieut. Thormer at the Back Bay station and told him of the conversation. Lieut. Thormer said his three officers were out on plain clothes inspection, but that he would send the wagon and some men to see what the difficulty was.

Between the time of the telephone call and the arrival of the wagon, however, the battle in the club had been staged and Sergts. McNabb and Watkins and Special Officer Douglass were talking with one of the club attaches when 10 men suddenly burst through the door, scattered and rushed from table to table.

Special Officer Douglass, a comparatively new man in that division of police work, says he believed the invaders were holdup men or racketeers and seized one of them and demanded to know his business.

Before the captive could say, two of his mates swung on Officer Douglass, and he went to the floor—groggy.

Sergts. McNabb and Watkins drew their clubs, rapped the two prohibition agents and took them prisoners.

FIGHT STARTED

Then a free for-all started, with club attaches and patrons engaging the remaining invaders, whose numbers had been augmented by two men, later learned to be prohibition agents, who have been regular patrons of the club two or three nights a week for the past 10 weeks.

The melee was finally halted and five men then arrested by the federals. They were Eddie Betts, who acted as a waiter; Nathaniel M. Clark, Andrew Clark, Joseph Levine and Joseph Kelley. Kelley and the Clark brothers were later held on a charge of possessing and selling liquor.

The remaining three were held on a charge of aiding and abetting them and with assault upon the agents.

In the clothing of Kelley, the federal agents claim they found two "Hub" liquor bearing the name "Solomon." One was a bill from a Chelsea garage for automobile repairs and the other was a bill from a Hub hotel.

The two prohibition agents struck by Sergts. McNabb and Watkins were Otis Vaughn and Charles Donnelan. They made formal complaint of the clubbing later in the day.

As a result, Sergt. Watkins and Capt. John M. Anderson of the Back Bay station were summoned to police headquarters and were in conference with Supt. Crowley. Capt. Anderson and Maj. Goodenough also held a two-hour conference at prohibition headquarters in Franklin st.

The Cotton Club raid and the liquor padlock proceedings brought against the Boston Lodge of Elks were part of a federal "cleanup" of Hub conditions instituted on order of Asst. U. S. Atty. Elihu D. Stone as a result of the Garrett investigation.

Federal authorities, it was revealed by Asst. U. S. Atty. Hubert C. Thompson, are following closely every development of the probe.

PUSH HOTEL CASE

When the public hearings resume tomorrow, Warner will begin presentation of a huge amount of important data relevant to the new legislative order under which he is now working. He is prepared to continue the hearings with a reasonable continuity of the evidence through next week.

Mrs. Garrett's brother-in-law, Alfred H. Brissenden, will probably be the first called. If Brissenden again refuses to testify, then Warner will seek a court order and the question of constitutionality may be taken to the Supreme Court.

Such an eventuality will not interrupt the proceedings under the present plans. The Attorney-General has other witnesses ready to take the stand.

Warner will launch into the Hotel Ritz case, calling Mullen, Albert K. Sidlinger and Nicholas Cocklins, all now in jail; John F. Sullivan, former proprietor of the [illegible] hostelry; Raymond Walsh and [illegible] witnesses ready to [illegible] Re-

COURT ACTION TO PADLOCK ELKS' CLUB

Proceedings by Federal Official to Close Club Rooms

Padlock proceedings were brought today in federal court against the Boston Lodge of Elks on complaint that the clubrooms in the Elks Hotel building constitute a liquor nuisance.

In a bill in equity filed by Asst. U. S. Atty. Elihu D. Stone, he seeks to close for one year the fifth floor and a floor between the fifth and sixth floors—known as floor 5½—as a result of evidence gathered in the past five weeks.

The bill seeks to restrain Boston Lodge No. 10, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, the Boston Elks Hotel Co., and four men from "continuing or permitting continuance of such a common nuisance."

The men named in the bill are Jacob Gordon, Edward O. Beasley, John A. DeCourcy and Thomas F. Digan.

The padlock petition sets forth that the Boston Lodge of Elks is owner of the building and that the business conducted on the two floors cited is conducted by the Elks and the four men named.

Both floors are fitted out as a club, the petition states, and there is a place for selling liquor. Liquor has been kept there, it is charged, and has been "sold, possessed, manufactured and bartered in violation of the national prohibition act."

It is cited in the petition that on Feb. 19 one and a half pints of liquor were unlawfully sold on the premises; that on Feb. 24 one pint and two ounces of liquor were unlawfully sold; that on Feb. 27 one bottle was sold, on March 1 two pints and two ounces of liquor were sold and that on March 3 the following liquors were unlawfully possessed on the premises: 87 bottles of ale, four bottles of porter, 42 bottles of gin and 25 quarts of whiskey.

The padlock petition is returnable in United States district court April 7, when a hearing will be held.

Boston police department ·

Lillian W. Hatch, who held the Ritz cloakroom concession, and who was Garrett's landlady both before and after she obtained it, will probably be recalled.

It is in the Hotel Ritz case that the Attorney-General is expected to show that members of the police department preyed upon liquor and vice traffic, fattening their bankrolls with graft money.

In information given to Warner, Brissenden's name has been linked with the hotel, and Sidlinger has promised to testify of meetings there of the "bagmen" for the police.

The newest phase of the inquiry, that concerning the whereabouts of liquor seized by police officials and never turned over to the State, is not yet ready for presentation. Information has been unearthed tending to show that large quantities of seized liquor found their way into the possession of the so-called "king" of Boston liquor traffic and was eventually resold through his chain of speakeasies.

Special Asst. Atty-Gen Damon E. Hall has checked the court records of a case in which the reputed bootleg "king" was balked in his attempt to prevent by bribery the seizure of 7200 gallons of alcohol at a Columbus ave. warehouse in 1927.

A related phase is the study of liquor analyses records said to give further evidence of collusion between police and bootleggers. These records show that Junior State Chemist William Crawford furnished the police with analyses showing high percentages of alcohol in seized liquor whose owners were never prosecuted in court.

The investigation may reach the point where it will be shown that Crawford's discharge from the health department last year resulted from the refusal to "play ball" with grafters.

He's Leo Turner

The Garrett case "mystery witness" was identified today as Leo Turner, former chauffeur for John F. Mullen, "boy broker," who pleaded guilty to several charges in the Hotel Ritz conspiracy case.

MARCHAND TO TELL HOW INDIAN MODEL LOVED HIM FOR 10 YEARS

IS EXPECTED TO ESTABLISH HER MOTIVE

Sculptor's Five Children Are to Hear the Tale of Lila's Infatuation for Him

Buffalo, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—"The Indians who have stalked the stage set by the state for the murder trial of Lila Jmerson gave way today to the only white man in the case, Henri Marchand, artist sculptor of Indian figures and husband of the slain woman.

From him the Erie county prosecutor, Guy B. Moore, planned to bring evidence which would definitely establish a motive for the plot culminating in the murder of Clothilde Marchand.

He expected to bring from Marchand the story of Lila's 10-year infatuation and have him tell what he could to support the state's theory that Lila, playing upon the credulity of the old Nancy Bowen by implanting in her superstitious mind the idea that Mrs. Marchand was a witch, induced the old woman to slay.

Marchand had declared himself ready to appear as a witness against the woman. He made the declaration in the face of a probability that his words from the witness stand would fall upon the ears of his five children who have appeared in court as potential witnesses each day of the trial.

The prosecutor also was expected to ask Henri, Jr., the 12-year-old boy, to tell what he knew of the murder and give an account of how he found the body of his mother on his return from school on the afternoon of March 6.

Defense Atty. John V. Maloney cross-examined Nancy regarding her superstitious beliefs after the old witness explained she was sure Mrs. Marchand was a "witch." She said she asked Mrs. Marchand just before she hit her with the hammer whether the letter was a witch and committed the murder, for which she will later also go to trial, immediately after receiving a smiling affirmative.

Nancy described how Anson Jimerson, father of Lila, went through the traditional ceremony of painting the stumps in order "to kill the witch."

She admitted being a relative by marriage to Victor Two Guns, whose wife had died. Nancy believed death was caused because she was "bewitched."

Then she left the stand and was taken back to her cell to await her own trial for murder.

Germans to Get Back $12,500,000 in Stocks

Washington, March 27 (AP) — Settlement of a suit with the British government whereby approximately $12,500,000 worth of stocks attached during the World War will be returned to German owners, was announced today by Howard Sutherland, alien property custodian.

Paris, March 27 (AP)—The Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune said today that Lita Grey Chaplin, divorced wife of Charles Chaplin, the comedian, suggested to a reporter as she disembarked from the Aquitania that she and Chaplin might become reconciled.

She said that if a reconciliation were effected it would be because of their two children.

"The link of two children is hard to break," she said. "It is even stronger than personal feelings."

$150,000 School Ruins; Planning to Carry On

The ruins of the fire were still warm when Supt. Hubert Gilgan got the high school faculty together and arranged for carrying on in new quarters next Monday. Meanwhile a forced holiday is enjoyed by the pupils.

PROVINCETOWN SCHOOL BURNS

Providence, March 27—An overheated furnace in the basement of the local high school is believed by Fire Chief James H. H. Barnett to have caused the fire which wiped out that building and a neighboring residence and for a time menaced the entire town.

The total of the damage has not yet been computed, but Herbert Gilgan, school superintendent, placed the school loss at $150,000, while Bartholomew King, whose home adjoining was demolished placed his loss at $6000.

Firemen from Wellfleet, Hyannis and Chatham aided the local department and hundreds of volunteers in a bucket brigade extinguished grass fires in the vicinity.

Supt. Gilgan announced that the 170 pupils of the high school would be accommodated temporarily at the Governor Bradford School next Monday.

Sparks, carried by high winds, threatened for a time to ignite scores of homes nearby and firemen raced from one section of the town to another to curb incipient blazes.

Grass and shrubbery around the Pilgrim monument caught fire soon after the school building blaze broke through the roof and for a time it was feared the flames and smoke would injure the historic shaft.

King and his wife were aroused by the reflection of the flames on the windows of their room. They lost most of their personal effects and house furnishings.

Walter Pollock, 35, a Hyannis fireman, suffered a broken leg when the truck in which he was racing from Hyannis was ditched in South Wellfleet. He was taken to the Cape Cod Hospital. Others pitched off the apparatus in the accident proceeded to the scene of the blaze, having suffered only a shaking-up.

The blaze broke out in the school shortly before midnight, several hours after the janitor had banked the furnace for the night.

Mrs. James Baker's Auto Is Recovered

An auto found on West Seventh st., South Boston, today, by Patrolman Griffin, proved to be the property of Mrs. Mary S. Baker of Witwell st., Quincy, wife of Officer James "Two-Gun" Baker, nemesis of speeders and automobile thieves.

The car was stolen last night for a joy ride, police said.

SEE DEFEAT OF FRENCH PACT IN SENATE

George Says Both Parties Are Against Plan; 'Big 5' Near Accord on Security Guarantee

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Senator George of Georgia, a Democratic member of the Senate foreign relations committee, expressed the opinion today that a consultative pact, now mentioned in connection with the London naval conference, would meet stubborn opposition in the Senate.

Such a pact, he said, would not be well received by either Republicans or Democrats.

Also, he added, he thought there was a definite feeling in the Senate that even a consultative pact might be construed as involving military intervention and that it might be misinterpreted.

He added he thought such a pact not only would meet with stubborn opposition but would be regarded by Senators generally "as an unwarranted step."

Plenary Session in Week; Security Treaty Is Near

London, March 27 (AP)—The chief delegates to the naval conference, meeting at St. James' Palace today, decided to hold a plenary session a week from tomorrow.

It was expected the question of a security pact for the benefit of France would come up at that time.

In the meantime important negotiations are understood to be proceeding among the British and French and British and Italians regarding a security pact.

Prime Minister MacDonald is said to have told the other delegation chiefs today he had discussed the Japanese situation with the Japanese delegation, and that while they considered the Japanese Government was taking considerable time to decide regarding the agreement with the United States and Great Britain, both were hopeful of final adjustment.

Foreign Minister Briand, upon whom so much depends if a five-power agreement is to be reached, was in good humor and joked with MacDonald during the meeting.

The Americans indicated at headquarters that they felt more optimistic today over prospects.

An experts' committee has been established to draft a Mediterranean pact which will be a new guarantee of French security and still not commit Great Britain beyond the obligations already applied in Article XI and XVI of the League of Nations Covenant.

STYLES LEAD TO GIRL'S ARREST

Providence, March 27—Her desire for pretty clothing led to the arrest of Miss Cora Beaupre, 29-year-old girl of Pawtucket, today. She was held on a charge of passing three counterfeit $20 bills.

The girl was arraigned before Commissioner Fred A. Otis and held under $5000 bonds, which she furnished.

Witnesses testified that two of the three bills were directly traced to Miss Beaupre, in a sale made to her by a salesman.

The girl is charged with being a member of a gang allegedly operating in Boston, Providence, Pawtucket and other cities. Five were arrested on similar charges in the past ten days, and all pleaded not guilty.

Boy Guilty in Joy Ride; Girls Freed

Charged with theft of an automobile, using a car without authority and operating it in a dangerous manner, Angus D. McGillvary, 17, of Connell st., Roslindale, was in Charlestown court today. He is one of two youths alleged to have been with two girls in an automobile that struck Thomas Lafayette of Bunker Hill st., Charlestown, janitor of the East Dedham police station.

The youths fled. The girls, Mary Donovan, 17, of Concord ave., Somerville, and Edna Daly, 17, of Columbia st., Cambridge, were exonerated today and discharged. Young McGillvary was given three months in the House of Correction and appealed. On the other two charges he was held for the Grand Jury.

$1,000,000 Hotel Fire

Long Beach, N. J., March 27 (AP)—Fire early today destroyed the $1,000,000 Hotel Lafayette. It was unoccupied. The origin of the fire was not determined. When the blaze was discovered it had spread to all four floors of the frame and concrete structure of 200 rooms.

TUNNEY 'LOVE' SUIT DROPPED

Bridgeport, Ct., March 27 (AP)—John S. Fogarty of Fort Worth, Tex., today withdrew his $500,000 alienation of affections suit against James J. (Gene) Tunney.

The withdrawal was accepted by Judge Edward M. Yeomans.

Counsel for Tunney said in court that no monetary settlement had been made.

Fogarty sued upon a claim that Tunney had alienated the affections of his wife, Katherine King Fogarty, now residing in Boston.

Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty lived at 180 Commonwealth ave., Boston, for several months, according to counsel for Tunney. The address in question is an apartment hotel. Officials there said she had returned to Fort Worth.

Urges Seizure of Ginger Beverages

Providence, March 27—A demand for the immediate seizure of all jamaica ginger beverages in this city was voiced today by Albert Fenner, state assayer of liquor, and Edward P. Reidy, director of public aid, following the discovery of poisons in more than 50 samples of ginger extract.

An epidemic of ginger paralysis has been rampant here and Fenner declares he has identified wood alcohol as a basic constituent of ginger drinks. He recommended the sale of ginger ale to be stopped immediately.

SIDLINGER TELLS OF FAKE RAIDS STAGED BY POLICE

Further revelations of graft and vice rampant in Boston officialdom are contained in the third article by Albert K. Sidlinger appearing in today's Boston Evening American. Sidlinger, convicted in the notorious Hotel Ritz case, blames his downfall on the ring which has reaped huge fortunes through corrupt practices.

By ALBERT K. SIDLINGER

"Flash" rates, which included the "tip-off" on impending raids, were paid in addition to regular protection fees to the Boston police by proprietors of speakeasies and questionable resorts.

It was a sort of gilt-edged protection—a guarantee that even though the raiding squads went through the motions of a raid, it protected the raided joint against the finding of anything incriminating.

Keepers of questionable resorts and speakeasies were not the only victims of crooked Boston police officers and lawyers. They had a lucrative field among thieves and receivers of stolen goods.

One of the officers who piled his trade in the courthouse had the reputation of recovering almost any kind of loot stolen in Boston—for a price.

The thieves and fences were well known to this thrifty officer. He made it his business to get acquainted and keep in touch with their activities.

HAND ALWAYS OUT

When a job was pulled he declared himself "in," and woe unto the crook who didn't come across. This officer had the faculty of declaring himself "in" on a lot of splits.

Of course, he had confederates among other officers, and a few lawyers. That was the distressing part of the racket to him. He had to consider the "split."

So he tried to make his trade as exclusive as possible, but the most active thieves and heaviest fences were wise to that, and exacted sort of a guarantee that they'll be taken care of properly before they came across.

Occasionally one would get hooked after apparently having been fixed. That is, they would pay after being arrested, in the expectation of getting off with a heavy fine at the most. Anything in preference to a jail sentence.

I have in mind the case of a proprietor of a clothing store arrested for receiving stolen goods. The thrifty officer interviewed him and sandbagged him for $500 and steered the case to Atty. —— I don't know how much the lawyer got.

Well, the fence went into court a lot poorer, but heartened by the firm belief that he would be back at his store in a few hours.

Imagine his embarrassment when the court sent him down to the island for nine months. The copper hit a foul ball on that one, but the proprietor didn't get his money back.

This case is in the hands of the attorney-general.

There were a number of cases like this among owners of resorts and speakeasies. They made regular payments to the police for protection and felt quite secure. Then without warning the very officers who had been paid off a day or two previously would hop in and pull a raid.

The more affluent, however, could get gilt edged protection by paying "flash" rates.

For example, a certain speakeasy is doing a thriving business.

The owner is paying the special rate and he has nothing to worry about. The word goes out that the place is operating too boldly and for the sake of appearance it had better be knocked off.

The raiding squad goes into court and with all the dignity of the law, applies for a raiding warrant. But somehow, somewhere, somebody gets into a telephone booth and shoots the flash.

Who would be the most likely person to have the telephone number of that speakeasy or resort and send the warning so that the place could "dump" in the very few minutes to spare before the raiding squad arrived?

In a report to Commissioner Wilson, Garrett complained that there was a "leak" somewhere. He said that many times when he applied for a warrant persons would meet him outside the courthouse only a few minutes later and tell him just where he was going. There's something to think about.

LOOTED BY POLICE

The following case is typical of police sand-bagging.

One of the most popular saloonkeepers in the days before prohibition was ——. His nick-name was known from coast to coast. He was honorable, genial and generous to a fault.

Some time ago he had a place on —— st. and many of his old customers gathered there to talk over the good old days. But the new days were a little too swift for the old fellow. For some reason, or other he wasn't able to make the grade to complete security.

One day he pealed off $300 from his roll and turned it over for protection. He didn't get a receipt, of course, but he knew the officer he paid and knew he could take care of things O. K.

On the strength of that deal the old fellow ordered $300 of choice liquors. He wanted his customers to have good stuff and he never handled hootch.

Well, the choice stuff was delivered the very next day. And it had only been in the place a very few hours when a raiding squad crashed in and carted —— and his stock to police headquarters.

Then there was the case of —— who was known to hundreds of traveling men through his connection with a local company. When he left that company he took over a certain hotel and was doing a profitable business there.

It became too profitable, however, and a certain police official decided he must have a "cut." He got it, but he wasn't satisfied. He wanted more and more and then some more.

Finally —— decided the load was too heavy, so he gave up the hotel business and moved uptown, where he opened a club. The club was patronized only by men. It had quite a lay-out—a long bar, easy chairs, a piano, a radio, and all that sort of thing.

He wanted his customers to be comfortable and he served them with excellent liquor. He built up quite a trade. He was making up the losses he suffered in the hotel and his wife had four children were in comfortable circumstances.

The rum boss of the district looked on ——'s club with envy. It was turning over a lot of money and the trade preferred ——'s place to the chain operated by the big boss.

DRIVEN OUT BY BOSS

He sent word out to —— that he was cutting in too heavily and he would have to split with the boss.

He threatened to tip the cops on him and drive him out of the district. —— was no match for the big boss. He knew the big boss had the cops under his thumb and could make good his threat.

So —— had to take it on the chin and divvy up. There was nothing else to do, with all his money invested in the club.

Once he was in, the big boss rode —— hard and it wasn't long before —— was out on the street. To make certain that —— wouldn't open another place and take the boss' trade away, they delivered an ultimatum.

They told —— that he'd have to confine his stock to a gallon of alky per day which he would have to purchase from the big boss. And they told him to confine his trade to a dingy little dump on the avenue.

He operated there for a while but it was a sorry comedown for the big, stuff man who entertained his guests so lavishly in the hotel.

They broke him financially and physically, and he died recently in a Boston hospital without a dime.

(This is the concluding article by Sidlinger, who will appear as a star witness at the Warner Inquiry. Nicholas Cockings, fellow prisoner of Sidlinger, who will testify about the collections from keepers of disreputable places, will shed further light on the notorious Ritz case in the Boston Evening American tomorrow.)

Deaf Woman Wills Ears to Science to Aid Others

Chicago, March 27 (AP)—Science will get the ears of Miss Abby Horner — seventy, wealthy and deaf since she was seven years old.

At her death, by an odd bequest she signed, her ears will go to Chicago Laryngological and Otological society.

Dr. Austin A. Hayden, praised the bequest saying:

"Until science can make microscopic studies of the ears of deaf persons after death, we shall remain in the dark as to why one out of every ten persons suffers from this malady."

Churches Have Prayers For Safety of Fliers

Editor Boston American:

Contrary to what that speaker said in a Boston Church Sunday, the liturgy of the Episcopal Church has special prayers for the safety of aviators while flying, found in the revised prayer book.

The Roman Catholic Church has this air machine blessing approved by the Congregation of Rites, March 24, 1920 inserted in the Roman Ritual:

"O God, who hast ordained all things for thine own and devised all the elements of this world for the human race, bless, we beseech thee, this machine consigned to the air, that it may serve for the praise and glory of thy name and free from all injury and danger expedite human interests and foster heavenly aspirations in the minds of all who use it. Through Christ our Lord, Amen."

I am very glad to have the use of your column to correct these wrong impressions about prayers in churches for aviators.

New England Girls of 200 Years Ago

Editor Boston American:

During this Tercentenary, I have been looking over old writings. The other day in my garret in an old trunk I found out that men of nearly 200 years ago, recognized as broadminded, intelligent and sincere, emphasized opposition to girls being taught either to read or write. Just think of the men of today in face of this opposition. Then I still further found out that in the early part of the 19th century custom did not permit a girl to read her graduating essay in public. It was read by a male relative. All this in Massachusetts and New England.

Women ought to "whoop up" this Tercentenary and just admire the men of this generation who would not put any young women of this generation to this stinging humiliation of a century ago. Men have improved wonderfully and this year will bring it out in reading past history.

What's the Best Way to Welcome Byrd?

Editor Boston American:

Your paper said something about making a big demonstration over the arrival of Rear-Admiral Byrd with his 40 men in Boston. They are back to civilization after spending 14 months in the rigors of the Antarctic. Boston should be real proud of this hero, for he is a hero. I should like to hear from your many readers what shape this demonstration should take.

I think it should be something unique and different from a big dinner, speeches and a lot of display of bunting, and ticker tape thrown over our streets. What would be the best way to honor this hero? Let us hear what readers of your paper would suggest.

Better Take Seaplane In Case of Flood

Editor Boston American:

Rev. Dr. E. J. Helms, formerly of New England, but now located in California, has just returned from taking an aeroplane trip to Mt. Sinai, where Moses received the 10 commandments. He says he found fragments of the commandments, as many of them had been broken. With another twinkle in his eye, he said he was going to make another trip by aeroplane in Palestine, but this time it will be to Mt. Ararat where Noah's ark rested after the flood. He believes he may run across remnants of some of the animals that had a free ride in the ark.

New Version of Oil On Troubled Waters

Editor Boston American:

That old adage of pouring oil upon troubled waters is now about to be put on the shelf.

Dr. John B. May, head of the State division of ornithology, says the dumping of waste oil in Boston harbor and along the Massachusetts coast, coats the feathers of water birds and reduces them to a pitiable condition, which will eventually end in their deaths. These gulls on our sea coast are protected by law. You can't shoot them. You can't oil them either. Anyway, something is affecting them. They are dying. Army engineers, who are in charge of the waters concerning which the complaints have come, discount the oil story.

Don't pour oil upon troubled waters is the new version.

SOVIET PLANES TO FLY TO POLE

Copenhagen, March 27 (INE)—Soviet airmen are planning to fly over the North Pole this spring, according to the president of the Polar Year committee.

The airmen will be led by Prof. Samoilovitch, who believes the air routs over the pole, from Europe to America, will be possible.

Prof. Samoilovitch will travel to within 200 miles of the pole in the icebreaker Krassin, and will then use airplanes. The expedition will cost about $1,000,000.

TINKHAM TO BE HEARD FIRST IN LOBBY PROBE

Washington, March 27 (AP)—An investigation of wet and dry organizations is planned by the Senate lobby committee.

Chairman Caraway of the committee said today the inquiry probably would begin as soon as the investigation into persons and organizations interested in Muscle Shoals was completed Tuesday.

Caraway said the first witness in the prohibition inquiry probably would be Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, who has asked to be heard by the lobby committee.

After that, the chairman said representatives of some wet and dry organizations probably would be heard.

Caraway said the inquiry in all probability would embrace the Anti-Saloon League and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Tinkham has urged the committee to inquire into the activities of the Federal Farm Council of Churches and the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals. He asked that he be given an opportunity to appear before the committee to support his contention that the organizations should be investigated.

A decision on whether the committee will investigate these organizations will be made after Tinkham has testified.

TODAY

the emerald hills golf course, outside the city, at 3 o'clock this afternoon, three 17-year-old San Diego high school boys tried out their amphibian flier, first made to land on water. W. L. Van Dusen, experienced pilot, took off and landed the plane quietly, on a small pond, then one of the high school boys repeated the feat. The three boys, deserving credit, are Bill Dickinson, Allan Essery and Joe Thurston.

An hour later, on the Lindbergh Field, where Lindbergh started his immortal flight, Frank Hawks gave an exhibition of gliding, towed by a heavier than air plane.

Lieut. Norman Goddard, a good flier, was recently killed trying that kind of flight. But that does not deter such a flier as Hawks, who recently flew from Los Angeles to Long Island, ocean-to-ocean, in 17 hours and 38 minutes, a world record.

Smiling cheerfully, he sat in his long, strongly-built glider designed by Franklin, a parachute strapped to his back, for "regularity." "But," says Hawks, "a parachute is not needed in gliding. You might as well come down with your glider and land on top of that."

Pilot J. B. Jernigin, Jr., taxis his plane along the sandy field dragging a light steel cable 500 feet long. Hawks hitches onto the cable towed by the airplane. The plane starts along the ground, dragging Hawks, and soon both are in the air, going 90 miles an hour. Hawks keeps his glider well above the plane to avoid the air rush from its propeller.

Three thousand five hundred feet up, Hawks drops the cable. Jernigin reels it in and the graceful glider goes off on its own account, flying upward, coming down, rising again, banking, turning on its side, finally coming down to earth at Hawks' command, and landing more lightly than a swan on water.

Next Sunday Hawks will start a glider trip from the Pacific to the Atlantic. Jernigin towing him. Franklin, the designer, going along. They will cover 2800 miles. The glider cutting loose to land at 61 cities on the way.

Over Central Park, in New York, Hawks will drop his cable for the last time on the trip, and glide on to his landing in Van Courtland Park, taking mail with him, and Jernigin, free of his tow, will land on Long Island.

Lindbergh, who should know, says the glider will train thousands of young fliers, with a minimum of danger, and teach experienced men how to build better planes. This afternoon, in the factory where the Spirit of St. Louis was built, Hawley Bolus, who superintended that construction, shows you a beautiful glider just finished for Lindbergh, who will be in San Diego tomorrow.

The new Lindbergh glider, pure white, much lighter than any bird in proportion to size and more graceful, has in landing a ratio of 35 to one. This means that if Lindbergh were up in it, only 1000 feet, he could glide 33,000 feet in any direction before landing, and without any sustaining wind.

Hot here today, hotter than it will be in July, for this whole coast is a summer resort.

You read that a blizzard rages in Chicago, with 18 inches of snow, and here with the sun beating down, fields covered with yellow, purple and crimson flowers, you realize that this is a variegated country.

Rum-Runner Slain on Mexican Border

El Paso, Tex., March 27 (AP)—Guns of customs men here flashed in the darkness along the international border here for the 17th time this year, carrying death for Francisco Velarde, alleged liquor runner.

Velarde was killed last night by United States customs officers, who said he was struck by a charge of buckshot as he ran for his waiting automobile. A large amount of liquor was seized.

HUB MAN TELLS OF EINSTEIN'S NEW PROOF

Berlin, March 27 (AP)—Prof. Albert Einstein has presented to the Prussian Academy of Sciences a new paper he has written with Dr. W. Mayer on two strictly static solutions of the field equations of his uniform field theory. It connects gravitation and electricity.

These solutions were described as follows: These field equations can be rigorously solved in two cases. The first case is that of a spherically symmetrical field in space, for example, the external field of an electrically charged sphere of fixed mass. The other case is that of the static field of any number of uncharged mass particles at rest with respect to one another.

Tech Professor Explains Einstein's Solution

By Associated Press.

Einstein's first practical proof of some mysterious connection between gravitation and electricity is announced in his new paper.

His discovery of mathematical equations which he said prove that gravitation and electricity are related created a world sensation about a year ago. One of the great goals of science is to learn the connection between these two universal forces. Along with light, they affect every moment of human life.

Dr. M. S. Vallarta, assistant professor of physics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, today explained the importance of the Berlin announcement.

"It means," he said, "that Dr. Einstein has found from his latest equations both the laws of gravity and the laws of electricity. The same equation gives both of these laws correctly. This at least is the conclusion to be drawn from the brief description.

"By giving correctly both gravitational and electrical laws the educations seem to verify the existence of a connection between the two fundamental forces. This is the first time that a mathematical solution has worked. It is very important.

"An idea of the first solution—that of a spherically symmetrical field in space—may be obtained from comparisons with physical conditions upon the earth. The sphere conceived in the mathematical solution is not flattened at the poles like the earth, but is perfectly round. With such a globe the pull of the gravitation would be the same everywhere at a given distance above its surface. The electrical forces of such a globe—assumed to be electrically charged—would likewise be symmetrical. It is to the gravitational and electrical forces of such a globe that Einstein has applied his field equations.

"The second solution is not so important, being in the nature of a confirmation."

Whipped Pupil

Joseph Tresall, Jr., who, it is charged by his father, was whipped and knocked out by Principal Charles M. Robinson of Lincoln school, Hingham. (Staff photo.)

SAYS PRINCIPAL K.O.'D SON

Joseph Tresall, Sr., of South Pleasant st., South Hingham, filed a complaint with the Hingham school committee last night alleging that his son, 13, had been knocked out by a blow from Principal Charles M. Robinson of the Lincoln school.

According to his story, he went to the school to take home his son, who had been held after school to make up work lost through a two days' absence caused by illness. On entering the school yard, school children told him that his son was being whipped.

He rushed to the principal's office, where he found Joseph, Jr., just regaining consciousness under the ministrations of Esther Smith, the school nurse, and Robinson, he declares, Robinson characterized the alleged assault as "an ordinary school punishment" and "a big joke," Tresall said.

MAINE G. O. P. PLEDGES DRY LAW AID

Bangor, Me., March 27 (AP)—Running true to forecast and with no dissensions apparent the Republican State convention in short order today heard a telegram from President Hoover, adopted a platform, listened to three addresses and adjourned, two and one-half hours after it convened.

The platform, as adopted without debate, was the same except for slight changes in wordage as that approved by the State committee yesterday.

The 11 planks are:

Praised the Hoover administration.

Endorsed Governor Gardiner's administration.

Pledged support of 18th amendment.

Advocated establishment of state or federal parks in state.

Pledged continued careful administration of fish and game laws.

Endorsed highway program of last legislature.

Endorsed "sound development" of state's educational system.

Recommended study of taxation of forest lands.

Urged establishment of marketing organizations adapted to Maine conditions.

Urged consolidation of state departments.

Declared enactment of White-Jones merchant marine act justified by "immediate returns."

Declaring "the party has met the issues before the country with constructive measures," President Hoover in a telegram to the convention extended "cordial greetings to Republicans of Maine."

"The party's record of legislation and administratio justifies the continuing confidence of the people," the Chief Executive said.

Representative John E. Nelson, in the keynote address, appealed for a plank in the platform "so plain and unequivocal that he who runs may read that Republicans of Maine stand first, last and all the time in support of the national administration, President Hoover and the Federal Constitution."

Asserting that upon the basis of a study of New England agriculture now being made it was expected to "achieve for New England agriculture the same beneficial results as are planned for agriculture in other sections of the country," Secretary of Agriculture Hyde outlined to the convention the working of the farm marketing act and discussed agriculture as an industry.

Golden Haddock Is Brought Into Port by Hub Trawler

The first "golden" haddock in years reached the Fish Pier today aboard the steam trawler Cormorant.

The big specimen, weighing five pounds, measuring 20 inches and of a deep orange hue, was caught on Georges' Bank last Tuesday.

The golden haddock has always been a puzzle to fishermen and scientists. Today it was the cynosure of all eyes at the Commonwealth Fisheries store at the pier.

Later it was turned over to the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries at the pier for study.

SLAYERS ON WAY BACK TO CONN.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Within half an hour after they heard themselves sentenced to life imprisonment at Florida's State prison farm at Raiford today, Roland Lalone and Watson Moulthrope, escaped Connecticut convicts, were on their way to Connecticut to complete their sentences there.

They appeared before Circuit Judge Daniel A. Simmons this morning and were sentenced to life imprisonment for killing Detective W. D. Smith here in January.

DRY? MODIFY? REPEAL?

Boston American Prohibition Forum—$500 in Weekly Prizes

For Modification:

FOR GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

That the 18th amendment cannot and will not be enforced is clearly demonstrated by the futility of attempts in this direction during the last 10 years. Prohibition has created a new and highly organized criminal class which defies society and exerts a powerful influence in the corruption of courts, police and other governmental agencies.

It has promoted and encouraged a disrespect for the law and has thus immeasurably weakened all law-enforcement machinery.

Some form of modification, with provision for the manufacture and sale of liquor under strict government supervision, will stop the illicit making of poison, put out of business the organized bootleg rings and make possible further reduction in taxation through increased government revenue.

It would also be of inestimable benefit to the youth of today which has found a certain glamour in the possession of a silver hip flask and a "favorite bootlegger." Makes it possible for him to obtain, in an above-board manner what he has thought he wanted because prohibitive and the incentive has been removed.

E. P. S.

INSULT TO OUR SOLDIERS

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

I am in favor of modification of the dry law, if it could be regulated properly by the government.

This law has been a direct insult to the men who defended the country during the World War. Instead of helping us our friends who stayed at home deprived us of our just rights. If one does not care for liquor, he is not compelled to drink but why deprive others who choose differently?

The results of this law has been the selling of our small jails, but is has compelled us to spend more for asylums and hospitals. For our liquor is causing nothing else but blindness and insanity. Our children have even taken to it, which will take 100 years to ever bring back to a normal condition. Instead of the government receiving a revenue, our unnatural ized people are making fortunes.

You are certainly welcome to the use of my name for as one of the veterans of the World War I have nothing which I am ashamed of unless it is of what some people are trying to do to the most wonderful country in the world.

RAYMOND ALLEN KLINGER.

34 Summer St., Newburyport, Mass.

NATION IS SPLIT

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

I believe the Eighteenth Amendment should be modified because apparently it is impossible of enforcement, in its present shape.

In this nation we have been taught we rule ourselves but the Eighteenth Amendment has rent the country from North to South, East to West, split every strata of society—allowed the birth of the worst criminal class in the history of our states and made lawbreakers of our best citizens because the majority feel that this amendment was put across by sharp political and business tactics and thereby the citizens lost what they feel is part of their liberty.

Because of this our citizens are rebelling because they have not an even chance to undo what has been done for their so-called good.

The majority, in time, are always right. Why not allow them to correct the most unpopular and the most defied law of our country.

R. B. C., Boston.

SAVING OUR HOUSE

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

I have read, somewhere in the Bible, "The truth shall make you free"; also, "A house divided against itself must fall."

We are not and cannot be free while crime and lawbreaking of every description undermine the very foundations of our institutions. Let every citizen, legally, be free to have his glass of beer or wine if he so chooses.

Repeal the 18th Amendment or modify it.

Our country symbolizes a house—a home—in which the members of the house are at present divided between themselves. Shall it fall?

Let every member of the house vote on the question which divides them.

Let the majority rule, so that individual freedom may be extended to every member of our house and it shall not fall.

C. E.

BEER NO DISGRACE

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

Total prohibition is a disgrace.

To allow the sale of liquors is still worse.

The reason why I say that total prohibition is a disgrace is for the following reasons:

Force, as we have experienced it for the last ten years, doesn't work. No man wants his rights and liberties suppressed; brutal force has created chaos. Man needs education, not force.

To allow the sale of liquors is still worse, because man is not civilized yet; he does not know when to stop. This creates family dishonor. A man when he is drunk is inferior to a beast.

I prefer to see the money that the government spends to enforce prohibition spent to educate the people of the United States.

In my opinion, I believe that a good glass of beer would not harm anyone.

COSIMO CARVOTTA.

East Boston.

SOONER THE BETTER

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

The sooner we have modification, the better for all concerned.

Enough said.

H. L. H., Charlestown.

To Judge Your Prohibition Letters

PROF. THOMAS NIXON CARVER

Prof. Thomas Nixon Carver, of the political economy department at Harvard University, is an internationally known authority on economics; he is a Fellow of the Royal Economic Society of England. In 1916 was elected president of the American Economic Association. He will judge letters favoring enforcement of prohibition laws.

MRS. MABELLE A. KELLEY

Mrs. Mabelle A. Kelley of Watertown, formerly of Hudson, Mass., is president of the Women's Democratic Club of Massachusetts, Inc., and a charter member; was member of the Democratic State Committee of Massachusetts; in Hudson she was the first woman to run for the Legislature. She will judge letters favoring modification of prohibition laws.

JULIAN CODMAN

Julian Codman, vice-president and counsel of the Constitutional Liberty League; graduate of Harvard; in 1926 conducted the hearings against prohibition before the Senate judiciary committee; is a national officer of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment; World War veteran. Letters favoring repeal of law will be judged by Mr. Codman.

"OLD SOAKS" DYING FAST

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

I am in favor of prohibition, because it is the best thing for the majority of the people. It is true many mistakes are made under the existing law, but after a while the "Old Soaks" will have died unnatural deaths and the rising generation will have no hankering for intoxicating drink as a beverage.

It is true also that the "bootlegger" grows fat on his illicit trade, but the fault lies with those who patronize him, and not with prohibition.

Homes are happier, wives and mothers have more comforts and children are much better off, than when there was a "rum-shop" on every corner, and husbands and mothers' sons brought home a load every Saturday night, that wasn't all dry goods and groceries.

I'll wager, that when we've had prohibition as long as we had "booze," it will be all that the name implies, and we can turn our attention to the next question which arises, for the benefit and uplifting of the race.

MRS. W. L. COOKE.

66 Brock ave., Brighton, Mass.

KEEP THE HOMES INTACT

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

Why I Believe in the 18th Amendment and Enforcement:

1—The great improvement of the American home of the man who used to drink, but who now obeys the prohibition law on account of the great benefits he receives from it.

2—The increase of deposits of money from the homes of these men, which shows that America is on the road to prosperity.

3—The policy of the majority of the American people is for a dry America.

4—What the bootlegger is: death seeking the opportunity to enter into some young person's or older person's heart and cause:—

1—The heartbreaking of a mother.
2—The breaking up of a happy home.
3—Blocking the advantages and opportunity of some person seeking a higher step into life.
4—The degrading and poisoning of the minds of the young people of our country.

R. J. E. G.

FROM A PATROLMAN

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

Improved conditions in my home city, Lawrence, Mass., have convinced me that the 18th Amendment is progressive and beneficent legislation, and should be retained.

Decrease in drunkenness arrests, 1184 less in 1928 than in 1916.

Freer from serious crime, than at any time in the past 12 years, despite industrial depression.

Alcoholism death rate in 1928-29, half that of 1915-16.

Less intoxicating liquor sold and consumed.

Absence of squabbles and scandals incident to license grants in pre-prohibition period.

Banished the low liquor licensed hotel with its brothel.

Home brewing and distilling waning.

Cleaner politics. Campaigns no longer dominated by powerful liquor interests striving for control.

Comparing arrests for drunkenness in 1928, with 1916, the following notable decreases are observed:

Boston, 26,003; Worcester, 2461; Lowell, 1617; Pittsfield, 1247; Lawrence, 1184; Haverhill, 1020; Fall River, 967; Holyoke, 713; Fitchburg, 672; Lynn, 561.

GEORGE C. SWEENEY.

102 Dawes st., Lawrence, Mass.

(Formerly head of the liquor squad; now patrolman, Lawrence police department.)

FOR A NEW CANAAN

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

I am in favor of prohibition, because, if prohibiting the sale and use of liquor is strictly enforced, this country in a short time would indeed be a "Canaan, a Promised Land."

Crime would die, lawlessness would not exist as it is today. The bottom of all the crime, heartache, poverty and, yes, even death, is the cursed whiskey bottle.

Again, because if the young generation who are coming up, who will soon be in high school and college, and who will be the parents of tomorrow, will not know of the saloon around the corner, or "Jones" bootlegger or speakeasy in yonder hotel or apartment, and are not so apt to want what they have never seen or tasted.

The economic value of the country would increase, with happier and more comfortable homes, bank accounts, peace and harmony.

The whole morale of the country would change for the better.

But, the lawmakers will have to be converted to the sense of honor and duty, "To the people and for the people," and the offenders of the law punished, irrespective of "who is who." Again, prohibition must begin at the home by every citizen, by precept and practice, and parents must see that their boys and girls obey the law.

THERESA W. FORD.

298 Ferry st., Everett, Mass.

Read These Simple Rules

Letters must be confined to 200 words; the shorter the better. Don't worry about spelling, or how letters are written. Letters will be judged by what's in them.

All letters must be in this office not later than Wednesday of each week. Letters arriving later will be judged in the next week's awards.

Letters will be published daily, but publication does not necessarily imply that they are prize winners.

State whether or not you wish your name or initials to be used in publication.

If your letter wins a prize, you are expected to permit use of your name.

Board of judges will comprise at least two prominent exponents of "for" and "against" opinions, together with the editor of this department.

Open to anyone in New England except employes of the Hearst newspapers and their families.

The Boston Evening American reserves the right to amend or modify these rules from time to time as occasion may require.

Decision of judges shall be final.

MAKING IT EASY

DURING the winter months nearly everyone would be benefited by the consistent use of cod-liver oil. One of the drawbacks to its more general use is its natural taste.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

is not only cod-liver oil prepared for easy digestion, it is also made pleasant-tasting and this makes it available to millions who need its health-giving benefits.

Be sure you use Scott's Emulsion—it's cod-liver oil made easy to take.

For Repeal:

FOR STATE'S RIGHTS

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

Let us be logical. In the days of old the saloons robbed the working man's family of food and clothes. They were a perpetual menace and cheapened every neighborhood in which they existed. This must be admitted.

Came prohibition. At first it was successful. Drinking and crime decreased.

Bootlegging was born, nursed and thrived. Bootlegging gave birth to racketeering, intimidation and wholesale grafting.

Do we want the saloon back, with its evil influence? No!

Do we want prohibition, with its brood of criminal offspring? No!

Modification? Why modify a crime?

Let us return to sane policies—states' rights and states' supervision.

MRS. ELLA LEONARD.

21 Garfield st., Jamaica Plain.

THRILLS ON LAW BREAKING

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

The existence of this amendment paves the way for nation wide contempt of all laws, as this law is a direct check upon one's personal liberty, and will be consistently flouted. This condition opens the gate-way to gang rule, and racketeering.

There is a thrill to the breaking of this law. A successful business man advised his college freshman daughter that she might smoke and drink if she wished, although he advised against it, provided she smoked and drank in her own home. Here the thrill was removed by parental permission, and the net result was that the daughter refrained from doing either. Hence, remove the thrill and let prohibition come from within, and let us not attempt to legislate the morals of the community.

Modification would be useless. There would still be room for the peddling of hard liquors, and the bootleggers would continue to thrive.

Therefore I say, let us repeal this law. The separate states will then enact necessary legislation for the proper control of the liquor question.

M. F. M., Dorchester, Mass.

POCKETS DRIED OUT

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

I am with the wets as all our pockets are dried out. It reminds me I used to go to India Street and pay $2.00 for a gallon of liquor and receive an extra cigar and an extra drink. I used to go home a very happy man. It used to take me six months to drink up the whole gallon. Today I have to pay $5.00 for a pint of poison and I am afraid to drink it. This is why I am in favor of the repeal of the 18th Amendment. I do not care for saloons but would like to see the government control all the liquor industry. The present law in my opinion has ruined business and has filled up the jails. It has made government men get into trouble as is happening in the Garrett case which I going on now. I read the paper every day in connection with it and this case simply proves to you how true the whole situation is now.

D. GURWITZ.

GOVERNMENT STORES

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

I favor repeal of the 18th Amendment, because I believe that the present conditions of corruption and graft are due to the dry law. This act has been responsible for many crimes, because it has increased the number of law-breakers and broken down respect for all laws. I do not believe that it is possible to enforce this law.

The only method of liquor distribution in my mind, capable of being used successfully in this country is government control and sale in government stores.

A. L. S., Providence.

DRY LAW AN INSULT

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

"WHY?" Simply because a law that is based on the false assumption that the majority of the American people are drunks potential or otherwise, is an insult to all American ideals and traditions.

Because after ten years of attempted enforcement it is only too plain to those who know the facts that drunkenness is increasing among those who before prohibition would not have even thought of drinking to excess.

Because with all the possible expenditure of money thus far, we are finding that we are only beginning to throw the nations wealth into an ever widening and deepening abyss of greed, graft, and corruption, that is returning to us for the money a never-ceasing nauseating national cancer of disregard for all laws both human and Divine that would make of Nero seem a palefaced angel of light by comparison.

Because the only progress possible to discern thus far, is an ever increasing progression DOWNWARDS.

Because, even with saloons at the worst we have had them in 50 years, they would be almost infinitely better than the conditions forced upon the American people by PROHIBITION—the hated insult they NEVER VOTED FOR.

HARRY D. BARTEN-HART.

26 Meander St., Boston, Mass.

FOR TEMPERANCE

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

I am distinctly against prohibition, but a warm and hopeful advocate of temperance. The formulators of the 18th Amendment failed to recognize forces in the social makeup of a great nation, and in combating these forces their law merely served to defeat its own end.

Human nature will not tolerate a dogmatic limitation upon what it has considered for ages to be the freedom of its personal habits and tastes. To the law's inflexible "Thou Shall Not!" it answers "I Shall!"—and it does presume, by way of illustration, that Congress passed a law compelling the nation to drink. What then, would be the reaction? Yet such legislation would not be so rational as is at first seems to be—Frederick The Great tried to force Russia to adopt Western-European civilization and to smoke tobacco.

Both England and France have felt the lash of absolutism, and both have risen in popular revolt against it. Absolutism even in a democracy such as ours is was impossible, and prohibition is a distinct step towards it. To me it is a Utopian, idealistic farce, that only bears the dignity of having been enacted by the greatest law-making body in the world.

So let us sweep it aside, adopt a method of temperance-education to teach the youth that drinking is harmful. The present state of affairs only transfers the drinking class from the lowest casts to society and youth.

Very respectfully yours,

J. F. W., Cambridge.

KIDNAPERS BIND WOMAN TO CAR

Bad Axe, Mich., March 27 (AP)—Bound with adhesive tape, a dog collar and a rope to the driver's position in her automobile, Mrs. Elsie Mills, 35, of Detroit, drove into a filling station three miles south of here and told of having been kidnaped near her home.

She and her husband, she said, had received threats not to appear in a civil suit filed against them by a former landlord.

Two of three men in another car, she said, jumped into her car, fastened her left hand to the steering wheel with a dog collar and adhesive tape, taped her right hand to the gear shift lever and tied her left leg to the steering rod post in such manner as to be over the clutch pedal.

X-Ray Blast Blows Baby Away

Canton, Ohio, March 27 (AP)—Two physicians were burned seriously and a baby of whom an X-ray picture was being taken, was blown across the operating room of the Molly Stark Tuberculosis Hospital northeast of here today by an explosion of the film.

Hospital officials admitted the an X-ray tube blew up while the machine was in operation.

BABY VOLSTEAD REPEAL URGED

...states. Massachusetts, as one of these sovereign states, owes no legal or moral duty to enforce the federal prohibition amendment. The 18th amendment itself imposes no such obligation.

"To admit that the 18th amendment cannot be repealed is to confess that the American form of government is a failure. There is nothing sacred about this amendment. The people put it into the Constitution. The people can take it out. We represent the voice of the people.

"We believe that the majority of the voters in this commonwealth, and of the country, desire a return to temperance. World-wide experience has demonstrated that the closest approach to temperance can be reached only when the state controls the sale of intoxicants.

"Prohibition is a failure. Instead of promoting temperance, it has increased drunkenness, crimes of violence have grown, alcoholic deaths have increased, court dockets have been crowded, official corruption and graft fostered.

"While the bootlegger and graft... accumulate fabulous fortunes, his law-abiding neighbor finds himself and his family starving.

"The first step is to repeal the state enforcement act. This will not break down local enforcement. We are simply handing back to the federal government a grant of power our people do not want, as demonstrated by the vigorous expression of opinion.

The report is signed by Senator Frank Hurley of Holyoke and Representatives Joseph Finnigan of Boston and Francis P. Clark of Holyoke, John J. Derham of Uxbridge and Augustine Airois of Revere.

WIFE SAYS PEN DEATH A HOAX

Special Officer Herbert Dwyer of Milk st. station.

With her admission, dragging of the harbor waters near the bridge was halted.

While Mrs. Gazulis was telling her story at the Milk st. station, George Gazulis of Cumberland st., Back Bay, father of the alleged poison pen writer, was in conference with Capt. John M. Anderson at Back Bay station.

When the conference ended, police of the Back Bay requested that Mrs. Gazulis be held at Milk st. for questioning in connection with the poison pen letters. By that time, however, she had left the station. A search was begun for her immediately.

In her story to Special Officer Dwyer, she said she and Gazulis had planned the suicide hoax to make police believe he had drowned himself. They hoped in this way, she said, to halt prosecution, although Gazulis had repudiated a confession made that he wrote the poison pen letters to prominent Back Bay society families.

After planting the clothing and suicide note, she said, she went to Atlantic ave. and Northern ave., from which point she saw Drawtender John F. Collins find the clothing and later saw a policeman arrive on his summons.

Her curiosity to hear what was being said prompted her to go back to the bridge, she said, and state that she had had an appointment to meet her husband there.

SET AIR RECORD TO PROVIDENCE

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Roaring through the afternoon skies at a rate estimated at 162 miles and hour, Fred Ames, president of East Coast Aircraft Corp., established a record for 14 minutes and 20 seconds for the 40 miles between Providence and Boston in a Travel Air cabin monoplane. A high tail wind made the record possible.

The time is 40 seconds better than that hung up by J. Paul Herman of Curtiss-Wright, in a Cessna. Herman flew the reverse route, from Boston to Providence, and was aided by a similar strong following wind.

Having been called to Providence on business, Ames and his sales-manager, Frank LeMan, decided the wind was blowing strong enough to open the motor wide and try for a speed mark. G. Haines Felton, manager of the field down there, called F. H. Kendall at the Boston Airport Curtiss station, and set his watch with Kendall's, telling the latter he would be notified when the ship left the ground.

Records of this kind are not official, of course, but even in the unofficial class, they mean something. In this case, with the exact time the ship left the ground, Kendall stood outside and counted the minutes until the Travel Air came roaring across the field, the signal the race was over.

The ship is a stock six-place cabin monoplane, powered with a 300-horsepower Wright Whirlwind and has an ordinary top speed of about 150 miles an hour. The wind velocity, in the vicinity of 50 miles an hour at a couple of thousand feet.

One Killed in Crash

Portland, Ct., March 27 (INS)—Adelbert B. Lane, 48, a stage hand in Middlesex Theater, Middletown, was killed in an auto accident here today when two others were hurt.

WIDE SWING IN STOCK PRICES

New York, March 27 (AP)—Violent backing and filling of price movements characterized trading on the New York stock exchange today, as the volume of trading swelled to a new high level for 1930. The days turnover aggregated 5,200,000 shares.

After opening with a rush of buying in which blocks of 5000 to 25,000 shares changed hands, the market ran into a storm of profit taking and short selling, with the ticker failing about three quarters of an hour behind trading. At midday several shares showed losses of $3 to $8.

During the afternoon, a strong forward movement led by several of the coppers and industrials resulted in cancellation of many of the losses, and closing quotations were irregularly higher.

Announce Junior League Program

THE ASSOCIATION OF JUNIOR LEAGUES OF AMERICA announces the program for conferences to be held in New York, April 29 and 30, May 1 and 2. A great deal of confusion surrounds the A. J. L. A. since its headquarters and those of the New York League are both in New York City. Also there is a misapprehension about the conference itself which does not consist entirely of a round of gaiety. A glance at the working program for the conference, planned by the national board, will dispel any such illusion. The chairman of the conference, Mrs. Winthrop Aldrich, and her committee, are concerned only with the billeting, entertainment and planning of meeting places of the delegates during their four days' stay in New York, while the entire working program is determined by the national board, whose president is Mrs. Foskett Brown, of Nashville, Tenn.

THE ASSOCIATION INCLUDES 114 leagues, four new ones being admitted during the recent board meeting in New York. To be admitted to membership in the A. J. L. A., an organization must have been in existence for two years, must be sponsored by two other cities in the region, must be inspected by the field secretary and its regional director, must be passed by the region and unanimously passed by the A. J. L. A. board. The headquarters of the A. J. L. A. are a much more active place than might be imagined. It houses the office of the Junior League Magazine and four bureaus serving as information centers for all leagues. Miss Helenka Adamowska is in charge of the children's theater bureau.

Supper Party Will Precede Concert

A CHARMING SUPPER party will be given at the Algonquin Club tomorrow, preceding the concert that will be given in aid of the Frances E. Willard Settlement in Symphony Hall by the combined Dartmouth musical clubs. Mrs. George B. Kimball, chairman of the committee in charge of flower girls and ushers, will be hostess to the 40 society girls who will sell flowers and candy and to the Dartmouth men who will act as ushers. The flower girls, who will wear attractive Brittany costumes in rainbow colors, will be the Misses Elinor Davy, Elizabeth Brown, Jane Martin, Catherine Brown, Mary Cushman, Ann Barton, Cathleen Chase, Virginia Taylor, Charlotte Sherburne, Frances Broughton, Elisabet Kimball, Alice Cary Kimball, Sheila Dana, Dorothy Butler, Rosamond Harmon, Elizabeth Pillsbury, Margery Kimball, Elisabeth Dennen, Anne Dennen, Mildora Gale, Gwendolyn Maddocks, Vivian Peatland, Janet Mackenzie, Dorothy Newhall, Rosamond Rice, Lucy Dodge, Alice Eaton.

COUNTESS FREDRICH FRANZ-GROTE, who before her marriage was Miss Rachael Derby Smith, has written to Boston friends that she and the count have returned from their honeymoon in Switzerland and are domiciled in their castle at Mecklenburg, in Germany.

ON WEDNESDAY, April 30, the morning will be occupied by four major group meetings: welfare, arts and interests, children's theater and finance. Thursday is the open forum, during which reports of the A. J. L. A. committees will discuss the question of future headquarters, geographical redistribution of regions, national publicity, foreign policies, commercial attachments, advertising and by-laws. On Friday there will be election of officers.

MRS. EDWIN S. WEBSTER, of 306 Dartmouth st., is opening her house on Monday, April 7 at 3 o'clock, for the lecture by Albert R. Rogers, executive director, Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary, for the Massachusetts section, woman's department, National Civic Federation. Mr. Rogers will speak on "The Meaning of the Tercentenary." Mrs. Gardiner H. Fiske will preside.

The Idea Appeals to Cooks With Imagination

ART OF SEASONING FOODS TAKES NEW TURN

The trend in present-day cooking is to emphasize the distinctive flavor of the food rather than change it. Sugar plays an important role in this new departure in cookery.

The value of sugar in heightening flavor is most apparent in cooking familiar vegetables such as string beans, carrots, peas, beets, cabbage and spinach. In addition to improving the flavor, the sugar maintains the garden-fresh color of the vegetable.

A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt is a general rule to follow. Some cooks keep a mixture of sugar and salt on hand — equal parts of each, or two parts sugar to one part salt depending upon the taste preferences of the family. For a pleasant surprise try this combination in making French dressing.

Doctors and dietitians are in favor of flavoring vegetables and fruit with sugar because it makes these essential foods with their vitamins, mineral salts and roughage more palatable and enjoyable—especially to children. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

BRAHMS FEST BRILLIANTLY CONCLUDED

By MOSES SMITH

The Brahms Festival was brought to a close with its director, Serge Koussevitsky, enveloped in a blaze of glory that took on the aspects of a conflagration. To use plain English when the last chord of the C minor Symphony had sounded, the audience broke into a demonstration of applause, cheering and stamping that lasted several minutes.

One of the remarkable features of this demonstration was that it came at the close of a very long concert, which had begun 20 minutes late, so that normally the commuters would have made a rush for the last train. But the surge—no pun intended—was entirely spontaneous. It had its origin not in recognition of an especially brilliant performance of a piece (as was the case with Schnabel's magnificent piano-playing), but in the desire to express gratitude to an untiring, imaginative, brilliant leader, who was most responsible for this remarkable festival.

The closing program—to get down to details—included the Symphony as aforesaid, the Rhapsody for Alto, male chorus and orchestra to Goethe's "Aber Abseits, Wer ist's?", and the First Piano Concerto in D minor. The solo singer in the Rhapsody was Mme. Matsenauer, who was even more nobly impressive than in the songs of the preceding evening. With the Harvard Glee Club and the superb orchestra under Mr. Koussevitsky she gave a beautiful performance.

The pianist in the Concerto was the indefatigable Mr. Schnabel. As in his previous appearances, he so moved an audience with his artistry and power that the outburst of applause was like a thunderclap.

Nor was the performance of the Symphony a lull after this storm, despite the lateness of the hour. Mr. Koussevitsky's penchant for "dramatizing" Brahms music was here most fitting. A technically brilliant orchestra carried out his every wish.

Mme. Onegin Sings at Statler Musicale

The last of the Statler Wednesday morning musicales for the benefit of the Boston School of Occupational Therapy featured Sigrid Onegin, contralto, accompanied by Hermann Reuter.

Mme. Onegin's varied program of operatic arias and songs was sung with her familiar ample range and beautiful quality of tone. Again she demonstrated her remarkable skill in ornate song. Emotionally and interpretatively she was in the vein too. The audience applauded enthusiastically and Mme. Onegin sang many extra numbers.

A Department Devoted to Fashions, Decorations and Social Customs

WITH a variety of blouses one's suit may assume a different appearance at each wearing, and its versatility and usefulness be increased many times over. Indeed, the change will be quite obvious and striking if you wear one day a dainty sleeveless confection of sheer material, and the next day a long sleeve blouse of more tailored aspect. The material, as well as the cut and style of the blouse determines its appropriateness for the occasion.

Blousettes is quite the newest term for the brief little affairs which are being worn under the smartest spring suits. They are hardly grown up enough to be fully fledged blouses and they can't fairly be termed gilets—so they are BLOUSETTES.

THESE blouse diminutives are usually sleeveless although some hint at a sleeve by capping the shoulder discreetly. They have many of the details to be found on the new blouses such as labots, frills, buttons, bows and tabs. They are either crisply tailored in linen, shantung, pique or silk shirtings, or they are completely feminized in nets, satin, silk crepes and georgette.

The blousette pictured is of georgette, flowered in the season's smart blue, and can be worn tucked in or over-blouse style. The flattering neckline is softly draped, and outlined in a wide, finely pleated ruffle. Tiny puff sleeves add to its charm.

The small draped hat is of pliable Milan straw, finished with tailored bow of the straw.

A TRIO of suitable accessories is a set of beret, scarf and bag that gaily accompanies suit or coat. Made of striped novelty jersey in a variety of unusual color combinations, the three pieces are smart appointments for the ensemble. The bag is an envelope with the flap cut in interesting scallops. It is in the very vanguard of style, for fabric bags promise to become even more important this coming season than they have been heretofore.

How to Darken Gray Hair

By BERYL WEST

I repeat what I have often said—there's no excuse today for a woman submitting to gray hair and looking older than she feels. Faded or streaked hair may be so perfectly restored to color that it need be only your own boudoir secret. Nothing more or less than a mixture of sage tea and sulphur is the magic.

One may either prepare the mixture at home, or as most people prefer to do, buy it already prepared and ready to use. Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur is the name of the ready-to-use preparation and since all druggists sell it at 75c a bottle, there is really no need of going to the trouble of making it yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush with it, and draw it through the hair, one strand at the time. One application banishes the gray and one or two more completely restores your gray, faded or streaked hair to its original color. There is no artificial, dyed look. The whole effect is one of perfect naturalness. My readers would be surprised if they knew of the thousands of men and women who use this preparation on

Green, Labor Chief, Against 'Mill Mothers'

Washington, March 27 (AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today said his organization emphasized the need of high wages and a steady income because it regards "wages and incomes essential to the modern American home." His remarks were made during a radio talk.

William Green

"Decreasing an economic order which employs the mother in mills and factories," he said, "American labor does not believe that this is good for society or for the nation. Modern industry should be denied the exacting demands which it makes on the mothers in the mills and in the factories. An economic order should be established which "would permit the mother to care for the home and to protect and care for the children in the home."

U. S. Women in London Welcome Lady Howard

London, March 27—Lady Isabella Howard, wife of the former British ambassador to the United States, was guest of honor at a luncheon of the American Women's Club yesterday to welcome her back to England.

Lady Howard

Mrs. Dolly Sanford of Sir Esme Howard and Lady Isabella and played a large part in the achievement of the Kellogg pact and had done much toward cementing friendship between Great Britain and the United States. Other speakers similarly praised the ex-ambassador and his lady for their good offices in America.

Marshall Field, 3d, Will Wed English War Widow

London, March 27—When a Reno, Nev., judge hands down a divorce decree shortly to Mrs. Eva Marshall Field, 3d, Mrs. Dudley Coates, widow of a former officer in the Scots Guards, who was a close friend of the Prince of Wales, will announce her engagement to Field, heir to the Chicago department store millions.

Mrs. Dudley Coates

Field, who arrived in England three weeks ago, has been unapproachable concerning the understanding between himself and Mrs. Coates. Intimate friends on both sides, however, declare the friendship has been of at last three years' standing.

Mrs. Coates, a dazzling blonde beauty of the true English type, is the daughter of Mrs. Willie James, once a brilliant figure in the court of King Edward VII.

SHOE MEN SEEK HOOVER'S AID

Washington, March 27—J. F. McElwain of Boston, chairman of the tariff commission of the National Shoe Manufacturers' Association today asked President Hoover to lend his support to the boot and shoe industry of New England which is vitally interested in the pending tariff bill.

The President was asked by the Boston man to give his aid to the retention of the House rates in the bill which is now in conference.

Failure to protect the boot and shoe industry will mean the loss of millions of dollars to New England and a probable increase in unemployment, Mr. McElwain said.

Friends of the boot and shoe industry in the House are endeavoring to insert rates which will bring about a protection to these New England industries.

Without these protective clauses, the bill may be vetoed by the President. He is being urged to demand the House rates or to use the veto power.

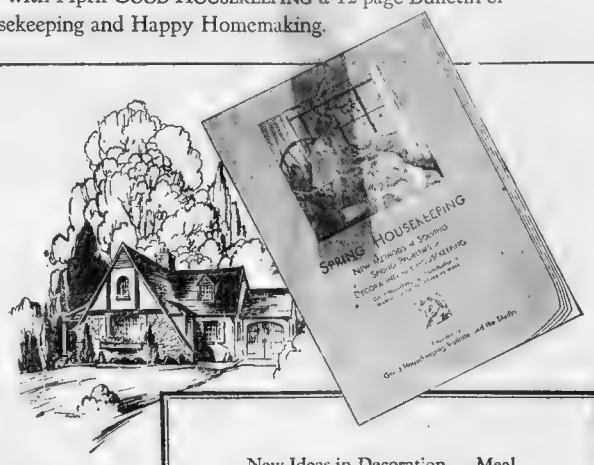
A Gift from GOOD HOUSEKEEPING!

EVERYWOMAN'S MAGAZINE

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, as its contribution to National Good Housekeeping Week, March 25 to April 1, gives with April GOOD HOUSEKEEPING a 12-page Bulletin of New Ideas for Spring Housekeeping and Happy Homemaking.

346 pages of entertainment and help in April GOOD HOUSEKEEPING



FASHIONS: A cable from Worth, the famous couturier, appears in April GOOD HOUSEKEEPING. It gives American women the keynote to the new mode.

April GOOD HOUSEKEEPING'S Fashion pages present the Paris Openings—models that combine smartness and simplicity . . . important news of the spring silhouettes; the new colors and fabrics, clothes for street, afternoon and evening wear, sweaters and blouses . . . what the 1930 bride will wear and what her trousseau should cost.

Romance in a smart Fifth Avenue Shop

Back of the glittering shop windows of Fifth Avenue, behind the counters and coat-racks . . . romance goes on! Rarely do we have writers who can catch the vivid color of these romances of the shops. Claudia Cranston can! She is rare in her ability to portray the drama and romance in the lives of business people. Out of her intimate knowledge, she tells a series of charming stories. The first story, "Women & Misses," appears in April GOOD HOUSEKEEPING.

There is also a new novel by Margaret Widdemer; a jungle story for children by Mrs. Martin Johnson, and other fascinating tales by important writers.

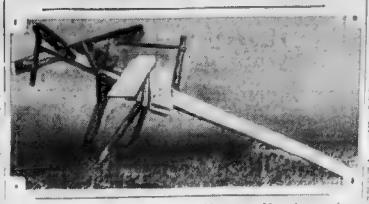
DAILY ANTIQUE

No. 56



This peculiar looking article is an old-time shingle cutter. The roof shingle is a typically American and Canadian product. Traditional roofing materials of Europe are slate, tile, thatch and metal. American cedar lent itself admirably to the purpose of roofing when early settlers looked about for housing. The wood resists the ravages of climate and fungus. It is easily split, and is of straight grain.

The knife, or throw, which cut the shingles, can be seen at the left end of the apparatus pictured. The logs were first cut into the proper lengths and squared. These blocks were then split up into the proper thicknesses.

The machine pictured is over 100 years old and is owned by Mrs. A. Thomas, of 62 Bristol rd., West Somerville. It was used originally by her great grandfather, Jonathan Teed.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of genuine antiques, particularly of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, provided the owner lives in Greater Boston. Address the "Antique Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

STORM'S DEATH TOLL UP TO 10 IN CHICAGO

Chicago, March 27—The snow stopped last night as suddenly and as unexpectedly as it started Tuesday morning leaving Chicago and its suburbs shrouded in the heaviest continuous fall in the city's history—19.2 inches. The total of lead was raised to 10 today.

Schools remained dismissed, and many the lakefront drifts held hundreds of automobiles fast. Fifteen hundred street cars were reported stalled, most of them still manned by their crews.

Homes in Southern Illinois and in parts of Indiana held hundreds of snowbound motorists.

A cessation of the storm ended fears for the city's milk supply, which was partially cut off yesterday.

The effect on crime was unusual. Not a single case was placed on the trial sheet in the morals court yesterday for the first time in a year. The court usually has 50 cases a day.

Judge Keyes Is 72

Concord, March 27—Judge Prescott Keyes, who has been the presiding justice in the district court of Middlesex County for nearly a score of years, quietly passed his 72d birthday yesterday. The Judge is in his usual health.

A Short Story of The Longer Topcoats
for Spring
$25 - $30

Depend on the well-groomed Britisher to add a jaunty swing to our trim topcoat lines. Two inches has he added, that's all! But those two inches, plus a touch of masterful designing, have worked wonders. ▼ They give a "going places and doing things" dash to our new topcoats. They create longer lines that flatter men of average height; and that add to the stature of shorter men. And they comfortably cover the knees of six footers ▼ The original patterns for these Topcoats came to us from London. We developed them in a rare selection of imported Irish Tweeds; and in debonair homebred mixtures ▼ And we present them, in the usual Bond manner, at the extremely moderate prices featured above.

▼ Use BOND Ten Payment Budget Service
Pay our regular cash prices — $10 at purchase, the balance in ten weekly payments. There are no extra charges of any kind for this friendly service.

— — — AND

The Smartest Suits
to wear under them
$25 $35 $45
with two trousers

"Corded worsteds and tweeds stand first" cables our observant Stylist in London. That was four weeks ago. And today, Corded worsteds and tweeds stand first at Bond's. Royal Camerons (copied from a sturdy Scotch weave), beautifully loomed MacLarens, and silky Bolton worsteds—with roughish tweeds from Orkney ▼ And, because color contrast is such an important style note this season, these new arrivals are ideal companions for your new Topcoat. The subdued Sabre Grays and Grenade Blues go perfectly with a light gray coat. And Saddle Brown is just the shade to wear under one of our good-looking creamy tans ▼ Usually, prices are not emphasized in presenting such distinguished new fashions. But Bond's great 26-store volume has been built on a different policy. So, although these new suits are rather exclusive—the prices are decidedly not!

GIRL UNAFRAID

by Gladys Johnson

Daring Story of Eternal Love Triangle

Ardeth Carroll, beauty, lives in the drab home of her Aunt Stella. Neil Burke, downstairs, claims Ardeth as his. She is uncertain. She yearns for a fuller life. Ardeth sees the man of her dreams, Ken Gleason. Neil is furiously jealous. Jeanette Parker, society girl, plans to use Ardeth in a scheme for revenge. She opens a shop and engages Ardeth to run it. Ardeth sees that she can never marry Neil. Ken comes to the shop and meets Ardeth. Both are secretly impressed. Sunday they spend on Ken's houseboat. Their first kiss. Then Ardeth becomes jealous of Cecilie, Jeanett's sister.

CHAPTER 18

SHE was swept by conflicting emotions. She tried to cling to her cold anger, but it was shot through by the sense of warm triumph. Tremulous joy just in knowing Ken was beside her. Her body alive to his nearness. Joy—singing in her heart.

Under her lashes she could see his profile, white and set as he kept his gaze on the traffic ahead. That clean-cut profile her fingers itched to draw Lips tightly pressed together, eyes narrowed between their lashes.

No chance to talk in the crowded streets. Not a word passed between them as he steered the car out Fell st.

The entrance to the park, swimming in twilight. Grey bulks of trees wheeling backward against the sky. Lamps turned head lights as other cars swept up the drive toward them.

Ken turned the wheel, the car shot down a narrow side road beside a lake. Stopped. He shut off the engine.

A breathless moment when the silence seemed to rush in. How very still it was. The sunset wind had stopped. The black interlacing trees overhead were motionless against the grey sky. Between their branches the first evening star shone.

Still . . . so still Ardeth seemed to hear the pounding of their hearts shaking their bodies.

He had turned his eyes, drawing her own up to meet his gaze. "So you see that thing is true."

Her hands clenched tightly in her lap, then relaxed. And suddenly she was calm and proud—and a little cruel, seeing how sunken he was.

"Well . . . why not? After all—you have a right to choose . . ."

"Don't talk like that, Ardeth."

"Normally people aren't puritanical. A man can't be engaged to every girl he kisses."

She was hurting him and she could have been less than woman if she hadn't pressed the advantage home.

"I suppose I should—should congratulate you. Cecilie is—is charming."

But why you were so reticent about telling anyone—"

"You little devil!" he shook her slightly and his eyes blazed. Then, with a sudden collapse of manner. "Oh—Ardeth . . . if you knew how rotten I feel—"

The pretense between them was swept away on a flood of honesty. "But—it's true, Ken!"

A moment—so deep, so still that the girl could hear a duck flap over the pond below. Flapping—splashing water—flapping. The blaze in eyes had gone away from her searching gaze. Ardeth felt the blood draining from her face.

Finally, "No," said Ken. "I'm not engaged to Cecile. "Oh . . . I've made a baffled mess of things. It's so damned hard to put this straight to you! Like a fool I kept hoping things would straighten themselves out. I dreaded just this very happening." His voice was wretched.

"Well—it's like this." He went on more calmly after a moment. "I'll have to tell you everything so you'll understand my position. You see, my mother and the Parkers have always been old family friends. When Cecile and I were just kids, they began planning we'd marry. You know—a thing like that starts as a joke and before you know it everyone expects it's actually going to happen. I didn't especially mind—" He stopped, grew red. "That sounds ghastly conceited. I didn't mean it that way . . . I just never thought much about it. I never said anything serious to Cecile. Dad spoke about it—but it was only a joke. "su see, Ardeth?"

"Is pleading eyes went to the quiet profile of the girl beside him.

At her short nod he continued.

"Cecile wanted her fun before she married. And I didn't care one way or the other. I see now that

City Workers Rescue Man From Cave-In

EXCAVATOR IS BURIED IN 10 FT. OF DIRT

Lynn Street Department Crew Opportunely at Hand; Victim Is Badly Buried

Quick work by 10 men of the Lynn Street Department probably saved the life of Dominic Frasca, of Harbor st., Lynn, today, when he was buried in a cave-in of a sewer excavation in which he was digging.

Frasca, who was employed by his father, a contractor, to excavate at 40 Richardson rd., was buried under 10 feet of earth when the side walls collapsed. His father, returning to the scene a few minutes later, ran into the street for help which was offered by Richard Williams, foreman of the crew of street workers.

By the time police arrived, Frasca had been rescued. He was rushed to Lynn Hospital where he was found to have suffered a fractured right hip, dislocated left hip and numerous contusions, abrasions and bruises about the head and upper body.

FIREMEN CATCH THIEF SUSPECT

Henry J. Laundry, 36, of Marginal st., East Boston, was arraigned in court today charged with attempted larceny of $520, the property of William Bedreau and 12 associate members of engine company 40, East Boston.

Following several fires in the district yesterday, the engine company returned to quarters, where, it is charged, they discovered Laundry attempting to open lockers where salary checks are kept. The company had just received their weekly salary pay when alarms began coming in and they were kept out of quarters for two hours.

Laundry's case was continued until April 4.

'FIERY PASTOR,' OUT, GETS NOTE

Rev. Raymond H. Palmer, 35, known as the "fiery pastor" of the Unitarian Church, Lynn, received an anonymous letter today following his resignation.

The note, commenting upon the pending action of the deacons next Monday, when the resignation will be considered, was signed: "With kind feelings—a Unitarian who still believes in the Bible."

This communication, given to the press by the pastor with no comment, criticised the clergyman for recent remarks about gambling and other vices.

Rev. Mr. Palmer gained publicity when he classed the kissing of the Bible by President Hoover on inaugural day as "hokum."

MAYOR SEEKS SPEED ON TUNNEL

Asks Engineers of Metropolitan Commission to Help Dispatch Big Issue

Immediate action on the East Boston tunnel project was asked today by Mayor Curley at a conference in his office with Henry I. Harriman, Col. Thomas F. Sullivan and Frederic H. Fay.

The Mayor requested that the engineers of the Metropolitan Planning Commission, the City Transit board and the City Planning Board get together this week to decide on the location of the tunnel entrances and the route in general.

When a decision is reached a report will be made to the Mayor. Col. Sullivan is chairman of the Transit board, Mr. Fay represented the city planning board, Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was chairman of the metropolitan planning board when tunnel plans were drafted.

Curley for Levy Notice Measure

Mayor Curley was yesterday recorded in favor of a bill providing that cities and towns in the metropolitan district be notified when metropolitan improvements are recommended, as to the assessments which will be levied against them, in the event that the projects are carried through.

The position of the mayor was made known to the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs by Thomas H. Hildreth, special counsel for Boston. The bill was filed by Rep. Luke D. Mullen of Charlestown.

A. G. Rotch in Appeal for Medical Center

"Only a little more than $250,000 has to be raised before we start work on building the New England Medical Center," Arthur G. Rotch, making an appeal for that sum, told the women committee of the endowment fund at its meeting in Hotel Statler today.

Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, acting chairman of the committee, presided. Two report meetings are scheduled for tomorrow.

Hay Filled Barn Burns in Needham

Ten tons of hay and a two-story wooden barn were destroyed by fire shortly after 3 o'clock today at Great Plain ave. and Greendale ave. in Needham.

A milkman saw the barn in flames and sent in an alarm. When the Needham fire department arrived the building was a mass of flames.

The barn was recently rented by Robert Appleby of Needham for the storage of hay.

Fall River Police Bill Is Withdrawn

Representative Thomas C. Crowther of Fall River today withdrew his petition to substitute local control for the present board of police appointed by the Governor. He told the Legislative Committee on Cities his bill was not an attack on the present board nor the chief of police. He claimed the conditions which led him to file his bill no longer exist.

ROADS ABLE TO STAND ALONE

Speakers at Hub Hearing Say They Have Proved the Ability to Serve

In view of the "remarkable comeback" made by the New England railroads, William H Day today informed the New England governors' railroad committee there no longer exists any need for consolidations.

Speaking for the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the New England Traffic League and the Boston Flour & Grain Exchange, at a hearing in the Gardner Auditorium at the State House, Day said the local railroads are ably demonstrating that, under efficient management, they can, with the aid of friendly and co-operating shipping public, carry on effectively and profitably.

SUMS UP ARGUMENT.

Summing up his argument, he said:

1—That from the standpoint of New England there is not now any need for railroad consolidations.

2—That there is not any material demand for consolidations either on the part of carriers or the shipping public.

3—That under present control of New England's railroads, there seems to be no possibility of bringing about a New England consolidation and under trunk line influence, same would seem to be undesirable, if possible.

4—That the adverse possibilities of any form of consolidation are so apparent and of such a nature as to warrant, under existing conditions, marking time pending definite recommendations in the form presented by the

USE OF TERMINALS

He said the organizations he represents are greatly impressed with the suggestion of the Interstate Commerce Commission, that all terminal facilities be thrown open to all users on fair and equal terms.

"Whether or not New England is in a position to avail itself of this, we respectfully suggest to your committee careful consideration of this proposal," he said.

Edgar J. Rich, general counsel for the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, agreed with Mr. Day that consolidations were not needed here.

He pointed out, however, that one factor of "portentous significance" is the question as to where control of the New England roads is.

WAIT A WHILE.

"It appears therefore wise, before advocating any plan of consolidation, to await further developments in the general railroad situation.

William H. Boyd, attorney, representing the interests of the Bessemer of the Chesapeake & Ohio Nickle-Plate System, said his system desires to continue serving New England. He declared they would be content if the New England roads were free from all trunk line control.

But the fact is that New England roads are not free from trunk line control" he contended.

He pointed out that the New York Central operates the Boston & Albany, the Pennsylvania owns a substantial percentage of stock of the New Haven and the New Haven owns about 29 per cent of the stock of the Boston & Maine.

FOR N. E. SYSTEMS

President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio said the ideal solution of the New England railroad problem would be to consolidate all of the steam railroad lines within the confines of New England into one system with the management located in New England. The future of New England, as he saw it, demands more upon having the very best transportation service possible to points outside of New England rather than between points within New England.

Incidentally, President Willard said, "We are going to have good business again, and I hope sooner than expected."

Music Charms Co-Ed Typists to Click Keys Smoothly

Harmony typewriting is the latest fad at Boston University.

Typing to the tune of "The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," 14 co-eds at the college of practical arts and letters gave a public exhibition under the direction of Miss Carveil, an instructor.

"The idea originated in England," Miss Carveil explained. "It may not necessarily speed up the words per minute, but it gives a uniformity to the work and results in an evenly spaced and lettered paper. Music gives new interest to the work."

CHARGE OF IMMIGRATION STATION BAN ON PRIEST DISPUTED

EAST BOSTON PASTOR IN RETORT

Answers Abercrombie's Denial That Curate Was Barred From Seeing Deportee

Charges of discourtesy to a curate of the Church of the Assumption, East Boston, who sought to administer holy communion to a deportee, were denied today by Deputy Commissioner of Immigration Frank S. Abercrombie in a report to Mrs. Anna C. Tillinghast, immigration commissioner at this port.

A thorough inquiry had been demanded by Congressman John J. Douglass, who forwarded to Commissioner-General H. E. Hull at Washington a letter from the Rev. William J. Barry, pastor of the church, charging the curate was refused admittance to the East Boston immigration station by Abercrombie outside regular visiting hours.

UP TO MRS. TILLINGHAST

"Admittance to the station was not denied Fr. Murray, the visiting priest," Abercrombie said in his report. "He was simply told that if he wished we would furnish a private room for administration of the sacrament or would permit the deportee, under guard, to go to the Church of the Assumption to receive communion."

Mrs. Tillinghast said she would not forward Abercrombie's report to Washington until she had heard from Hull.

Fr. Barry insisted today that Abercrombie had refused to let Fr. Murray see William Murphy, the deportee, and said that the curate was informed his calls would have to be between 1 and 4 in the afternoon and that a pass was necessary.

MORNING SACRAMENT.

Fr. Barry said it was necessary for Fr. Murray to visit the station in the early morning to administer the sacrament sought by Murphy.

"You cannot expect anyone to fast until afternoon," said Fr. Barry, especially to comply with the interpretation of Catholic canon law by a deputy commissioner of immigration.

The pastor admitted Fr. Murray had told him of Abercrombie's offer to let the deportee be taken to church under guard, but said Fr. Murray did not think those proper conditions to receive communion.

Murphy, the deportee, was arrested on a charge of having entered the country illegally.

Winners at Flower Show

10,000 VISIT FLOWER SHOW

More than 10,000 flower lovers responded to the lure of the annual spring flower show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in Horticultural Hall.

In the garden club awards, the first prize in the group A class went to the Nonnet Garden Club for the planting of a slope, one of the most attractive miniature gardens in the exhibit. In the next, or group B Pegeon Hill Garden Club won the first prize for the border planting. This, too, is very fine and in the formal idea.

Mrs. Frederick S Mead received a bronze medal for her lovely window box, which, with decorations for mantelpieces, featured the mezzanine floor. This was the first prize winner in the class. Mrs. Edwin S. Webster received a first prize for her arrangement of spring flowers. Those who have seen the 100-year-old house, brought piece by piece from Maine and set up and surrounded by an old-fashioned garden at one end of Horticultural Hall, will be glad to know that Mrs. Lester Leland, who is responsible for its presence, received the President's cup.

Rose lovers and those who take an interest in carnations will find these in evidence commencing at 11 o'clock.

SLAYER OF 2 TO BRIDGEWATER

Joaquin P. Soaris of Lowell, charged with the murder of two wedding guests three weeks ago was sent to the Bridgewater State hospital today for 60 days' observation.

Judge Fosdick in Middlesex Superior Court ordered physicians at the institution to forward a report within 30 days of the mental and physical condition of the prisoner.

Soaris is alleged to have shot and killed Angelina Rodriques, bridesmaid, and Matilda Silva, flower girl, at the wedding reception, and is also charged with having attempted to murder Augustine Abreu, the bridegroom.

After the shootings Soaris was severely beaten by guests and has only been recently released from a Lowell hospital.

KLEIN FINDING NEW ENGLAND IS 'SOUND'

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Tells Chamber of Reassuring Industrial Survey

"The general industrial life of this region as a whole is sound and serene," Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce told the Boston Chamber of Commerce in discussing "Building New England Business."

That conclusion, the speaker asserted, was based on the results of a recent government survey of the New England industrial structure, the findings of which, he announced, would be released tomorrow to local communities.

A study of the survey, Dr. Klein declared, revealed the need for New England to substitute scientific research and cooperative action for its traditional "individualism" and predicted the business "chart" to be made public tomorrow would expedite the application of these business principles.

"The results of the New England survey," continued Dr. Klein, "point definitely to certain significant conclusions.

SOUND AND SECURE.

"In the past few years New England has been passing through an inescapable period of drastic readjustment. This has been accompanied by depression in some major lines. But a great deal of adaptation to new industrial conditions has already taken place.

"While certain of your industries, especially cotton textiles, have, it is true, been far from prosperous, the general industrial life of this region as a whole is sound and secure. Marked improvement has been in evidence since 1927. Even the troubled fields of textiles and footwear reveal numerous instances of individual plants whose far-sighted executives have, through courageous alteration of policies and operations, built up conspicuously successful records.

"New England's business leaders today have evidently taken a leaf from the revolutionary experience of their forbears. They have learned that eternal vigilance is certainly the price of solvency as well as liberty.

FARMING IMPROVES.

"It has long been a custom to disparage New England agriculture. But, as a matter of fact, agriculture now holds a more important place and provides a greater real income to New England than it did 50 years ago. We see here a triumph of selection, increased efficiency and specialization. This region still possesses substantial wealth in its forests, its stone industries and its fisheries.

"But, underlying these material resources are those major assets of New England, namely the skill and technique of its workmen—its experience in industrial organization and management—its reserves of accumulated capital and equipment. On foundations such as these, we have every reason to expect that it will go forward to still more admirable achievements.

"These are enduring values which do not lend themselves readily to ballyhoo. But given these basic elements—skilled man-power and management, and frugally administered, adequate capital—any business possesses the real essentials of success.

"The casual observer is apt to view New England as a compact homogeneous unit. For that executive, whether in charge of buying or selling in this area, such a concept is apt to lead to costly mistakes. Take the vital field of distribution. The region falls into 13 major marketing areas, and the methods in each differ more or less widely from those that are effectively utilized in its neighbors.

"This is partly due to differences in the density of population. The local wholesaler of foodstuffs in southern New England, for instance, covers a much smaller territory than his fellow wholesaler in northern New England, where population is sparser. We find that thus far in northern New England chain-store competition and direct selling by manufacturers have not expanded greatly—and it is in this population factor that the reason lies.

"Much has been said of late, and rightly so, regarding the flagrant, preventable wastes of our distribution methods. These efficiency unmistakably falls far behind that which has brought production to such a high state of perfection in industry after industry.

"Even New England with its justly reputed thrift and frugality is not entirely blameless in this important field of distribution deficiencies. For instance, there is evidence that a considerable excessive duplication of sales effort exists among wholesalers covering this territory. Let me emphasize at once that I am not in the least suggesting that efficient distribution involves the elimination of all competition. That, of course, is out of the question, economically as well as legally. I am referring to wasteful excessive sales efforts where there is manifestly no sufficient business to warrant such intensive zeal."

DEATH CLOSES ADVENTURES OF 'SAD SAM'

Former Superintendent of an Everett Plant Passes Away in N. Y.

Word has been received of the death in New York city of Samuel Auld Wallace, 65, former superintendent of the General Electric Co. plan. at Everett.

Known as "Sad Sam," a Klondike gambler, he won and lost fabulous fortunes that took him from Dawson City to Russia.

Following his boyhood in Chicago, he landed in Seattle without a nickel. He arose to a position where he could twice refuse a knighthood proffered by England for his war services.

During the early years of the war he was sent to Russia to straighten out the General Electric Co.'s affairs. Later he was called to London to manage the underground railways employing 26,000 workers.

He built the largest transportation repair factory in the world, called "Slough."

He had charge of maintenance of the British transportation activities in France, and managed the Woolwich arsenal and the war plant at Enfield.

His first wife, Mrs. H. Cherry Wallace formed the first branch of the woman's suffrage organization in Everett in 1914.

His second wife, Evelyn Chapman Wallace, was decorated by the British government for her war work. She and a son by his first marriage survive.

Edward M. Carroll of Liberty st. and Miss Lydia Haggerty of City Hall sq., both in Lynn, were injured today when their automobile turned over in a collision with a taxi at Washington and Broad sts., Lynn.

The taxi was operated by John T. O'Leary of Newhall st., Lynn. Carroll and Miss Haggerty were hauled out of the wrecked car by spectators and were treated at Lynn Hospital.

Winter Comes Back Briefly With Flurry of Snow

Old Man Winter frolicked about Boston for a few moments today and blew snowflakes down Miss Spring's neck just to show her he had not yet retired.

He skipped down here from northern New England, where he is putting on a wintry show, but his flying visit will mean nothing more than frosty temperature tonight and early tomorrow.

FIGHT 2 FIRES IN EAST BOSTON

Fire apparatus was rushed to East Boston when two fires broke out within a few minutes of each other.

The first fire was in the hold of the Eastern Steamship Company's steamer Prince George, tied up for repairs at Carlton's wharf, off 119 Sumner st.

A workman with a blow-torch set fire to some oil and when the work men were unable to stop the fire with extinguishers, an alarm was sounded. After a stubborn fight in the hold the flames were extinguished with damage of $300.

As this fire was going on fire broke out in the building at 20 Porter st., occupied by the plumbing shop of John C. Patterson. The flames spread to the rear of two adjoining houses, driving out several families. Charlestown apparatus responded to this fire. Damage was estimated at $3100.

REVERE BOMB VICTIM THREATENS VENGEANCE ON TERRORISTS

2ND ATTEMPT TO DEMOLISH HIS HOME

Catine Withholds Identities of His Enemies From Police Inquirers

A second attempt in two weeks to blow up his home and kill Teodoro Catine, 67, a recluse of Washington ave. in the "farm district" of Revere, was nearly successful early today.

The explosion wrecked a small building adjoining Catine's one-room shack and damaged the wall of the flimsy structure in which he had been sleeping.

To police, Catine declared he knew the assailant and would shoot him on sight.

On March 13 he found two sticks of dynamite in the woodshed attached to the shack. There was a fulminate cap fixed to the dynamite and a 15-foot fuse was attached. The fuse had evidently gone out during a rain that fell in the night.

At that time Catine merely turned the dynamite over to police and gave no indication that he knew of an enemy.

Catine has been held up and robbed five times in his home.

PLANS FOR WAR MEMORIAL OPPOSED

E. D. Mead Favors Monuments to Founders Out of $1,600,000 State Fund

Opposition to the proposed erection by the State of memorials to World War veterans is expressed in a public statement issued by Edwin D. Mead of Boston, author and peace advocate

He says in part:

"The proposal that the State appropriate $1,600,000 for two new war monuments seems to many sober citizens preposterous

HONOR FOUNDERS

"The only campaign for it is a Legion campaign. If the State has $1,600,000 to spend for monuments, it can do much better by devoting half of this sum for a noble monument to Governor Winthrop and the founders of Massachusetts which all thoughtful Tercentenary workers unite in urging

"I suggest that the other half be devoted to a Massachusetts monument to George Washington, to be dedicated at our commemoration of the Washington Bicentenary in 1932.

"The public apathy over the proposal to spend $1,600,000 for additional war memorials is through no lack of sympathy for their circles.

WAR CONDEMNED

When the governor last spring created the war memorial committee, it was to submit a plan for a memorial to Massachusetts soldiers who fell in the World War The committee has chosen to expand its functions and submits a plan for a memorial to men killed in all our wars.

"The service of Massachusetts in the Revolution and the Civil War is already abundantly commemorated. Those are the only two wars that the Commonwealth desires to commemorate impressively. What is there about the World War that commands a novel policy?

"Does Massachusetts wish to commemorate her part in the terrible blunder? Does she wish to multiply memorials of war at all, when the world's conscience and reason are trying to leave war behind, recognizing that it belongs to the juvenile stage of human evolution and that mankind is now becoming mature?"

DUTY TO EXPOSE CORRUPTION, SAYS PASTOR

Newspaper Can Raise Public Opinion Against Bad Officials, He Asserts

Pointing out the ease with which police officers can become a law unto themselves and the services a powerful newspaper can perform in redeeming the situation the Rev William R Avers, pastor of Union Congregational Church of Quincy, has addressed a letter to the Boston Evening American praising its $5,000 reward offer.

Dr Avers has many friends on the Boston police force and gained his knowledge of police work through close contact with them. His letter in part, is as follows

"The legitimate function of the newspaper is to assemble and publish the facts of daily import. If there are questions and facts of deep concern to the public good, which have been hidden under a mass of self interest, cowardice or intimidation, the uncovering of these facts by an enterprising newspaper is a public service of the first order

"The men to whom we intrust the duty of law enforcement have in their keeping not only the power to enforce, but the power to nullify a law We can easily have one law for the friendless and another law for the wire pullers. Among those whose business is a bit shady the first step is to make and cement friendships on the police force

"The police force is maintained to protect the public but what is to protect the public from a crooked police" Nothing but an informed and awakened public opinion.

"A powerful newspaper can redeem this situation

The Senate, after lively debate, passed to a third reading the bill to exempt highway and bridge workers from the eight-hour day law.

In attacking the bill, Senator Charles Faulkner of Pittsfield said it was foolish to take a step backward in labor legislation. He warned it was the entering wedge toward a breakdown of the eight-hour law.

Senator Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham, in favor of the bill, said farmers work from sunrise to sunset, thrive on the long hours and live to a great age. He declared if he were working for 50 cents an hour, he would rather work 12 hours than eight.

In reply, Faulkner charged the hired men on the farms do the work, not the farmers. In winter, he added, farmers sit around the stove and discuss politics.

Marital matters reached a state of flux today for Philip Gagnon of 36 Cabot st., Salem, and he sought aid of the Boston Evening American in finding a wife.

Gagnon, father of a three-and-a-half-year-old boy, has been a widower for two and a half years, and now wants a wife for himself and a stepmother for his boy

For several weeks he has been on a quiet hunt for [illegible] blonde girl or a [illegible] widow, he said today, but has thus far has been fruitless and disappointing.

If the ladies will kindly line up in orderly formation

Gagnon is 28, a veteran of the wartime British army, a contracting painter and a man of affection, he declares. Whoever becomes his bride is assured of a comfortable home and a true companion

She need not have money, according to Gagnon. Money is a secondary consideration

Any girl or young widow who is interested in Gagnon may reach him at his address, of course He awaits eagerly the result.

One of a trio of automobile thieves was wounded, possibly killed, by police bullets early today after the three had been shot at Patrolman Thomas J. Cullen of Watertown, who attempted to apprehend them in a stolen car.

The car, property of Alfred H. P Peabody of Brattle st., Cambridge, was later found abandoned in Soden st., Cambridge

Blood stains on the handle of one door and two bullet holes through the back attested to the marksmanship of Cullen and Patrolman Patten of Cambridge, who went to his assistance.

A search of hospitals was begun immediately by the authorities.

Cullen sighted the stolen car in Mt. Auburn st., near Arlington st., East Watertown, jumped on the running board and ordered the driver to stop. Instead the driver and his companions beat Cullen about the head, finally hurling him off. Patrolman Patten heard Cullen's call for aid and responded Both officers then opened fire as the car sped away.

Blazes for Them Is Luck for the Cop

When fire menaced the Jefferson Building, Washington st., near West st., today, these beauties fled for their lives. Patrolman Bogardus, always gallant, congratulated them and then the photographer came along and that was that. (Staff photo.)

the JOY of LIVING

is founded on Good Health

Did you know that every cubic millimeter of the normal, healthy person's blood should contain about 5,000,000 red corpuscles?

Your joy may depend upon rich, red-blood-cells

A HEALTHY body is vigorous, strong and sound. It is man and woman's greatest asset. It demands that the red-blood-cells shall not be decreased in number.

The red-blood-cells are its workers—5,000,000 to the cubic millimeter. They give to the blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. Rich, red blood wards off disease. It is very dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

You owe it to yourself and family to give S.S.S. a trial It promotes healthy body building. It helps Nature build rich, red blood. For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping people regain and retain their strength and charm. It is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and is easy to assimilate.

You will be delighted with S.S.S. blood-building and tonic effects. Take at mealtime. At all drug stores in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IF Shakespeare ever is to become popularized with the scattered masses of playgoers, and there are growing evidences that the cause is not hopeless, the splendid actors from old Stratford now at the Hollis will have a large hand in it. While the Stratford-on-Avon Festival company lacks heavy discipline through the daily change of bill, there was nothing in the presentation yesterday of "Julius Caesar" that suggested the torture of routine perambulations through cumbersome speeches. Instead you were taken in hand and led through as fine a performance as it will ever be your privilege to enjoy.

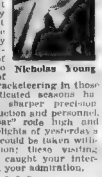
AMONG all the works of Avon's gifted bard, none lends itself more easily to the average playgoer than Julius Caesar. Here you discover melodrama right off the reel, a consistent story carried by elements of logical conclusion. If we are given to civilities, it would be easy to omit that Shakespeare and combined was the Bard of Velier of his day. No subterfuge of politics and racketeering in those are sophisticated scenes is moved with sharper precision both in production and personnel.



Nicholas Young

Julius Caesar" rode high and free. The delights of yesterday's performance could be taken with no reservation. Those visiting players first caught your interest, then won your admiration.

* * *

WITH neither star nor featured player to urge their qualities, the play fell into hands well able to take its measure high in the order of merit came Wilfred Walter, whose Mark Antony aroused his audience as no actor on the Hollis stage has done in years. The famous oration, built up in spectacular fashion, was as impressive as intelligent reading and fine stage direction could make it. Moments like that, you felt, were all that the spoken drama needs to make its interpretation complete and certain. Outstanding contributions were turned in by George Hayes, as Brutus; by Eric Stanton, as the lean and hungry Cassius, and by Roy Byford, an extensively convicted Casca.

FOR the evening's face, the company turned, to "The Merry Wives of Windsor," one of the most playful of Shakespearean comedies. As at the matinee, when the tragedy of Caesar held tragedy audience almost breathless, the Comedy of the afternoon now became the rotund Falstaff, Mr. Byford made short but thorough work of this ridiculous character. Others conspicuous in the evening's merriment were: Mary Holder and Fabia Drake, two amiable dames with eyes for innocent mischief, and Wilfrid Walker and Ernest Hare, who amply impersonated the two excellent but jealous gentlemen of Windsor.

DEL RIO'S NEXT PICTURE TO BE "RESURRECTION"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service
Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, March 27.

DOLORES DEL RIO'S exotic personality never showed to better advantage than in Tolstoy's "Resurrection." When United Artists made that picture Del Rio was sitting right on the top of the world.

What then is more natural than for the United Artists Company to concentrate on the powerful Tolstoy drama.

That is what they are doing, with the result that Del Rio's next talkie will be "Resurrection," officially stated, however, that "Resurrection" with sound will be an entirely new version. He is negotiating with Stephen Vincent Benet, the young American winner of the Pulitzer poetry prize, to write the adaptation.

Mr. Benet's first motion picture assignment was the story and dialogue for "Abraham Lincoln." I have a hunch George Fitzmaurice will direct, although this is only a guess.

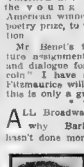
ALL Broadway has wondered why Barbara Stanwyck hasn't done more in the movies.



Barbara Stanwyck

Her "Burlesque" was one of the outstanding plays of the season and when she came to Hollywood with her husband, Frank Ray, it was announced she would work seven days in the week, but so far as I know she has only made "The Locked Door" for United Artists and "Ladies of Leisure" for Harry Cohn.

"Ladies of Leisure" has turned the trick. Harry Cohn, after seeing her work in this one film has signed her on a contract to make four pictures a year for Columbia. He has stipulated in her contract that she is to be starred and cannot work or any other company.

Miss Stanwyck, Marie Prevost, Ralph Graves and Mr. Cohn are leaving for San Francisco tonight to attend the premiere of "Ladies of Leisure" at the Orpheum tomorrow night.

IT looks very much as if "Grumpy" will be made in the Eastern studios at Long Island, for June Collyer is now in the East and she is going to play the feminine lead. June signed a contract with Paramount a few weeks ago and this will be her first picture for them under the new agreement. Richard Arlen will have the juvenile lead and Dorothy Arzner will direct the picture.

Cyril Maude arrives here in May and Paramount is all agog over the fact that Maude has consented to play the part in a talkie that he created on the stage. The picture in its silent version is expected without much loss here. Perhaps with Dorothy Arzner directing the talkie Mr. Cyril Maude in the leading role it will have its moments.

Lucile Gleason back in Hollywood. Evelyn Brent wearing a fascinating necklace of red glass. George Fawcett writing his memoirs. Mrs. Joseph Cawthorn planning a birthday party for her husband. Carlotta King in a bright green bathing suit and sunshade, relaxing at Palm Springs. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

'THE TAVERN' FOR HUB

IN response to telegrams, letters and personal appeals, George M. Cohan has decided to give six performances of his celebrated satire, "The Tavern," during the final week of his Boston stay at the Tremont, beginning Monday, April 7. Mr. Cohan will act the eccentric Vagabond in the play, the most lengthy role he has ever played.

The performance of "The Tavern" will be given the six nights of the week, and Mr. Cohan will appear in his current offering at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

When Mr. Cohan first announced that he would revive "The Tavern" it was his purpose to play it only in Philadelphia and New York to complete a season. Following this announcement a flood of letters were poured in to him pleading that he give some performances in Boston.

BOY STAR WON ROLE BY HIS QUICK WITS

TOMMY CLIFFORD, 11-year-old boy from Dublin, Ireland, playing "Ted" in John McCormack's first talking screen picture, "Song O' My Heart," now at the Majestic, won his role, in reality, by a little bit of quick thinking, amazing in a youth of his tender years. In the story, McCormack whose youthful romance was shattered through a designing tenant of the girl he loved, sees his sweetheart married to another. She becomes the mother of two children, one a girl of 17 and the other a boy of 11.

Arriving in Ireland, Frank Borzage, the director, Tom Barry, the author of the story and Joseph M. Kerrigan, who plays a featured role, went to a little schoolhouse, close by the McCormack estate in Monasterevan, where they made known their desire to find a boy to play a small role in the picture.

The teacher of the little school selected three boys as prospects and none of them was Tommy Clifford. This piqued the little lad, who as the trio was being questioned, sneaked in back of Borzage and kept repeating "Teacher's pets!" "Teacher's pets!" and he was so insistent and persistent in letting the picture folk know that the three were simply teacher's pets that Borzage immediately said, "You're the one we want."

All four took tests, reciting some school piece that came to their minds, and Tommy won the coveted role and a long term contract. He is now in Hollywood and will appear in the next "Fox Follies of 1930" doing his harmonica specialty.

Stage Who's Who

HERMAN BELMONTE, picturesque young Spanish dancer in "The New Moon" at the Shubert, was born in Madrid of Costa Rican parents. His uncle is Don Juan B. Quiras, formerly president of Costa Rica and now Director of Control of that Central American republic. At the time of his birth his father was serving in a diplomatic post in Madrid, but when Herman was two years old the family returned to San Jose where the young man received his education and training for diplomatic service. In fact, five years ago Herman was sent to Paris to serve as attache to the Costa Rican legation. He became interested in tango dancing, at which he was quite an adept.

H. Belmonte

In partnership with a young Parisian dancer, known as Mlle. Colette, he appeared at the Moulin Rouge and other popular resorts. This of course necessitated his resignation as attache and changing his name to Herman Belmonte from his original Hernan Quiras.

An American theatrical agent saw Belmonte and his partner in Paris and brought them to America. In "The New Moon" he is danced with Frances Mifern, an American girl of Spanish descent.

E. PREMIERE OF 'MAMBA'

THE New England premiere of the all-Technicolor talking drama, "Mamba," will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, at the Egyptian, Brighton. This event is of dual importance, since not only marks the premiere showing of "Mamba," but the premiere itself is specially dedicated to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, for its splendid aid in the development of Technicolor. The entire faculty of this college has been invited. A specially arranged program has been prepared. "Mamba," the first all-Technicolor straight drama to be made in the "talkies," featuring Jean Hersholt, Eleanor Boardman and Ralph Graves, will open its popular priced run Saturday, at the Modern, Beacon and Egyptian Theatres simultaneously.

YEAR ON ROAD FOR ANITA STEWART

WHEN Anita Stewart was barely in her 'teens, her mother received a brief note from her daughter's school teacher. Its brevity was only exceeded by its candor. "Dear Mrs. Stewart," the note read, "do you want Anita to go into the motion pictures, or do you want her to make something of herself?"

There was a family consultation in the big rambling Stewart home, and a stern warning to curly-headed little Anita, who persistently and hopefully hung 'round the movie studios when she should have been learning algebra. It was this very persistency, together with her delicate blonde beauty and her bewitching smile that decided the matter. For Anita got her chance in a picturesque and pathos role in her first picture, "The Wood Violet."

Right there the process of making something of herself began, and Anita rose to stardom, and in a short time had endeared herself to millions of movie fans.

Now Miss Stewart is again Hollywood-bound, but with a long vaudeville engagement, which brings her to the stage of Loew's Orpheum this week, preceding her initial appearance in the talkies. The four-a-day is hard work, according to Miss Stewart, but she enjoys every minute of it. It's a lot of fun to see and know your audiences, she finds.

Goes "Stagey"

DESERTING the screen for a stage tour, Miss Stewart is the featured attraction on the Orpheum vaudeville bill. She is a versatile entertainer.

RUSSIAN FILM HAS 'NATURAL' ACTORS

THE wide interest caused by "China Express," the new Russian film now at the Repertory, merits information about the performers. As a matter of fact, there are no professional actors in the oriental contingent of the cast. Most of them are what may be called "natural actors" not in the sense of native histronic gift but rather in the sense of simplicity and sincerity. The eloquent and forceful acting of these untrained men is due in very large measure to the imaginative and resourceful direction of Ilya Trauberg, disciple of the master Eisenstein. Like Eisenstein, Trauberg also selected types not merely for their external appearance but also for their being approximately "in the same boots" as the persons they are called upon to portray.

FLATLEY SAYS

Hockey Players Have Courage

FOR raw, red courage give us the hockey players: the puck chasers can take their bumps and knocks better than any of them—they never know when it's time to stop—there are no Phil Scotts in that game: if a bird gets torn to pieces, he asks for three minutes off, gets sewed together and comes back for more—and usually gets it.

We have peered at sports for years, but don't remember getting a greater kick than when we watched George Boucher being carried off the ice the other evening. George, who is no part of a youngster, had broken his leg, and knew it. So did the crowd, for the crack of the fracture could be heard all over the Garden, above the din and the cheering.

George sensed that his big league life was ended: the old boys can't come back when the props break. He was suffering like the devil, too, but did he show it? Nary a bit. He hitched himself up on the stretcher, grinned around at the crowd, and waved farewell as cheerily as if he had just won the world series. And he made a joke of the financially fatal injury. Plenty of the old moxie in his makeup.

HOOLEY SMITH was a target for lots of booing and some terrible bumps. Yet he grinned at near murder, played a beautiful game of hockey and was going just as fast at the long-drawn finish as he was at the start. Hooley can play for our team, any time at all.

Broken Jawbone Mere Incident

THEN there was Lionel Hitchman. Hitch was in there with a jawbone as sensitive as a tooth nerve. It hadn't been knitted together for a week, following a bad fracture. Big Lionel was smacked on that chin, plenty and early. There were spots where he reeled around on his runners, after a particularly healthy jolt.

But did he call for help? He did not. He stuck right in there, took everything that was coming, and kept whanging into all the desperate rushes that came winging down the line. He may not be able to chew his s. m. figs for several months, and his grinding machinery never may be the same, but that was nothing in his young life.

And he will be back in there tonight, as fiery and ferocious and impregnable as ever. Real he-men, these hockey players. If our scrappers had to absorb anything like the punishment the hockey boys take, there would be no punch drunk vets staggering around the land. They'd all quit before they passed the amateur stage.

A MOVEMENT was started a little while back to equip goal tenders with masks. That would have removed the danger of lost eyes and gouged out faces. Did the boys accept that gracefully? The —— they did. Their unanimous screech of protest interfered with the radio waves. They were no softies.

Red Gets Himself a Summons

RED CASEY is a stubby, red-headed, freckle-faced Irishman, who does odd jobs around one of the big automobile salesrushes cars to owners, removes wrecks from the highways, and all that. Like all of his kind, he has scant regard for traffic rules and regulations.

"Why," he wants to know, "if they make these cars to go 75 miles can't a guy drive that fast?"

T'other day Red whirled into Kenmore, and the officer gave him the stop sign. That was okay, but the wait seemed overlong, and Red started to give the horn a workout. It was so insistent that the cossifer leaped down from his platform, and came racing over.

"Hey," he yelled, "what's the big idea. Think I'm asleep?"

"I didn't know," Red countered. "Your back was turned."

Which got him a nice, little summons.

THE boys who are chirping that the hockey game was bagged, for the extra money, did not see it. The Bruins were outfucked half a dozen times in the first overtime period. And the howlers are all paging ducats for the evening's melee.

Fisher Beats Sample

Gardiner, March 27—Flash Fisher, middleweight from Chicopee Falls, won the decision over Milt Sample of Adams in the main bout of the Chair City A. C. show tonight at the City Hall before a crowd of 1000.

By BILL GRIMES

BEFORE as large a crowd, and if possible even greater, than attended their last game, the Boston Bruins and the Montreal Maroons will clash in the fourth game of their championship series tonight in the Boston Garden.

Going into this game, the Bruins have a one game lead. They realize that the Maroons are going to fight as they never have in the past to equalize the series.

Bill Grimes

Unquestionably, the Bruins were over confident last Tuesday. They had come through with two victories in Montreal and felt that the championship was as good as won. They did not play the hockey they are capable of and leaned too strong toward setting personal grievances. From the start, the Bruins went after Hooley Smith and Dave Trottier and after the punishment they handed these Maroons they have squared matters.

The Bruins believe that they have figured out an attack which will nullify the Montrealers' defense. They have been pretty well bottled up by the Maroons' style of play. It necessitated more than one hundred minutes of hard play for the Bruins to win the first game and in the second meeting a momentary break in the Montreal defense in the second period opened the gate for the Rosemen to score three goals, which would have been sufficient to give them a victory.

In the third game, the Maroon defense refused to crack. They got some of the cleverest covering-up in front of their nets ever seen. Of course, there were times when the Bruins were in for clean shots, especially Marty Barry, Dutch Gainor and Cooney Weiland, but they were unable to beat Flat Walsh, who performed sensationally from start to finish.

Maroons Handicapped by Injuries

With the Bruins paying strict attention to hockey and the Maroons without the services of either Babe Seibert or George Boucher, the Rosemen should have a decided edge tonight. The Bruins were on the receiving end of some tough bumping on Tuesday, especially Dutch Gainor, Marty Barry, Lionel Hitchman and Eddie Shore.

Gainor and Barry were the shock troops of the Bruin attack. It was their assignment to carry through the heavy bodying Maroon defense, so as to draw in the points and leave a clear field for their wings. Few players have been able to stand up under the pummeling handed out to Gainor and Barry. But this pair of gamesters never flinched, but in carrying on they subjected themselves to some murderous punishment.

N. U. Honors Court and Track Teams

Northeastern freshman track and basketball teams will be feted at a luncheon at the Hotel Hemenway tomorrow noon. Twenty-four members of the yearling track squad and 19 members of the basketball squad have been invited to attend.

Announcement of numerals awards for both teams will be made.

Faculty guests will include Professors Joseph W. Zellar, head track coach; Edward S. Parsons, assistant track coach; Alfred M. McCoy, basketball coach; Gerald R. Tatton, freshman track coach, and Clarence J. McIntire, cross-country mentor.

TRIO EXPECTED TO GIVE BRAVES ADDED PUNCH

Earl Clark Walter Berger

These two Braves outfielders will start the season in center and left field. Clark has already proven his worth by his sterling play in the Wigwam last season. Berger is a new comer. This six feet two inch slugger, however, has been hitting the offerings of opposing pitchers to all corners of the field and he may supply the batting punch that the Braves badly needed last year. With Clark alongside of him to help him, Berger will be given every chance to make the grade.

Johnny Neun, new Tribal first baseman, has shown Manager Bill McKechnie enough ability around the initial sack to remain with the club this year and he will probably start the season in place of the veteran George Sisler. Neun has shown himself to be very fast, also.

TRIBE FACES HARD TEST TODAY

By BILL CONNELL

FT. MYERS, FLA., March 27—The Braves face a difficult assignment here this afternoon, for they tackle the Athletics, champions of the world. The game is the first one of the 13 barnstorming battles listed for the Tribe.

GREEN LEAVES FOR SOUTH

Hanover, N. H., March 27—Dartmouth's baseball drill today was confined to the 14 men who will leave tomorrow at noon for the Southern trip, opening against Georgetown on Saturday.

Coach Jeff Tesreau sent his picked squad through a lengthy batting session, with Ward Thompson and Oliver Allen, the two inexperienced hurlers, working on the mound.

He also continued the drill in base running which was started yesterday, and gave special attention to the squeeze play.

In the concluding drill, Joe Clough was at first, Bill Walker at second, Tom Eagan at third, and Red Rolfe at shortstop. This is the inner quartet that is slated to face Georgetown in the opening game.

It was learned today that Hal Andres, reserve catcher, will fill the left outfield outpost, with Ed Downey and Bill Mack, already named for the other two jobs. Gunnar Hollstrom, pitcher, and Capt Earl McDonough, catcher, are the likeliest battery combination for the Georgetown battle.

TIGER SIX IN PLAY-OFF TILT

Boston Tigers and Philadelphia will fly at each other in Philadelphia tonight in the first game of the home-and-home series to determine the opponent of the first-place Providence Reds in the final Canadian-American League playoff.

The Tigers left Boston last night in great condition and full of confidence that they can eliminate the Philadelphia entry.

The impending series will be decided on total goals and overtime will only be played in case the teams stand even at the end of regular time in the second game which is tentatively scheduled for Boston Garden Saturday night.

W. E. House Honors Basketball Team

The members of the West End House will banquet the senior basketball team at the West End House, Saturday night. The local quintet has enjoyed one of the best seasons it has ever had in the history of basketball at the House, winning 19 games out of 22 game played.

Sweaters will be presented to the members of the senior team

Miss Orcutt Has 4-Stroke Lead

Southern Pines, N. C., March 27 (AP)—Leading the field by four strokes and with victory seemingly almost within her grasp, Maree. Orcutt teed up today and looked for the final 18 holes in the 54-hole mid-south women's tournament with a 154 gross score for the first two rounds.

Miss Glenna Collett profited little by her second attempt, shooting a bad 84 and practically eliminating herself from the championship group. Her score for the 36 holes was 164, 10 strokes behind the leader, and placed her in fifth position

Knox Will Hurl Against B. U. Nine

Welbor Knox former all-school baseball mound ace at Medford has been nominated by Manager E. Burlington, Vt., March 27—The University of Vermont baseball team, carrying an almost complete veteran outfit, starts today on its annual drive southward, for a series of 10 games.

Carnera's Act May Disrupt Col. Boxing

Denver, March 27 (INS)—Repeal of the Colorado boxing law was seen today as the possible result of the boxing match between Primo Carnera and Jack McAuliffe, scheduled here for tomorrow night.

A bill for repeal may be introduced at the next legislative session.

The commission had attempted to prevent the bout on the grounds that McAuliffe was an unfit opponent for Carnera. Promoters of the affair, however, took the case to the courts and were successful in restraining the boxing commission from functioning.

Trafton Lasts 54 Seconds With Carnera

Kansas City, March 27 (AP)—Primo Carnera, today boasted twelve knockouts in as many appearances in American boxing rings. He won a 54 second victory here last night over George Trafton, eastwhile Chicago football professional, and the man who laid low in the ring (the great) Art Shires, Chicago first baseman.

The heavyweight match, scheduled for ten rounds, ended after Trafton fell to the canvass for the third time. The 8000 fans present booed and jeered

At the bell Trafton rushed across the ring at the towering Italian. After a mild embrace he fell to the floor on his stomach. At the count of six the ex-football player arose and again charged across the canvas. Carnera's big hand swung and again Trafton fell.

The foreigner walked to his corner, placed his hands on the ropes, and gazed at the crowd. Trafton climbed to his feet at the count of nine, hurried across the ring, and clouted his giant opponent in the back.

Carnera then turned quickly and the Chicagoan fell for the count beneath a flurry of rights and lefts. A short right hand jab to the chin ended the fight.

The Italian weighed 271 pounds, his opponent 229

IN selecting Styles for HIS MAJESTY THE AMERICAN CITIZEN we went to HIS LORDSHIP THE EARL OF KINNOUL.

The Earl of Kinnoul is a man of wealth and social position and is recognized today as one of the best dressed men in the House of Lords.

We bought 25 of the most popular models from the best known bootmakers in London and asked the Earl of Kinnoul to drop in and look them over.

This collection of shoes represented a big variety of Styles in different patterns and leathers, and after carefully examining every shoe, the Earl had no hesitation in finally selecting this new Semi-Brogue Brown Willow Calf by Bunting of Dover Street.

We paid 6 guineas ($30.24) for Bunting's original hand made model, and we placed an order for 44 pairs so that we could actually show you today, side by side, one of Bunting's ($30.24) Originals with the ($6.60) Regal Reproduction in every Regal Store.

Swim Stars Gather at Harvard for Title Meet

CRIMSON TO DEDICATE NEW POOL

CAMBRIDGE was alive today as swimming teams representing colleges all over the country gathered for the national intercollegiate championships, which will dedicate the new Harvard pool tomorrow and Saturday.

Twelve Michigan natators were the latest to arrive today and were hurried out to the new pool for their initial workout. Leland Stanford and Northwestern swimming teams also worked out in the pool.

The Western colleges are arriving early so that they may have plenty of time to get over the effects of their long train rides. Leland Stanford especially, with their hearts set on bringing back first honors for team competition to California, have been in town two days and are completely acclimated.

Northwestern's swimmers appear for an early workout today. Led by Capt. Al Schwartz, the Illini worked out all their train wrinkles, and are ready to make a strong bid for a second intercollegiate title.

Keen disappointment was felt when Pete Des Jardins failed to how up with the Leland Stanford egregation. Harvard tank fans are set for the treat of their ves in seeing the Olympic champion perform, but their hopes were ished when it was learned that s Jardins had run up against holastic difficulties and was in gible to compete.

'oast Stars Will ompete in Meet

The other famous son of California, Mickey Riley, will show the cked house what is what in fancy ving. Riley is another Olympic hamp, and will give a special exibition for the fans.

The intercollegiates get under way officially tomorrow afternoon. Twenty entrants in the fancy diving competitions will appear in a qualifying round. Stanford's Ed Throndson entered, Northwestern places Jim O'Keefe on the board, and Union's one entry, Bob Binford, will compete.

Other entries include Phil Garies of Rutgers, Walter Nappa of Minnesota, Walter Grandy of Penn, and many others. Ten will be picked to compete in the semi-finals and finals of this event.

Kojac Seeks to Take Three Titles Home

Georges Kojac of Rutgers is attracting as much attention as any other individual star. Kojac is set to take not one, but three titles home in his bag when the meet is over. He is entered in the 150-yard backstroke, 150-yard medley swim and will be a member of his college's 200-yard relay team.

Kojac is practically conceded first honors in the backstroke already, but whether he will come through in the other events is doubtful. He will have the finest swimmers in the country swimming against him in both events.

Funeral Rites for Eckersall Today

Chicago, March 27 (INS)—Funeral rites for Walter Eckersall, all-time all-American quarterback, were to be held at Holy Cross Church today, only a short distance from Stagg field, where Eckersall won his fame as football player in the years 1901 to 1905 as an undergraduate at the University of Chicago.

The noted football player and sports writer died Monday after a heart attack.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

In the forward swing the club should start first from the top—and by this I mean that it starts (that is, the hands) before any body shifting or turning of shoulders—and it then keeps in front of the way down. This way the club leads as it should and must. It accelerates with the windmill-like swinging of your arms, while meantime you have a feeling that you would, do well to have your right foot anchored against a stone wall or other solid resting place. While in the lower sweep of the club the upper body does move along with it, the shoulders turning in back it, still there must be no "giving" in your right leg because there is where all the "spring" of your action is anchored. Now the right leg includes the hips, so that there is no "going forward" with the middle body as yet. At the instant the clubhead takes the ball, then, you will be on your right leg, but the foot action here is very fast, so that an instant afterward your weight has gone to your left foot, the right leg pressure having been released in its entirety into the ball.

DYNAMITE LINE READY TO BLAST OUT SERIES VICTORY

Boston's rabid hockey fans are banking greatly upon the Bruin's "Dynamite Line" to bring the series with the Montreal Maroons to a close at the Garden tonight. Cooney Weiland, leading scorer in the National League this year, and his two mates, Dit Clapper and Dutch Gainor, have been big factors in the three games played in the series and the Maroon defense line will watch this speed trio closely tonight. The Bruins have won two games and Montreal one. If the Bruins win tonight, they will meet the winner of the Canadien-Ranger series for the Stanley game. Instead of substituting a new team every five minutes, the defense men must divide the extra time. Wilcox will, doubtless, be used more than he has been since this championship series started.

MAROONS OUT TO EVEN SERIES

He is a big rugged youngster, who with a couple of years of Canadian-American League hockey under his belt is well able to stand the pace, regardless of the caliber of the going. Although Wilcox is playing his first season of big league hockey, he is a valuable asset to the Maroons and is dangerous at all times. He is a hard man to outmaneuver on the defense, can and will step into opponents, and, equally as important, he can carry a puck

Bruins Will Alter Attack Tonight

Although the Bruins will alter their attack, they will stick to their old combination style of substituting. Harry Oliver, Marty Barry and Perk Galbraith will be on the front line at the start, opposing Hooley Smith, Nels Stewart and Dave Trottier.

The thunderbolt line has been showing to better advantage during this series than they have at any time this season. Oliver and Galbraith have been superb, while Marty Barry has given the Maroons more trouble trying to stop him then any other Bruin.

Nels Stewart will bear watching tonight. He has done nothing up to the present and for that reason he will be dangerous. Stewart has been playing his usual game, waiting for breaks and loafing as much as possible deep in the Bruins' territory. There has been times when he appeared as though he was going to capitalize on Bruin slips, but he has just missed connections.

Also, Smith and Trottier are liable to break up a game any moment. Smith has been bumped hard on many occasions, but he has taken it without any noticeable loss of determination.

The Weiland line, with Cooney at center and Dutch Gainor and Dit Clapper on the flanks, is the trio the Maroons fear. They have been covering Cooney very closely and with few exceptions he has been unable to shake himself free. However, with Gainor going down center ice as the play maker, Weiland should break through tonight and convert at least a couple of well timed passes into goals. Dit Clapper has had a personal body guard in the form of a Maroon left winger with him at all times.

Amherst Nine to Play Pro Game

Amherst, March 27—Arrangements have been completed between Billy Gleason, manager of the Springfield Hampdens, Eastern League ball club, A. T. Sheaffer, owner, and Herbert D. Howe, manager of the Amherst College baseball team, for an exhibition game at League Park in Springfield, April 24.

Billy and his troupe visited the college yesterday morning and went through their first workout of the season in the Amherst cage, considered the west indoor workout ground in this part of the State.

This exhibition game with the Hampdens will be the second meeting the Jeffmen being severely defeated by the Springfield club three years ago.

Army Elects New Sport Captains

West Point, N. Y., March 27—Captains of Army boxing, swimming, hockey and wrestling teams have just been elected for next year, Major F. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics, announced today.

The new sports leaders are: Boxing, Eugene L. Brown, Nashville, Tenn.; wrestling, Maris L. Fisher, Savanna, Ill.; swimming, William A. Davis, East Orange, N. J.; and hockey, John K. Waters, Lutherville, Md. They are all in the class of 1931.

TUFTS TO HAVE STRONG NINE

The Tufts infield and outfield begins to take shape after three days of outside practice.

Nick Fitzgerald has been put on first base and looks as though he would hold the position vacated by his brother, Jimmy, last year's first sacker. Bob Verge seems to be the class of the field at the keystone bag and shows plenty of punch at the plate.

Norm Ingalls is back at his old place at short. Ray Ockert, the reformed outfielder, completes the infield at third. Ockert's work on ground balls has been good and it looks as if the Attleboro lad will start the season at the hot corner.

Haber, Lupien and Godfrey are rated as the first-string outfield at present. Godfrey may be supplemented by Fine, Hastings or Tobey, but Haber and Lupien, a couple of heavy hitters, look like fixtures in the outer garden.

Local Boys Elected Bowdoin Managers

Brunswick, March 27—Newton K. Chase of Blue Hill and Francis H. Donaldson of Salem, Mass., have been appointed assistant managers of Bowdoin swimming for the coming year; Richard C. best pitchers, so that my boys may get into real season form at bat."

The pilot of the Boston Club figures that nothing will sharpen the batting eyes of the Braves better than facing the best kind of pitching in these exhibition scraps.

An encouraging feature of the final string of games played in St. Pete was the hitting of the Tribesmen. Neun, Richbourg, Clark, Moore, Berger and Rhiel were smacking the ball hard. All these men need now is work against good pitching to polish off the good work begun at St. Pete.

Last season, the Braves went through a flock of games without making errors in fielding, but lacked the punch to win the contests. More than 40 games were dropped by the Braves by the margin of one run.

If the added hitting power McKechnie has gathered can come along and produce in the pinches, it will mean a bunch of victories for the Braves of 1930.

And that is why the manager is glad that his Athletes are to face first class pitching today, and for the other three games with the A's.

Socks Seibold, right hander is ready to start on the hill for the Braves. Socks is in good shape, and can hold the Athletics in check for the half of the game he is likely to toss.

HARVARD MEN GIVE COURT TROPHY

THE seventh annual amateur basketball tournament conducted by the Boys' Club of Boston at the Eben D. Jordan Memorial gymnasium, Charlestown during the month of April will have an added incentive for the senior teams competing this year.

In addition to the individual gold basketballs presented to the winners, there will be a splendid trophy presented by former Harvard men, which is to be known as the Harvard Trophy, to become the permanent property of the team winning the championship of the senior division for two consecutive years.

The general committee in charge announces that a judiciary committee has been selected to render decisions on all disputes, the committee consisting of William Bingham, athletic director of Harvard; Ed Wachter, Harvard varsity basketball coach and leading authority on the sport, and Henry McCarthy, athletic director of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and director of the high school tournament conducted by that college.

Applications by mail can be made by writing, giving the name of the team, the lineup and correct weight of each player, together with the manager's name and address. Address communications to Athletic Director, Boys' Club of Boston, Inc 15 Green st., Charlestown.

CAMPOLO FOR GARDEN BOUT

Either Rubbery Jawn Risko or Vittorio Campolo, the heavyweight from Argentina, will meet the winner of the quarrel between Al Friedman and Joe Monte, which will be settled in the Garden tomorrow night.

Messrs. Friedman and Monte are to renew a debate which started some years ago in the amateur ranks and has continued to the present day.

The Hebrew heavyweight will be a slight favorite to defeat Monte, despite the fact that Monte has always been his master.

Friedman worked at Kelley & Flayer Gym with Sam Weiss, Philadelphia heavyweight who is to box Pat McCarthy in the 10 round semifinal bout, while Monte wound up his training sessions with a brisk workout against Tom Kirby at Rolando's Gym.

The youthful Weiss looked very good against Friedman and McCarthy will have to be very spry if his comeback attempt is to succeed. Patrick thinks he can defeat Monte, Friedman, Schaaf or Maloney, and will go out from the opening bell tomorrow night to knock out Weiss and gain revenge with any of the local heavyweights.

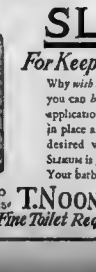
In the six rounders, Jack McCarthy of Roxbury will be bracketed with Jimmy Mantell of Charlestown, Danny Regan of Gardner with Jack Pugard of Boston, and Al Linsi of Italy with Mel Aragon of New York, while in the four rounders, Gene Hanlon, Cambridge fly-weight, will meet Freddy Latzino of New York and Joe Vlnchs, Lithuanian bantam weight, will face Big Boy Burlap of Westerly, R. I.

Conn. Aggie Track Team Outdoors

Storrs, Conn., March 27—The Conn. Aggies track team began outdoor practice yesterday under the direction of Coach Paul Bilgood.

The outlook for the year's team is not good, because of a shortage of experienced material. The backbone of the team will be Dan Chubbuck, who holds Eastern intercollegiate records for the shot put and the discus, and school records for the shotput, discus, low hurdles and broad jump.

Other men displaying good form to date are Gwin, Barnes and White. The schedule:



SLIKUM
For Keeping the Hair In Place
Why wish for smooth laying hair when you can have it so easily. A morning application of SLIKUM keeps your hair in place all day and produces that so desired well-groomed appearance. SLIKUM is greaseless and will not stain. Your barber will apply it.

Heinie Wagner Proving Himself a Real Manager

NEW PILOT IS GETTING RESULTS

By JOE CASHMAN

PENSACOLA, FLA., March 27—Anybody who thinks Charles "Heinie" Wagner does not know how to manage a ball club is greatly mistaken.

For a man who is taking his first crack at the job, the Sox pilot is a marvel.

He handles the hundred and one details connected with the task as though he had been doing it for years. And he isn't merely copying the method of Bill Carrigan, his predecessor and friend and advisor of long standing.

Joe Cashman

He's smart enough to adopt a lot of Bill's stuff but he has a lot of good ideas of his own, too.

He's not soft and easy-going, nor is he at loss as to how to handle athletes, as so many believed he would be. He's not a slave driver, but he is just as good a disciplinarian as Carrigan, and even more hard-boiled than the former pilot, toward those who fail to obey orders.

The players realize this, so Heinie's word is law and harmony reigns supreme in the ranks. We were among those who doubted whether he had the personality to inspire men, which all successful managers must have, but no longer.

He has handled the players in such a manner that there isn't a man on the team who doesn't love and respect him and isn't willing to do everything in his power to make him a success as a pilot.

Ball players, on the whole, are inclined to be lazy. At least, they rarely want to do any more work than is required of them. The Fenway athletes are exceptions.

Players Work Hard for New Pilot

Yet, so strong are they for Wagner that they are out on the field an hour or more earlier, every day, than they have to be and they don't want to quit when he calls a halt.

The weather has been bad down here all spring and the players have been confined to the hotel several days. Under ordinary conditions, they wouldn't be in very good shape now, but they have worked so hard whenever it has been possible that they are in better trim than any Red Sox club in several years.

Wagner, to date, has made good with a bang as a manager. His assistant, Jack McCallister, also fills the bill. He's a regular Pollyanna, always smiling and looking at the bright side of life and his pep is contageous.

He never interferes with his boss and does his own work in a manner that leaves nothing to be desired. He knows baseball backwards, has an expert knowledge of American League players gained during 12 years as an official of the Cleveland club and is a live wire on coaching lines, something the Sox have long lacked.

Red Sox Strategy Board Completed

There's nothing the matter with the Red Sox board of strategy. If the club fails to get anywhere this year, it will be due to lack of players and not to absence of brains and ability on the part of the directors of the outfit.

The Sox gained another victory over Pensacola yesterday which gives them an exhibition game record of five victories and no defeats.

The team showed some punch at the bat for the first time this spring, making 11 hits, including a triple and four doubles. The game scheduled with Louisville for tomorrow has been called off. The Colonels will play here only on Saturday and Sunday. The cancellation means another scrub game and a chance for the regulars to break even with the Yannigans.

To date, the rookies have won three, the veterans one and one game ended in a tie.

B. U. Five Defeats Lexington 38 to 21

The "Sad" basketball team of the Boston University school of education defeated the Lexington high school teachers, 38 to 21, in a hard fought game in the Lexington high school gymnasium last evening.

Lexington was leading at the end of the first half, 17 to 12, but the B. U. players took the lead in the third quarter and were ahead, 27 to 24, at the close of that session. Kramer and Burns starred for the winners.

Tech Junior Crew Shows Power

The M. I. T. junior varsity crews came close to beating the varsity eight over the Henley distance yesterday afternoon in a race which ended in a dead heat.

Coach Haines was greatly pleased with the showing of the lowers and intimated that he may make a couple of shifts tomorrow.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

MR. BOSTON

—by— JACK CONWAY

Jack Conway

THE tremendous pull that hockey has on sport fans was proved once more when the Argonne Club postponed its show featuring the Perlick Twins rather than conflict with the clash between the Bruins and the Maroons at the Garden tonight," said Mr. Boston.

"The hockey game was a sure sellout. It would have been unwise for Eddie Mack to have run in opposition to such an attraction.

"It is likely that several thousand persons who will attend the hockey game tonight would have gone to the Argonne Club's show if there had not been an ice battle on tap.

"When Charley Adams first introduced pro hockey to Boston, the boxing clubs didn't care if they contested with the hockey tilts. Hockey finally caught on and any persons who formerly had ever missed a fight passed up the ring show when it fell on the same night as an important ice bath.

"I can remember the late Tom Goodwin remarking: 'I am not going to run any more shows on the same night of a hockey game. Fight fans are going daffy over hockey.'

"Tom himself fell for hockey stronger than most of his patrons. I used to see him at the Bruins games with Bobby Goldman, Eddie Devine and Sam Lewis. The last three, I feel sure, will be at the Garden tonight. And they would not have passed up the hockey tussle even though there had been a fight at Mechanics Building.

Wrestling Bouts Now Furnishing Bloodshed

"WRESTLING is furnishing more bloodshed than ball fighting, which causes Dennis Shea to ask: 'What is the matter with all these folks who claim every wrestling match is in the bag?' Dennis calls attention to the fact Diglane suffered contusions of the head and severe cuts on his left ear and chin when he was crashed through the ropes to the floor of the Arena by Sonnenberg, and to the crash which Count Zarynoff received on his left arm when he struck an iron bolt following a toss over the ropes in a bout at Worcester.

"I once considered wrestling a nice safe job for an athlete who wanted to live to a ripe old age, but after seeing what happened to Diglane and Zarynoff I have decided that bull fighting would be better for one's health. You can at least pick out an old bull, while this fellow Sonnenberg is too young and reckless to get tangled up with.

Baseball Fans Hear Call of Spring

"I FIND that baseball fans are once more displaying keen interest in such things as box scores. Cy Murphy dropped in with the information he is getting out a magazine to be known as the 'Royal Rooter.' It is expected to revive interest in baseball hereabouts. Everybody remembers the fambus Royal Rooters headed by Jack Keenan and Nuf Ced McGreevy. Then there was that song 'Tessie' which always meant victory. Cy Murphy will be entitled to a box full of keys to the city in the event he can awaken interest in baseball here. It has been so long since the Hub had a pennant winner that the fans have forgotten what a championship flag looks like. Well, let's get started in the right direction this year.

Pat McCarthy Will Have Plenty of Backers

"WHEN Pat McCarthy whirls into action against Sam Weiss at the Garden tomorrow night, he will have plenty of backers. I hear that the Roxbury Adonis is in the best condition of his career and that he is confident he will upset Weiss. If McCarthy has his former ability as a boxer, he can still lick a great many of the young men who are posing as heavyweight contenders.

"WRESTLING was once considered brutal on the customers. Since Sonnenberg started filling up various hospitals with his opponents, folks claim the game itself is getting too rough. It is hard to satisfy everybody.

CANADIENS WIN IN CUP SERIES

Montreal, March 27—Howie Morens scored the goal which gave Les Canadiens the right to play the New York Rangers in the hockey play-off series.

The Canadiens' star scored the second goal in a 2-2 game which went the record distance of 1 hour, 33 seconds.

By virtue of their previous 1 to 0 victory, the Canadiens won the play-off place as total goals in a two-game series decide the winner.

Norwich Fencers to Duel Here Saturday

Northfield, Vt., Mar. ...—As a result of a protest filed with the Eastern Intercollegiate Fencing Association, Norwich has been transferred from the central to the northern section and will compete in elimination matches to be held in Boston, Saturday, it was announced tonight by Col. F. B. Edwards, Norwich coach.

The northern section comprises New England colleges. Norwich was originally listed with the central section made up of New York colleges, whose elimination matches will be held at West Point.

Church Fives Play for Lynn Title

St. Stephen's, leaders of Division A, and Washington Street Baptist, leaders of Division B, will open a series for the championship of the Greater Lynn Church Basketball League at the Lynn Y. M. C. A. gym tonight.

The second game will be played Saturday afternoon at the same gym. St. Stephen's has won the title for three years.

Quincy Nine to Stage Big Sport Night

The Quincy baseball team of the Twi League will stage its monster sports night tomorrow evening at the South Shore Rollerway, formerly known as Swig's Dance Hall on Wollaston boulevard.

Spring Football Ends at Tufts

Spring football practice at Tufts will close tomorrow afternoon on the old campus. If enough men turn out, the two-week season will wind up with a scrimmage.

To date Coach Manly has been handicapped in that the squad in toto could not report on the same day. This was brought about by the numerous other activities which keep the football men busy, and the annual swimming meets for the freshmen and sophomores.

Stearns School Awards Letters

Mont Vernon, N. H., March 27—Just before Stearns School closed for the spring recess Coach Regan announced the names of the eight boys who were awarded varsity basketball letters in recognition of their work on the team this season.

They are: Patrick J. Collins, captain, of Holyoke; Edward Babcock of Wellesley, Arthur Fields of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sui Lin Hsu of Shanghai, China, J. Vincent Murphy of Lowell, Harold Sears of Grand Rapids, Mich., Curtis Sherwood of Watertown, Ct., and Paul Brusquini of Mont Vernon.

SONNENBERG IS VICTOR

Providence, R. I., March 27—Gus Sonnenberg, heavyweight wrestling champion, successfully defended his crown by defeating Panther Joe Malcewics in two straight falls.

Sonnenberg's spectacular flying tackle accounted for both falls. The first fall came after one hour and eight minutes of fast wrestling when Malcewics tossed Bonzy all over the ring only to fall victim to the flying tackle.

The Panther was in a bad way at the start of the second fall and Sonny immediately started to work on the loser. Three consecutive flying tackles pinned Malcewics' shoulders to the mat for the deciding fall.

HAIR may fall out after any prolonged illness, including influenza. Since the system is weakened by the poisons of the disease, the scalp is also not as healthy, and the hair follicles become weakened. Keep the scalp clean—a shampoo fortnightly is beneficial.

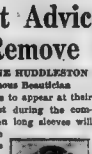
DRY SKIN PROBLEM IN BEAUTIFYING ARMS

Expert Advice on How to Remove Wrinkles

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON
World-Famous Beautician

FOR the arms to appear at their beauty best during the coming season when long sleeves will be taboo, the skin must be absolutely free from blemishes. It must be smooth and of fine texture, also, if at all possible beauty benefit is to be gained.



Josephine Huddleston

The most common type of blemish found on the arms is slight redness and dryness, particularly at the elbows and just below and above them. Whether this is due to carelessness or because we are so prone to rest the weight of our arms on our elbows I don't know, but the fact still remains that this part of the arms shows more wear and tear than other parts. Dry pimples are found here, too, and they are extremely disfiguring.

A definite routine which will eliminate these beauty ills should be put into practice at once, so that as soon as the weather is favorable every one of you will be able to don your short-sleeved frocks with a perfectly clear conscience.

A stiff bristled flesh brush is of major importance for scrubbing the arms if dry pimples are clogging the pores. Even though this condition has not actually developed but shows sign of doing so, the flesh brush will make the skin marvelously smooth within a short time.

If dry pimples are present it is advisable to apply a liberal amount of olive oil to the affected area at least five minutes before cleansing the arms. The oil penetrates and softens the dry impurities which are clogging the pores, thus making their removal easier and less irritating. Just smooth the oil over the skin, let it remain on for five minutes or so, then make a good lather with any bland soap, such as castile, and spread this over the arms. Sprinkle some ordinary cornmeal over the lather, then rub gently for a minute or two. Rinse off the lather and cornmeal and, with a fresh lather covering the skin, rub the flesh brush over the arms until they are perfectly clean.

Dry the arms and then massage a liberal amount of nourishing cream into the skin. If the skin merely needs refining and the application of oil to counteract dryness and redness, any good nourishing cream may be used. If the skin covering the elbows is quite wrinkled, however, I would suggest that you use the lanolin, cocoa butter and mineral oil nourishing cream so often referred to in this column. It will help to plump out somewhat these and is splendid for softening and nourishing the skin. It is easy to make. Simply liquify and heat equal parts of cocoa butter, lanolin and mineral oil, and then add the three ingredients together, blending them with a dover beater until the mixture begins to harden.

This cream should be used twice daily at first for best results, although, if you find this impossible, use it directly after cleansing the arms at night and let the cream remain on until morning.

If redness and dryness is only slight, and you believe that real nourishing treatments are unnecessary, follow the cleansing with a liberal coating of camphor ice. The camphor ice should be well massaged into the skin and left on for at least half an hour, longer if possible. This is a very simple remedy and is an excellent one for softening the skin and bleaching out red tints.

It also may be used with most satisfactory results for softening the skin and clearing up dry pimples, but is effective only after the cleansing method outlined above has been followed.

Girl Unafraid -:- By Gladys Johnson

Nowadays people aren't puritanical," said Ardeth. "A man can't be engaged to every girl he kisses." She was hurting Ken, and she would have been less a woman if she hadn't pressed the advantage. "I should congratulate you. Cecilie is charming," she added. "Why not tell of it?"

I only kept the things up to please Mother. And then I met you."

She would not meet his eyes. Her gaze was on the bright star. But she felt his intent gaze on her face. He was so close his breath stirred her hair.

"I went wild about you, Ardeth. It was the real thing at last. Oh, darling, there have been times when I just had to bite my tongue to keep from blurting out how much I loved you. I wouldn't—without figuring how I could ask you to marry me."

"Why?" It was only a whisper through her stiff lips. And still she would not look at him.

"My mother. I didn't know how I was going to tell her. She's just the Parkers. Besides—she was afraid I'd know. That it would affect my future. I'd just entered college, and she was determined that I'd have those four years free of worry or economics. There was no money to send me to college, but she found a way."

Ken drew a long breath but his voice shook.

"She sold all her jewelry. She told me she was going to Europe to travel until I finished my four years. She got a miserable hole of a room in a furnished house. She crawled in this hole—cut herself away from everyone—so she'd keep the truth from me. Her letters to me were sent to a friend in England and remailed. I never knew the difference until she was taken so ill that they took her to the city hospital. Ill, because she'd actually starved herself!"

His voice was stifled. "Then I learned all about the whole crazy, dreadful, splendid scheme!

"Lord—that place she'd been living. Ardeth! A dark hole of a place in a disreputable neighborhood—my poor, proud little mother! Wall paper with damp spots of mold leaking gas. I sat down and cried like a baby when I saw it.

"She nearly died. I felt as if I had killed her. Even if it was entirely unnecessary, she'd done it for me. She's been sickly ever since. And I'm the only thing she has, Ardeth, to care for."

Worry Causes Sleepless Nights

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
U. S. Senator From New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

SLEEP is life-giving. It is essential to our very existence. When it is disturbed and broken we are reduced to poor creatures.

Many there are who suffer from the evil effects of sleeplessness and would give much for quiet sleep.

During sleep every muscle is at rest, the nerves are at rest, and the brain is at rest. The heart and lungs keep on working, but the digestion is on part-time basis.

Sleep is perhaps more necessary than food; at least one can go longer without food than without sleep. As we sleep we collect energy for another day.

Without sleep the nervous system breaks down. Insomnia or loss of sleep is a serious matter, especially if it becomes a habit.

Speaking of habit, the way we sleep is somewhat a matter of habit. You have noticed that if you lose sleep for two or three nights, or go to bed very late, you are likely to take on the habit of being sleepless.

There are many causes for the condition known as insomnia. A constitutional trouble, some injury or sickness may bring with it this uncomfortable and depressing symptom.

Improper diet, with constipation, is perhaps the outstanding cause in a majority of cases. Poisons in the body from the intestinal tract badly affect the nervous system. Sleeplessness is the result.

Drinking coffee at night will cause insomnia in a nervous person. So will excessive smoking or the taking of certain drugs.

I beg of you not to resort to the taking of drugs for insomnia. Too many lives have been ruined in this way. Sleeping powders, sleeping potions, sleeping drops are all dangerous. They lead to drug addiction and conditions worse than insomnia. They should not be self-prescribed certainly. This is your doctor's job.

Try taking a tepid bath. This is a good thing before retiring. It causes your nerves to relax. The circulation is drawn to the extremities. Sleep is likely to follow.

Many persons find a glass of warm milk beneficial before going to bed. A real meal is harmful, but something light taken into the stomach before bedtime may help you to sleep.

Sleeping in the fresh air is good for sleeplessness. Have the windows wide open. Given a comfortable bed and plenty of warm covering in cold weather this is conducive of good sleep.

Taking a brisk walk before bedtime, with deep breathing, is a splendid tonic. Walk until you are physically tired. A physically tired person is the best sleeper.

Worry is probably one of the most common causes of sleeplessness. Don't get the bad habit, you are likely to fare very badly for sleep. Why worry? It never did any good. Learn to banish thoughts of business and other cares when you leave the day's work. Have a place where mind may serve you if you but try. Just try it and see how much brighter things will look tomorrow!

If you feel that you have anything seriously the matter, if you are not feeling fit physically, you should see a physician, and find out the cause. Insomnia is likely to be a symptom of some trouble that needs correction

Lovejoy -:- Serial by Beatrice Burton

CHAPTER 65

"FEVER always makes babies breathe noisily," said Norrie, her eyes shining with the calm light that was always in them. "But the chances are that the baby will be breathing without a sound in a little while. Children get over things in no time at all. . . . I think I ought to wake up Dr. Arnott and tell him to go home."

"No," said Tom, "let him sleep."

Norrie got up and closed the hall door.

"I want to say something to you, Lovejoy, and I don't want Aunt Em to hear it," she said softly. "She's the best woman in the world. But she has her own ideas about babies and she's been feeding Tommy between meals ever since you left. She gives him lots of sugar to cut his teeth on,' as she says. And she doesn't believe that spinach juice and orange juice are good for him. When you go away again—if you do—you'd better take the baby with you."

"Thanks," Lovejoy's voice was like ice. "I can plan my life without your help, Norrie!" She still hated her.

Norrie shrugged her shoulders.

She turned and went into the sick room for a moment. When she came out there was a look of relief on her face.

"The baby's sleeping like a lamb," she said, looking past Lovejoy and speaking to Tom. "Good night."

She went out through the door that Tom held open for her. He closed it behind her.

"Every word that she said was the truth," said Lovejoy, after a minute or two of silence. "I was almost the same years old when I came to Aunt Em. She doesn't know much about little babies. I must have had the stomach of a young ostrich—for I can still remember the pancakes and the fried eggs that she used to feed me for Sunday morning breakfast. I always had what she and Uncle Samuel had. And think of her giving Tommy sugar and pink frosting from a birthday cake!"

Tom was shaking his head.

"You're not quite fair to Aunt Em," he said. "She did feed him junk—but the doctor said that the hot weather was partly to blame for his sleeplessness. The room had been awfully hot and sometimes I'd keep the light burning half the night—and he'd wake up and cry. . . . Lovejoy, he needs the cool home and its own father and mother. There's no getting around that!"

He sat down on the window seat and put his head down into his hands. Lovejoy noticed how much thinner they were than they had been a few weeks before.

"I'll—I'll be nice to her," he said, "you can't go away from him and from me again, Lovejoy. He can't get along without you and I—God! I can't live without you. Lovejoy! I can't live without you. It's taken me only two weeks to find it out. But I sure do know it!"

Lovejoy looked down at her left hand. Her engagement ring and Steve Oglebay's ring, and her thoughts flew back to him.

Good to Eat

SPEAKING of Salad Dressings, every so often I receive requests for salad dressings that do not contain fattening ingredients. Oh, yes, there is such a thing and to mind, the recipes I have for you today are more appetizing than the anti-fat dressing that is made out of Russian

Martha Lee

The simplest non-fattening salad dressing is made by mixing together ½ tsp. of salt, ¼ tsp. of paprika and ¼ tsp. of dry mustard. Add to this 2 tbsps. of vinegar. Place on ice and when ready to serve stir in 1 tsp. of tomato catsup, 1 tsp. of chopped parsley, 1 tsp. of chopped green pepper and 1 tsp. of chopped onion. Pour over any desired salad.

And here's a Boiled Mayonnaise that's guaranteed to be anti-fat.

ANTI-FAT MAYONNAISE

INGREDIENTS:

- 3 egg yolks
- 2 egg whites
- 1 tsp. dry mustard.
- 1 tsp. salt.
- ½ tsp. paprika, speck of cayenne.
- 1 tsp. sugar or a tiny speck of saccharine.
- 1 scant cup of vinegar.

(If the vinegar is very strong, mix it with 1-3 water.)

METHOD:

Beat eggs together in a double boiler. Add the mixed dry ingredients, stir in the vinegar and cook until smooth and creamy. Then pour over any desired salad.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Caring for the Guests

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. When having a few in for bridge, is it necessary to show the guests upstairs?

2. If so, when leaving should the hostess go up with them, and who precedes coming down?

S. O. U.

1—If the wraps are to be left in an upstairs room, it is hospitable for the hostess, if there is no maid, to indicate to the guests the room in which they are to leave their wraps

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1.—Will you kindly tell me whether the usual marriage announcement requires a written answer?

2—If a reply is proper, will you please suggest an appropriate note when one is not acquainted with the bride?

MARIAN.

South Boston.

1.—Not necessarily. However, if we know very well either the bride or the groom, it is natural that we would wish to write a note.

2.—The conventional terms are used for such notes of good wishes —the sending of your "congratulations" to the groom, and your "best wishes" to the bride. This is the fundamental idea, and to this you add the thoughts that your friendship suggest.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

NOT TO BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY

TO a bachelor, spring suggests new haberdashery, romance and adventure; to a married man, merely fly screens, moth-balls, lawn mowers and cleaning day.

Eve had as much choice in the matter of a husband as any other woman. She merely accepted what fate sent her, and then convinced herself that he was "the only man in the world!"

SOMEHOW, when a man hears that a woman has had a vivid, colorful "past," he is always inspired with an irresistible desire to brighten up her present.

Satan, himself, could probably make almost any girl love him, if he took the trouble to convince her that it was Mrs. Satan's "lack of understanding" that drove him to—where he is.

The girl of today has had all her rights handed to her on a silver platter by the feminist of yesterday. That is, all except the right husband—and he is just as hard to find as ever.

Jealousy is a magnifying glass; and a jealous woman can always put two and two together—and make twenty four.

THE first thing to do is to discover the exact geographical location of a man's vanity—whether it is in his physical prowess, his mental superiority or his sex-appeal. After that, all that remains is to wind in the reel and take him off the hook.

Apparently, the tenderest, most impressionable thing on earth is the heart of a brand-new Renogradiate.

In the average man's opinion, the command, "Thou shalt not steal," does not apply to an umbrella, a kiss, a wisecrack, the hotel towels, or another man's girl.

Would Plan Divorce

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man of twenty one, engaged to a girl of nineteen through reading the philosophers and observing life, I have become convinced that love does not last. So I want this young lady to be prepared for a probable divorce. She is emotional, and does not see this. Shall I marry her?

Medford. WALTER.

YOU have read too much, dear Walter, and learned—shall I say?—too little. Your willingness to enter matrimony unfeelingly, with marriage and divorce, is unjustified in itself and most unfair to a girl who takes marriage seriously. Do not marry this girl, or any other, until you yourself have fallen in love, since without love marriage is meaningless. It is possible that even a real love may subside as years pass. Or it may be less apparent to outsiders, which is another matter. But there is at the cry least a good sporting chance that true and earnest love will weather repeated storms. Don't marry until you have come to believe this.

THE WEEKLY STORY FOR BOYS and GIRLS

Tom Toddy and Tillie Toddy

By UNCLE TODDY

EVERY THURSDAY ON THIS PAGE

ON THE RADIO AT 5.30 P. M. EVERY THURSDAY STATION WEEI

Copyright, 1930, by Paul Wing

Lorraine and David are two little friends of mine. I believe you would like to know them, because they are a very nice little girl and boy. So I am going to tell you, each week, some of the interesting things that happen to them.

Lorraine is David's sister. And David is Lorraine's brother—which, of course, he couldn't very well help being—even if he wanted to—which he doesn't.

They are just about your age—unless you are very much older than you look.

Lorraine has a doll—and a dimple in her chin—and a very handsome doll carriage — and a broad smile—and a very pleasant disposition.

And David has a little electric railway which he got for Christmas—and a lot of freckles on his nose—and a very fine collection of postage stamps—and he, too, has a very pleasant disposition.

So you can see pretty much what they are like.

The reason I think you would like to know them is that they both have a pleasant disposition. Or perhaps I should say, "They have two pleasant dispositions"—because it would be very hard for two people to have one disposition, wouldn't it? Even if they were very small people.

Perhaps you are wondering why the name of this story is, "Tom Toddy and Tillie Toddy." Well that is something I was just about to tell you. But first I will have to tell you what happened to Lorraine and David last Tuesday, just after they got home from school—or maybe it was Wednesday—I forget.

Well, anyway, when they got home from school that day they were very hungry. They are hungry all of the time, but that day they were especially hungry.

So they went into the house through the kitchen door and stole quietly into the pantry. Now I don't think they should have done that, without asking their mother, but that is what they did.

And David whispered to Lorraine, "Let's eat some doughnuts and jam!" And Lorraine, who almost always agreed with whatever David said, replied, "All right, let's do!"

And then Lorraine whispered, "You can climb better than I can, so you get them."

So David started to climb up to the third shelf where the doughnut crock was perched. He climbed very carefully, because he knew if he made any noise Fair mother would hear him and come to see what it was all about. And he knew she would not like what it was all about. And he knew she would be very, very cross. So he climbed very carefully.

But not carefully enough!

For just as he reached the third shelf and was just about to put his hand into the doughnut crock —what do you suppose happened?

Well, David's elbow struck a pickle jar, and that stood on the shelf right near the doughnut crock and—down came the—rattlety, bangety, clumpety, bumpety, bump—striking everything it could strike all the way down until it hit the floor with a last big bump.

Then a very curious thing happened:

As the can hit the floor with a last big bump it said, very clearly and distinctly—

"Ouch!"

David jumped clear down from the shelf, he was so surprised.

"What did you say?" he asked.

"We said 'Ouch!'" said the can, "as it we meant 'Ouch!'"

"Cans can't talk," said Lorraine.

"Cans can," said the can, positively—"at least, this can can", it added as an afterthought.

Lorraine and David were pretty scared, as you may well imagine.

"I—I'm so — so — sorry," stammered David, "I didn't mean to knock you down."

"Well," said the can, "if you are really sorry, it's all right. And besides, you didn't knock us down. We bumped into your elbow ourselves and knocked ourselves down so that you wouldn't get into trouble by eating doughnuts and jam without asking your mother first—and so you wouldn't get a stomachache from eating them. Because you see too much doughnuts and jam aren't good for you. And they are especially not good for you if you haven't asked your mother. We did it ourselves," said the can.

"That was very nice of you," said Lorraine, who was very much frightened by this time. "But," she added, "you are only one can. Who is we?"

At that two funny little smiling figures jumped right off the label of the can onto the floor.

"We are we," they said both at once.

And David and Lorraine saw that they were a tiny little boy and a tiny little girl.

"But," said David, "what are your names?"

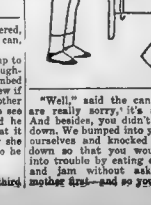
"My name," replied the little boy, "is Tom Toddy."

"And my name," said the little girl, "is Tillie Toddy."

"Where did you come from? and how did you get here? and where do you live?" Lorraine asked.

"Come! come! you ask too many questions too suddenly!" cried Tom Toddy. "But I'll try to answer them, anyway," he said. "As to your first question, we came from the label of that Toddy can—we are on the label of every Toddy can. And as to your second question, we got here when your mother brought that Toddy can from the grocery store. And as to your third question, we live in Toddy Town, which is in the state of Good Health, which is the most important state in the whole country. And we will be glad to take you to Toddy Town next Thursday, if you want to go."

"Today," said Tom Toddy, "we have a suggestion to make to you. And that is, that when you are hungry, instead of taking doughnuts and jam, ask your mother for a glass of Toddy mixed with milk—she will be glad to give it to you—and you won't be hungry any more."



"Yes," said Tillie Toddy, "and you'll like its taste better than anything else you could eat or drink—and it will be good for you too, because it's made of things that are good for growing girls and boys—cocoa and malt and sugar and milk."

"Yes," said Tom Toddy, "and what's more, there is more malt and finer cocoa in Toddy than in any other drink like it—and that's why it helps to make boys and girls grow stronger and healthier than anything else will."

"And now," Tom said, "meet us here next Thursday if you want to go to Toddy Town. For—"

"We surely do!" cried Lorraine and David, both together.

And at that, Tom and Tillie suddenly jumped back to the label of the Toddy can and nothing Lorraine or David said would make them do or say anything more that day. But it was pretty to know what happened to them on the way to Toddy Town just read the Tom and Tillie Toddy story on this page next Thursday —or listen in next Thursday (a week from today) at half-past five in the afternoon on radio station WEEI.

A WORD TO MOTHERS

Toddy is the delicious malted chocolate food-drink, in powdered form, which is made from pure milk, freed from butter fat, healthful malty, nutritious cocoa and sugar. It is richer than any substitute in bone and tooth building materials, in muscle building milk proteine and in the growth promoting vitamines that are so necessary to growing children. Its ingredients are unadulterated—an important thing to remember. Toddy is made of finer materials and by a more expensive process than any other similar food. Compare its "foodful" flavor and you will instantly recognize its superiority. At all good grocers.

NEW ENGLAND TRADE SURVEY COMPLETED

By FRANK H. MELOON

Dr. Julius Klein, assistant Secretary of Commerce, in Boston today, announces completion of the department's domestic commerce survey of New England. Hugh Butler, New England manager of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, explains that this is "the most ambitious piece of work of its kind yet undertaken by our organization. The New England foreign trade survey field work is complete and the work of compilation and analysis is now in hand. The domestic commerce side of this survey will come in three volumes, two of which have already been published, and the third one will be available Friday—a book entitled The Industrial Structure of New England. This volume, along with the two which preceded it—The Market Data Handbook of New England, and The Commercial Structure of New England, provides a thorough going basis for the study of New England's industrial and commercial structure and activities."

Dr. Charles F. Artman, chief business specialist of the domestic commerce division, has had charge of the field work of this survey in the preparation of these three volumes, and is, in addition, the author of the Industrial Structure volume. He is in Boston today. Dr. Artman, who is well known to many of you, has an intimate knowledge of the New England states, and has had a wide contact with industry and commerce here. He was formerly connected with a prominent financial institution in New York, and conducted an extensive analysis of the cost of marketing perishable foods in that city for the New York Port Authority. He was also for three years in the economics and finance staff of Columbia University.

Visiting several of the principal New England cities, Artman will discuss, with business leaders, the results of the Commerce Department survey, in order to ascertain ways in which these three publications possibly may be used to their advantage and profit. His itinerary includes the following cities: March 27, Boston and Lowell; March 28, Providence; March 29, Fall River; March 31, Bridgeport; April 2, Waterbury; April 3, Burlington; April 4, Manchester, N. H.; April 5, Worcester; April 9, Springfield; April 10, Augusta, Me.; April 11, Boston.

He will speak at each of these cities. Personal interviews are also arranged through co-operative offices in Providence, Worcester and Lowell and the Chambers of Commerce in other cities or through Manager Butler's Boston office.

• • •

W. S. Coulans wires from Wall Street that "actual and prospective increase in the natural gas business has cited as the basis behind the new advances of the principal issues."

Continuance and expansion of American prosperity are considered by leaders in fields of business and finance to be linked with making transportation as speedy as is consistent with safety, for the reason that we find traffic problems closely studied by such leaders.

At the Boston Chamber of Commerce this afternoon Frederick Whitter this week that there is a widespread belief that too much is being said about "unemployment."

National Safety Council study shows that only about 2 per cent of the drivers involved in fatal accidents in the last reported year had been drinking, while about half or many more of the pedestrians were themselves under the influence of liquor.

Another common misapprehension, laid to persistent mishandling of figures, is that the price which automobiles figure have been increasing. The National Safety Council points out on the facts that deaths in proportion to the number of automobiles in use have decreased about one-third since 1920. This is partially explained by the fact that the automotive manufacturers make better, i. e., more easily controlled, cars.

As we have before remarked, fatalities in the United States be most likely to be automobiles temporarily absent from driver who runs into a child may be at fault, but it is interesting to note that the insurance companies in such a case a child under 18 against accident by individual policy. We presume that in Massachusetts and Massachusetts compulsory automobile insurance, which would appear unique also in this respect—no other state has seen fit to copy it. At its outset, its proponents declared its purpose through the states would be rapid.

Walter E. Miller has resigned as vice-president of Fairbanks, Morse & Co. Frank M. Boughey resigned as secretary and was succeeded by R. J. Dierks, formerly assistant-secretary. No successor was named for Mr. Miller.

Recent additions to "de luxe" train running in and out of Boston over the long route calls attention to the fact that more through passenger trains of high speed and luxurious appointments have been put on by American railways in the last year than in any other similar period in the history of all transportation. Scarcely a week has passed without announcements of new trains. All are signs of the coming of iron horses with a speed of 100 miles an hour.

More Now Work 'On Own Account' Than in Past

Farrell, Willard, Wiggin as Examples; Employes Are Capitalists

By B. C. Forbes

B. C. Forbes

WHILE many men are finding themselves compelled to give up doing business on their own account, an increasing number of men are, in effect, working for their own account by putting their capital into the corporation or other enterprise employing them.

This naturally inspired a zest to work whole-heartedly to make the capital grow more valuable through sound profits.

James A. Farrell, for example, has the bulk of the fortune he has earned as an employe of the United States Steel Corporation invested in his corporation's shares. Mr. Farrell's investing his surplus capital in Steel shares many years ago, when his salary and his position were much lower than they are now.

By having several million dollars of his own money invested in the corporation, isn't Mr. Farrell working for his own account and his own benefit just as much as any so-called independent business man?

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, early began putting one of his savings into the shares of the road. He had such faith in its ultimate future that he kept on buying Baltimore & Ohio stock at times when it and the whole stock market impressed most people as unwarrantedly high. There was a time when his holdings showed him a very serious paper loss. But Willard's faith, thanks to the ability and ceaseless energy of himself and his associates, became more and more clearly justified. And, of course, anybody and everybody who bought Baltimore & Ohio stock years ago now has a very generous profit.

Could Willard have felt more incentive to work diligently had he been running a business owned solely by himself?

Albert H. Wiggin, who lately has come into fame as the developer of the largest banking institution in the world, was revealed during the Pujo investigations, a dozen years ago as a very large owner of his own bank stock, the Chase. There's no doubt that the profits he was able to make for stockholders the more he made for himself is responsible for his stockholder. Having much of his own money at stake, how could Mr. Wiggin feel otherwise than that he was as much in business "on his own" as any individual merchant or manufacturer having no stock owning partners?

The du Pont de Nemours Company in 1923 sold 843,750 General Motors common shares to the General Motors Managers' Securities Company. This stock later increased in market value something like $100,000,000. The chairman of the du Pont Company once referred jokingly to a remark someone made that the company would have been $100,000,000 better off had it not sold that stock. His reply was that the du Pont Company had enjoyed more than $200,000,000 enhancement in the value of its permanent holdings of General Motors stock and that therefore he saw no reason for complaint.

There isn't a responsible executive in General Motors who, because of ownership of General Motors stock, doesn't feel that he is working for himself as directly as he would be working did he have his own business.

The comment may be made, "All you have said applies to high-up men of means. What about ordinary folks?"

Most, if not all, of these men were "ordinary folks" at the start. Not only so, but stock ownership is now being put within reach of millions of employes of all ranks, often on terms far more favorable than are available to outsiders. Whether an employe's savings be capitalized into $1000, $10,000, $100,000 or $1,000,000, if he has practically all of it invested in the stock of his own business, is he not in effect, working for his own account?

* * *

While the number of individually-owned businesses may be decreasing, the outstanding fact is that there are in the United States today more capitalists—meaning owners of capital—than ever before, and more than any nation on the face of the earth in all history could match.

Springfield Company Gets Boston and State Awards

Commonwealth of Massachusetts has awarded contract to Indian Motocycle Co. of Springfield, for motorcycles and equipment for 1930. The City of Boston has made a similar award.

CURB MARKET IS FIRM IN AFTERNOON

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, March 27.—The curb market fluctuated erratically under the opposing influences of large buying and selling orders today. Stocks moved forward at the opening with execution of a large overnight accumulation of buying orders, prompted by the sharp advance late yesterday.

Profit-taking and short selling, however, soon turned the market sharply downward, aided by a late break. The early losses were more than lost during the morning, but the market developed a firmer tone around midday and headed upward during the afternoon.

Electric Bond and Share, which lost four points on new high ground late yesterday, advanced about 2 points more at the opening then lost its gain.

American Gas and Electric reached new high ground for the year with a similar gain, these three issues turned downward. Cities Service opened at 41½, a new high for the year, and up 1 point.

The United Gas issues were again turned over in large volume, but showed little net change.

American Chain was again a spectacular feature of the industrials, surging up from 3 points to a record price at 74½, double the year's low, then lost its gain. Where one stock scored about 3 points to a new peak, tumbled back 5 and rebounded nearly 3.

Pacific Gas and Electric preferred sold off a couple of points. Aluminum Co. was firm, selling up a few points in a few sales. Mines were generally reactionary. Bunker Hill dropping to a new low level for the year.

Oils were firm in the early trading. Ohio Oil reaching new high ground for the movement. The later trend was downward, however. The Anglo-American issues tumbled about 3 points to new 1930 lows. Standard of Kansas was transferred to the big board.

In the investment and utility issues, Pennroad eased on publication of its report, showing only about 28 cents a share earned during the first 6½ months of operation.

SWEDISH BALL PROFITS UP

Swedish Ball Bearing Co., "S. K. F.," reports for 1929 net profit of $5,740,862, after deductions for depreciation on building and machinery amounting to $937,282 and after provision for taxes amounting to $1,460,000. This compares with net of $4,819,944 in 1928, after depreciation amounting to $911,359 and a deduction of $1,246,200 for taxes.

These figures on net earnings represent consolidation with parent company receives from subsidiaries in the form of dividends, and do not include the parent company's capital income of these subsidiaries.

The board of directors at a meeting held in Gottenburg, Sweden proposed to distribute $4,180,800 to the stockholders, equivalent to 12 per cent on Kroner 120,000,000 par value stock outstanding, or $3.21 per American share. This compares with a distribution of $3,405,960 a year ago, equivalent to 12 per cent on Kroner 106,000,000 par value then outstanding.

After transferring $49,920 to the pension and relief fund for the company's employes, there remained a balance of $1,510,142 to be transferred to undistributed profits account, together with a carryover of $1,193,122 from the 1928 earnings. After this transfer from the 1929 earnings, undistributed profits amounted to $2,986,780.

The annual meeting of the stockholders is postponed indefinitely and the dividend recommendation will be held in Gottenburg, Sweden, on March 31. After that date distribution of the dividends will be made.

Central Alloy Has $6,046,594 Profit

Central Alloy Steel Co., including Interstate Iron & Steel Co., reports for year ended December 31 net profit of $6,046,594 after depreciation, interest, federal taxes, etc., against $4,903,341 in 1928.

Pres. J. Leonard Replogle states that sufficient stock has been deposited to proceed with the plan of combining the company with the assets of Republic Iron & Steel Co., Donner Steel Co., Inc., and the Bourne, Fuller Co. in a single corporation.

Car Sales Gain

New York, March 27.—Chevrolet dealer sales for March are estimated at 150,000 cars, against 130,000 in May, 1929, the previous high month.

BOND MARKET DEMAND TURNS LIGHTER

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, March 27 (AP)—Bonds were firm in an uninteresting session today. Demand was not particularly impressive and a few thin spots were scattered throughout the list.

Time money was reported as a little tighter, although quoted rates showed virtually no change. Call loans renewed at 3½ per cent, but rather large funds were withdrawn and the rate went to 4 at noon.

Early strength in American Telephone stock carried the convertible 4½ per cent bond to 172½, a new high for some time. At its peak last summer this bond crossed 227. Conversion of the issue into shares is reported to be going forward rapidly.

International Telephone 4½s, which have been very dull, shook off enough of their lethargy to rise half a point.

Railroad and industrial stock privilege issues were quiet, but firm.

Losses averaging less than half a point came out in Texas & Pac. 5s, St. Louis San Francisco 4½s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s and New York Central 5s, while Union Pacific refunding 4½s lost 1¼ on a small transaction.

Wabash 5s, the Pennsylvanias, Grand Trunk 6s, the Southern Railway issues, Santa Fe General 4s and Western Maryland 4s were steady but rather inactive.

United States Rubber 5s, Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s, International Telephone 5s, Sinclair Pipe Line 6s and Columbia Gas & Electric 5s showed an upward trend.

United States governments declined. The larger losses were in the Treasury 3¼s and 3¾s, which dropped about half a point.

German Republic 7s, which made a new high yesterday, traded actively at close to their peak quotation of just under 110.

The largest new offerings of the day was a $5,000,000 issue of West Penn Electric 100-year debentures, priced at 93.

SEABOARD PUT ON BIG CURB

Seaboard Utilities Shares Corporation of Delaware has been admitted to trading on the New York Curb Exchange. Shares are also listed on Chicago and Philadelphia Stock Exchanges.

The corporation reports total net gain of the predecessor Massachusetts corporation and of the Delaware corporation from dividends, interest, realized profits, etc., for the 12 months ending March 17, 1930 after federal taxes, amounted to $1,085,738, from which $609,375 have been paid and declared in dividends, including the April 1, 1930, dividend of 12½c per share. CENSURE VOTE FOR HUSTON IS URGED

Washington, March 27 (INS)—Already perturbed and embarrassed over the Senate revelations of lobbying and stock trading activities of Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, Republican leaders had fresh cause for alarm today when it was reported that a resolution of censure against Huston will be proposed in the Senate when it meets next week.

The Caraway lobby committee, which brought out that the Republican chairman had accepted $36,100 from the Union Carbide Co., ostensibly for the Muscle Shoals lobby, and had diverted the money into his private brokerage account in New York, expects to bring in a partial report next week. This, it was reported today, will be accompanied by a resolution of censure.

HUNDREDS BOW TO KING GEORGE

London, March 27 (AP)—Bright spring weather today attracted a crowd to Buckingham Palace gates to witness arrival of guests—in cocked hats and knee breeches—for King George's first levee since his illness.

King George was dressed in the blue and gold of an admiral's uniform and remained seated on a golden throne throughout the ceremony surrounded by officers of state in magnificent array.

The lord chamberlain announced loudly the names of each of the 600 guests, who bowed low before his majesty.

N. F. Brady Is Dead

New York, March 27 (AP)—Nicholas F. Brady, 51, chairman of the board of the New York Edison Company, died today.

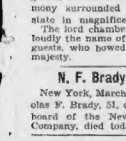
HOLDS UP KAYE DON AUTO DASH



Daytona Beach, March 27 (INS)—Halted by unfavorable weather and beach course conditions in his attempt to break the world auto speed record, Kaye Don, English driver, faced new troubles today in a row between local authorities and the American Automobile Association.

The association's contest board threatens to rescind sanction for the attempt if an "outlaw" race meeting is held at the beach Sunday to attract visitors.

Don's permit expires Sunday and if he has not broken the record then he must seek extension of time.

DUCHESS PLANS CAPE TOWN HOP

London, March 27 (INS)—England's 85-year-old "flying duchess" Mary du Cauroy, is planning to fly from London to Cape Town, South Africa, a distance of 12,000 miles.

The duchess, who is the wife of the Duke of Bedford, expects to start within the next few weeks and will be accompanied by Capt. C. D. Barnard, a former ace of the Royal Air Force. Last year she created a record by flying from London to India and back in seven and a half days.

Along part of the Cape Town route there are several stretches of 500 miles each where a forced landing would mean almost certain disaster.

A phantom figure in a yellow cloak—dim, sinister—steals into the scene—and then vanishes.

Capt. Rind Dies as Liner Reaches Port

Plymouth, Eng., March 27 (AP)—Capt. William Rind of the United States liner President Harding died suddenly of cerebral hemorrhage aboard his vessel here today. He was taken ill on the bridge of his ship a few hours before arriving in harbor.

State Helps Probe 9 Fires in Saugus

Nine mysterious fires in Saugus homes since January have prompted Fire Chief Joy R. Merino to enlist the aid of the State fire marshal to determine their cause. All the fires occurred while occupants of the houses were absent. A baffling blaze early today at the home of Frank Colonico on Main st. was discovered by a passerby.

Chief Joy declares the home owners are above suspicion, but he believes an incendiary maniac with master keys has been gaining access to the homes after ascertaining the occupants are absent.

Await Finding in Shoe Man's Death

Brockton, March 26—Relatives of Henry G. Tucker, prominent shoe man, whose body was found dead last night behind the locked door of his North Main st. garage beside his auto in which the engine was running, are awaiting the finding of the medical examiner.

It is thought that the wind blew the door shut and sprung the lock after Tucker had started to work on his auto.

Wild Beasts Raid Mexican Ranches

Guaymas, Sonora, Mex., March 27 (AP)—Wild beasts descending from the mountains are ravaging the countryside near here, according to reports brought in by farmers, who say the beasts have devoured cattle on a number of ranches.

Pumas and jaguars have been observed in several places.

Shoots Traffic Cop Who Rebukes Him

Decatur, Ala., March 27 (AP)—T. E. Skeggs, former probate judge, drove across a boulevard stop sign last night, according to police, and then shot and probably fatally wounded Traffic Officer Jesse Wright when Wright reprimanded him.

Skeggs, who has served as probate judge for 18 years, was held without bail.

"AND IN CONCLUSION" SAID THE OWL

What did he say? It must have been something funny. Uncle Toddy knows. Uncle Toddy is a wonderful story teller. He tells you just the kind of stories you like to hear. All about the Wise Old Owl, and the Melancholy Football, and lots and lots of other funny creatures!

Prevent Tariff Messes

Reorganize Commission and Give President Power to Make Adjustments in Rates as Needed

If the American people are to be protected in the future from the mess which their senators and representatives in Congress have just made of tariff revision, there must be a change in the method of tariff making.

First, the Tariff Commission should be reorganized. Its membership should be enlarged, and its members paid salaries that will command the ablest tariff experts the country can provide.

Then the President should be given ample authority to make such tariff adjustments from time to time as are recommended by the Tariff Commission.

These adjustments would be based upon technical investigation. They would be in the interest of the whole people and not of only one section of the country or of one group of special interests.

These adjustments would follow the general tariff policy established by Congress. THEY WOULD BE FINALLY SUBJECT TO THE CONTROL OF CONGRESS.

Only by adopting some such flexible system of tariff making as a permanent policy can the American people be protected from another such disgraceful and costly mess as the present Congress has made of tariff revision.

A flexible system of tariff making has already met with wide approval. It has been endorsed by representatives of agriculture and industry, by chambers of commerce and by eminent economists.

Such a system does not delegate legislative power. It only delegates what Senator Vandenburg of Michigan rightly called "MECHANICAL ADMINISTRATION."

For the President would only raise or lower the duties on the recommendation of the Tariff Commission and within the limits prescribed by Congress. The taxing power would remain in Congress.

Now is the time to follow the advice long ago given by Abraham Lincoln and place tariff making "upon a more firm and more durable basis."

And that basis is a flexible tariff system which has been recommended by the President, approved by public sentiment, and should be enacted into law by the present Congress.

Happiness in Granite

Joy in West Sullivan, Why Not Elsewhere?

THE district which centers in West Sullivan, Maine, is filled with happiness and is looking forward to a big season's work in the quarries. All this is because of the placing of a contract by the City of Boston for 50,000 feet of granite curbing to be used in the Hub's streets. This is the largest order in over a quarter of a century and all the quarrymen and stone cutters and their families, too, are applauding madly and a big season's work is assured them.

There is happiness here despite the work of the Indiana limestone bloc which prevented New England granite being used in the new postoffice at an extra cost of only $750,000, a trifle when compared with the cost of the building itself.

This order to West Sullivan and its environs leads us to remark: Why not some more of this in New England? Doesn't some other city want granite curbings and are there no building enterprises in New England that also require granite?

If so, why not give an immediate order and make Quincy, Barre and Cape Ann and a few other New England communities happy?

They Still Buy

It's a Habit.

MORTON MAY, president of half a dozen of the country's biggest department stores, says of business:

"Things are not only getting better—they are better. The country is definitely over the worst of the slump. As a matter of fact, we are finding out that the depression wasn't really as bad as we thought.

"People are buying freely and sensibly. Retail prices are lower than they have been since the war, and quality is better. Men and women are steadily spending more, not only for necessities, but for the luxuries that for a brief time felt the pinch of the November stock market flurry.

"So far as permanent business was concerned, the trouble was principally SCARE."

Mr. May's views, interesting and accurate, reflect the present situation and forecast the future. He could have omitted everything in his statement but the last sentence, however, and still told the story.

Our Own Champion

BOSTON'S good wishes will hover over Miss Sarah Palfrey, seventeen-year-old Brookline miss and national junior tennis champion, when she sails for England as a member of the United States Wightman Cup team. Mrs. Moody (Helen Wills) and Helen Jacobs of California are members of the team.

Boston has produced many good women tennis players, but none so good as Miss Palfrey. At her age, seventeen, one might say that she has some years in which to top the game she now plays.

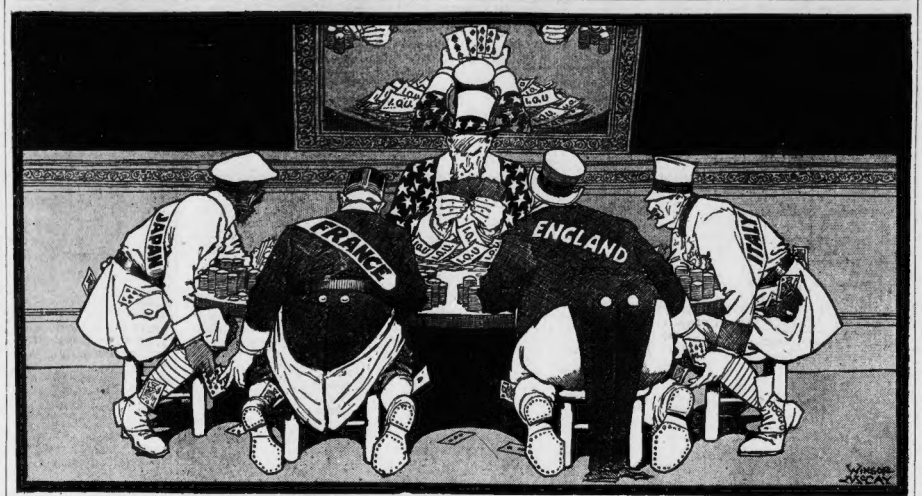
YOU HAVEN'T A CHANCE, SAM!



BY the look on Sam's face, he is puzzled.
There is something "queer" about this game.

Even when he wins, he LOSES.

Every time the European "chiselers" about the board permit him to rake in a pot he gets I. O. U.'s, pretty scraps of paper, but rather difficult to cash. When he loses, he loses REAL MONEY.

And it's costing Sam and the people back home more than $3,000 FOR EVERY DAY that he continues to sit in at this Arms Parley Game.

The Old World Diplomats, if you observe closely, are up to any and all their old tricks to "take Sam for a ride."

And they will, if Sam doesn't throw down his cards and START FOR HOME pretty soon.

Quit, Sam, while the quitting is good!

"COME HOME!"

To AMBASSADOR DWIGHT W. MORROW, Member American Delegation, London Naval Disarmament Conference:

WHY shouldn't the American delegation come home and attend to their own business and the business of the United States, here in this country, now that you have demonstrated the impossibility of attaining the Dream of European reduction of armaments?

Every hour that your delegation, Ambassador Morrow, remains in London, at a cost of $3000 daily, is a waste of their time and of the money of American taxpayers.

Furthermore, three great risks are run:

1—The danger that by some trick or under some guise the European diplomats will put over on the American delegation their underlying plan to get the United States into a bush League of Nations, guaranteeing the security of the imperialistic governments of Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan.

2—The danger that the American delegation, under the combined attack of pacifists and internationalists at home, and of foreign nations abroad, will be induced to perpetuate the impotence of our naval defense by further postponement of building a navy up to a parity with Great Britain's strength.

3—The danger that in any event the United States will have loaded upon it the "responsibility" for the European powers not reducing armaments—on the ground that we are unwilling to join in a treaty guaranteeing THEIR security.

The people feel that you, Mr. Ambassador, are one of the members of the American delegation who stood out against any "Security Pact" for us to sign, with the final result that the delegation as a unit declared against it.

In fact, the New York Times correspondent in London complained specifically of YOU AND SENATOR REED AS OBSTRUCTIONISTS TO THAT DELIGHTFUL PLAN TO INVOLVE US IN ALL EUROPE'S FUTURE QUARRELS.

Among the few definite facts that Secretary Stimson has vouchsafed, with regard to the work of the Delegation, is the fact that you have been in charge of negotiations with the French.

You, Ambassador Morrow, know better than anyone else what the French would mean by a "CONSULTATION PACT," signed by us as a CONDITION of their reducing Naval armament.

You know that in 1914 THE ENTENTE CORDIALE WAS NOTHING MORE THAN A "CONSULTATION PACT" BETWEEN FRANCE AND GREAT BRITAIN. Yet it sufficed for France to get Great Britain committed to take part in the World War, long before the German armies marched through Belgium.

You know, Mr. Ambassador, that so far as France can be made secure by military alliances, she is already secure—THE TRUTH IS THAT, GORGED WITH LOOT FROM THE WORLD WAR, SHE CANNOT BE MADE TO FEEL SAFE, OR TO BE SAFE.

She has the guarantee of the League of Nations, with the pledge of its members to respect each other's sovereignty and territories, and its provision that IF FRANCE IS ATTACKED, THE LEAGUE COUNCIL SHALL ASSEMBLE THE MILITARY AND ECONOMIC POWER OF LEAGUE MEMBERS IN FRANCE'S DEFENSE.

She has the Treaty of Locarno, which OBLIGATES GREAT BRITAIN TO DEFEND HER FROM DANGER ON THE GERMAN FRONTIER.

She has hard-and-fast MILITARY DEFENSE ALLIANCES WITH POLAND, RUMANIA, CZECHO-SLOVAKIA, BELGIUM AND YUGO-SLAVIA, ALL OF THEM HER EUROPEAN DEPENDENCIES with their armies supported by the money which France should have paid the United States.

In fact, she has at her absolute command most of the 30,000,000 men under arms or active reserves, 10,000,000 MORE THAN BEFORE THE WORLD WAR.

President Hoover on Armistice Day described this situation as THE CURSE OF THE PRESENT WORLD.

France sees that the European world is again headed for war. You have read the statement of Henri Berenger, former Ambassador to the United States, submitted to the French Senate on March 18:

"Neither on the sea, where several imperialisms are opposed to one another, nor on the land, where Central and Oriental Europe are far from being consolidated, does the situation justify any lazy optimism.

"With its double determination, oftimes affirmed, of peace and domination, OUR AGE CONTAINS AS MANY MURDEROUS risks as those which have gone before."

Mr. Ambassador, let the American delegation escape the pitfalls being laid for them in the Conference, and devote themselves to securing for America a defense that will make her safe from involvement in the old, unchanged system of European intrigues and war.

LET THE AMERICAN DELEGATION

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU ARE ALL PEOPLE

"EVERY WOMAN IS ALL WOMEN."

That's what Norma Shearer tells Gladys Hall in the April number of Motion Picture.

Elsie Robinson

"In the heart of every woman is the good woman, and the bad woman, and the woman between the two. The mother. The wanton. The nun. The adventuress. I am all of these women; you are all of these women. Not one of us can see one of them with-out saying: 'There, but for the grace of God, go I.'"

That's true of women—it's also true of men. Whatever your sex or outward appearance, you have hidden within you the makings of ALL characters.

"What kind of a person is he?" you often ask. He's YOUR kind of a person. All those secret feelings which you think you alone possess—those odd dreams, those prickly dislikes, those great hopes, those haunting despairs, those streaks of vulgarity and viciousness—he has them, too. Rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief—THEY ARE ALL OF A PIECE WITH YOU.

CIRCUMSTANCES and training may have made them ACT differently and THINK differently —but they all FEEL the same. The brotherhood of man isn't just a poetical phrase. It's a chemical fact—a glandular fact. Whether you like it or not, lady, you and Judy O'Grady are sisters under your skins.

It's amazing how life changes when we accept this fact. Your life—for example. You're having a pretty miserable time—aren't you?—thinking how lonely you are and how bewildered and misunderstood. You look at other people.

They seem so happy, so confident and contented. Or else so stupid and stolid—beyond the reach of any feeling. Other people have all the luck! Poor you! So you go glooming around, all steamed up with self-pity.

WELL, get over it. Stop thinking that you're a de luxe edition. You're not. You're not feeling a single thing that every one else in the world hasn't also felt or isn't about to feel. Maybe that statement peeves you a bit? Hurts your vanity? But if you'll believe that fact and get used to it you will find that it's Big Medicine for what ails you. It will cure you of loneliness and heal you of intolerance.

AND THE LOAD ON YOUR OWN NECK WILL LIGHTEN WHEN YOU REALIZE THAT ALL OTHER NECKS ARE CARRYING THE SAME BURDEN.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

OUR own teeth, and most mammalian teeth, are finished and complete as soon as they have erupted, but in a horse completion is delayed for eight years to give a longer working life.

The horse's teeth, then, are admirably adapted for chewing up grasses, and the size and peculiar shape of his head is due to the need for finding room for these powerful and deep-rooted living millstones, and for the muscles to work them.

Now when we look back to the fossils of the Eocene (VA), the earliest period of the Cenozoic, we find nothing resembling a horse.

We find no mammal so specialized as a horse. In the earliest Eocene, almost all the mammals were small, they all had either four or five toes to each foot, and their teeth were short, low crowned and provided with more or less rounded or conical cusps, never with grinding ridges.

Obvious carnivores with teeth for slicing and cutting, like those of lion or wolf, did not exist, nor obvious herbivores, with grinding and chewing teeth, like those of cow or elephant. In the later stages of the Eocene period definite carnivores and herbivores can be recognized, together with other well marked types; but these early forms are all extremely different from any living animals.

When Owen described Hyracotherium in 1856, for that is the first name in our history, he never even guessed at the relationship between it and the horse; now not only do we know that the one is ancestral to the other, but we can fill all the gaps between the two.

If we go back stage by stage through the rocks of the whole Benozoic period (V) we find that the horse has recorded its pedigree in fossils.

There are four main stages, in the last the fossil horses resemble the living forms in all essentials of teeth and feet, differing only in details of proportion.

In the stage before this there are no one-hoofed horses. Instead we find smaller creatures, of obviously horse-like type, but with three hoofs on each foot; the two outer hoofs, however, are small and must have been useless in running, since they did not reach the ground, but hung in the air like the dew-claws of deer and other animals.

The teeth had a less elaborate grinding system, and were much shorter. Fossil bones of these, shall we call them the fathers of the horses?—are not uncommon in China, and (with others) are dug up to be sold to apothecaries as "dragons' teeth," that essential ingredient in the Chinese pharmacopoeia.

In the next assemblage of forms, the grandparents, so to speak, still older, the ancestral horses were no larger than a large dog or a small Shetland pony.

They also were three-toed, but all three hoofs touched the ground, and in addition, they possessed on the fore foot the trace of a fourth toe, in the form of a little splint against the cannon bone; the tooth pattern again was less elaborate, the whole tooth shorter and there was no trace of the cement which in all later forms filled up the valleys between the ridges of enamel and dentine, and so ensured a flat grinding surface throughout.

Try to Understand Tomorrow

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 27—It is proverbial that men and women gain the heights in New York at an almost total sacrifice of human companionship. With wealth and honor comes a monastic isolation. One enormously rich man can count only six who have not used his friendship for them for personal advantage.

This is the chief reason why such fortunes take to private yachts to roam the seven seas or to moated Long Island castles. Ninety per cent of the mail of John D. Rockefeller and his son and J. P. Morgan consists of charity requests or asking personal favors.

THE multi-millionaire has thus become almost as inaccessible as the monk in the cloister. Even in my time in New York one saw the headlined financiers at the opera, at the play and concerts. And they frequently enjoyed promenades in the park and on the avenue. But not any more.

In the past few years they have acquired the neurotic remoteness of sanitarium invalids. They arrive at their places of business by secret entrances and are whisked to their offices by private elevators. In other days a single secretary acted as a buffer between them and the public.

Today one must often run the gauntlet of a half dozen before reaching the inner sanctum. It is such a tiresome process that few care to endure it. And as for reaching such notables on the telephone, even the most intimate friends find such contacts well nigh impossible.

WHEN they ask over the phone for a big shot they are immediately given a private secretary who, before he is told who is at the other end of the phone, announces: "Mr. Blank is not in the city." This has become a set formula and averts embarrassment.

Then by a process of questioning the secretary learns who is speaking and if the telephone caller is considered important enough he is later called up. Multi-millionaires do not attend public dinners as a rule and their circle of intimates is narrowed to a handful.

Those who declared Marc Connolly could not write a play without a collaborator are thinking up something else. Connolly wrote several hits with George S. Kaufman and when they separated authored a flop or so. Kaufman was supposed to be the genius of the combination. Yet Connolly's "Green Pastures" with an all Negro cast is the outstanding theatrical smash—and deservedly—of five seasons. It is the finest performance this writer has seen lately in the theatre. Connolly is a product of Pittsburgh and began his career as a newspaper reporter. He spent three years writing his masterpiece.

STORIES told at dinner parties often fizzle in print like a wet fire-cracker. One I heard last night convulsed a large gathering. I put it on paper this morning, let four people read it and not one smiled. Tough, this column business!

They are now tippling tea in the East Side slums. Many little tenement flats have become tea rooms in the late afternoon. Neighbors gather and discuss vicissitudes of life. Tea is sold for five cents a cup and patrons bring along their own salami and rye bread.

A new hotel features a room key that, with the locking of a room door, automatically turns out the room lights, indicates to the front desk and telephone exchange that the room is vacant, pulls down the blinds and we suppose sharpens your skates.

ABSENT-MINDED husbands, I suppose, are a trial. My wife returning from a motor ride in the country told of seeing a cow fall with its neck on a railroad track and half stunned an entire express train passed over it. "It must have cut off its head," I ventured brightly.

"No, indeed," she replied—a trifle acidly I thought—"they got a saw and sawed it off."

Ed Wynne lands his biggest laugh in his new show when, as a soda water jerker, a chorus girl asks for caviar. "We are out of caviar," he replies, "but I can give you a dish of tapioca and a pair of dark glasses."
